A Long Coral Road.
Tiger Tom's Wives.
Skeletons of Caxambas.
Fish, Cent a Pound.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MIAMI, April 3.

THIS IS about a long road, from ocean to gulf, about Indians with too many wives, fish at one cent a pound, mangrove trees that conquer the salt ocean, skeletons dug from mounds of shells, night moths of gay colors, three learned men from the University of Miami, and other things that interest Americans, AND for a change, never a suggestion about real estate investments, except just one.

THE MEMBERS of the University of Miami faculty were Frank Harris, who lives here in winter, giving out knowledge, and in the Catskill Mountains in summer, absorbing more knowledge; Dr. John Gifford, who teaches tropical forestry in the excellent university, and KNOWS tropical forestry. Teaching a thing and knowing it are often far apart.

Also, there was Dr. B. F. Ashe, president of the university, who drove his car at a steady sixty-mile gait over the straight hundred and ten miles of coral rock road, and back, and over the skidding side roads of loose oyster shells, just as fast. A road is a road to that learned driver, and a bump has no existence except in the imagination.

THEY BUILD a highway across Southern Florida, from ocean to gulf, thus. Steam shovels pick up and throw away the layer of rich soil that rests on the flat rock, laid down by the tiny coral reef builders, uncovering the rock over a strip wide enough for a road and a canal to carry surface water away from the road.

The coral rock, dug from the canal, makes the road, big lumps of rock below, finely ground rock on top, a road to last forever and no cost but handling. Mixed with sea water, that same rock, crushed, makes perfect concrete for bridges across bayous, no need of sand or gravel, no reinforcement of steel.

Those coral building creatures did not know that they were actually producing highways for automobiles, bridges for railroad trains. We human insects do not know what we are building either.

THE CANAL on the north side of the road is a fish pond 100 miles long, with many, white and colored, fishing. Thousands of gar fish are caught and thrown away, although good to eat. The Seminole Indians eat them.

So do heavy buzzards, that waddle along the canal edge, gratefully picking up gar fish. They rise clumsily and you must slow down, approaching a voracious flock of them, filled with fish, or they may crash through your windshield. It happens to ignorant Northerners.

YOU ARE travelling through the empire of the Seminole Indians, but see very few. They use white men's roads, with their rattling old cars, on their way to give what money they have to bootleggers. But they do not like white men.

Twenty miles back in the Everglades, on roads almost impassable, you find their real villages, with valuable property left beside the road.

"Safe?" you ask.

"Yes, perfectly safe. White men don't come in here. Indians do not steal."

They establish "pretend" Indian villages along the high road, to collect money from whites, but do not live there.

WHAT SORT of people are they? Dr. Gifford tells you part of their modern mixture in which Indian bloods dominates. They have Seminole, Arawak, Calusa and other Indian strains, including blood of Indians from West Indian islands.

Also there is much Negro blood. The Seminoles used to have Negro slaves. There is Spanish blood, and even some Scotch. The grandfather of Chief Osceola was a Scotchman. He introduced broad stripes and plaids, now worn by Indians that once preferred buckskin.

THESE SEMINOLES were fighters when there were enough of them to fight. Chief Billy Bowlegs fought the United States soldiers so hard that Uncle Sam, wisely, decided to buy him off and save life.

Fighting in swampy Everglades was no white man's job, and in those days there were no airplanes to bomb the miserable villages, with houses raised on stilts above the stagnant water.

Billy Bowlegs, of whom you may learn more in Dr. Gifford's book, published by the Triangle Company, of Coconut Grove, accepted $100,000 in gold from Uncle Sam, and let himself be moved to Oklahoma, taking only two wives and seventy Negro slaves.

In Oklahoma, he took the slaves into partnership, in a small way, giving up slavery. Chief Tiger Tail killed himself, rather than leave Florida, which he loved. Real estate agents have overlooked that selling point. Dr. Gifford dedicates his book to Tiger Tail.

ONLY A few Indians are left, fewer than six hundred of the tribes that once owned the beautiful peninsula and numbered tens of thousands. Their children die of measles and contact with white man customs.

The adults are killed by bootleg whisky, it was moonshine before bootleg came, and by white man's diseases. Still they keep to their old language, and the remnant of a Seminole tribe cannot understand the speech of another Indian remnant, a few miles to the north.

Neither, by the way, can a Frenchman understand a German, just across the border, or a

BANDIT WAR STARTED BY HERRON

New Mayor Also Says Payrollers Need Not Fear for Jobs

The hundreds of city payrollers who have been quaking in their boots since their political guardian, Mayor Kline, left office, need worry no longer for their jobs, the new Mayor, John S. Herron, announced today. He said:

"You can say that the rank and file of the payroll has nothing to fear."

Mr. Herron laughed and added:

"Of course, that doesn't include the salaried men—you know, the mayors and the assistant mayors and the night mayors."

GOING AFTER BANDITS

"Here's something for you—we're going to try to do something about these bandits. The policeman that goes out and gets a couple of them may soon find himself called in and made a lieutenant.

"You can say this, too—the payrollers and the taxpayers are going to be treated with consideration in this administration."

Herron denied published reports that he intended to begin a campaign against vice today. He admitted that, after receiving a complaint, he had ordered Police Capt. Bernard Kirley to close the East End's Bachelors Club, drinking and gambling joint for society figures—and to keep it closed.

MONACA CLUB IGNORED

But he denied having even mentioned the Monaca Club, let alone order it closed if it were running again. When a reporter who pretended to be an authority said the Oakland Club was still shut down, the Mayor cracked wise:

"Well, if you say so, I'll certainly take your word for it."

The new Mayor denied, too, that he had any intention of ignoring Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, a left-over from the Kline administration. He explained:

"I called the superintendent this morning and told him to tell his captains that if any places were running in flagrant violation of the law to close them up and keep them closed."

Herron said that he had no hopes of wiping out every joint in the city.

NO FLAGRANT VICE

He didn't put this thought into words, but he left the impression that he will not stand for any such places as the Monaca Club, which before the raid operated on a scale which attracted wide attention.

Supt. Walsh, presiding at the regular monthly meeting with the captains today, said no special orders had been received from the acting mayor. Walsh said only routine matters were discussed.

On the heels of reports that the Monaca Club had reopened, came Henry Bergless, who bought the "furniture and fixtures" and J. A. Courtney to brand the reports as false and announce the opening of the "Monoco" Beer Gardens by Friday, if possible.

Beer and sea foods will be the attraction, Bergless says. Courtney will manage the place. They promise first rate dance orchestras and strict regard for the law.

Whisky? Never. Gambling? Unthinkable. Why, the new "Monoco Beer Garden," they say, will be a fit place for a Sunday School class to visit. They say they have removed all steel doors and bars.

Walker, Betty Compton Ready to Marry Soon

BETTY COMPTON . . . SHE CALLED AT THE MARRIAGE BUREAU

BEAU AIDS GIRL IN PASTOR TRIAL

MUNCIE, Ind., April 3.—(AP.)—Another dramatic touch was added to the trial here today of the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, charged with attempting to attack 18-year-old Helen Huffman, when the girl's sweetheart rushed to her side as closing arguments were made to the jury.

Harley Carmichael, described as the girl's "beau," pushed through the crowded courtroom to reach Miss Huffman when defense attorneys, charging him with being one of three men attempting to send Conway to prison, asked why he had failed to give her his support. Rollin Lennington, defense attorney, shouted:

"Where is this man Carmichael?"

At that point Carmichael, who had been toward the rear of the room, elbowed his way past the guard rail and took a chair beside the Huffman girl.

Conway, who was suspended for a year as pastor of the Madison Street Methodist Episcopal Church several weeks ago for imprudent conduct, showed little emotion as the attorneys pleaded his case today, even when the prosecutor described him as a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Inquire at City Hall In Cannes About Nuptial Rules

CANNES, France, April 3.—(AP.)—Former Mayor Walker, of New York, and his friend, Betty Compson, the actress, called at the city hall today and received full information about the marriage regulations here.

When he was asked about a rumor that he and Miss Compton had been married, Walker said:

"We were just getting the necessary information. When I get married I'll let you know."

Alfred Sharon, Mr. Walker's lawyer, went to the marriage bureau with them.

Officials at the bureau said Mr. Walker had notified them several days ago that he would be married soon. They refused to disclose the date he had set, explaining that he had asked them to keep it a secret.

Mr. Walker is an honorary member of the Municipal Council of Cannes and probably would be permitted to waive the ordinary regulations such as the posting of bans 10 days in advance of the wedding. No banns have been posted up to now.

Father Frees Son In Theft of Auto

Frank Paul, Jr., 20, of 10 Brosbille street, was discharged in Morals Court today after his arrest earlier on complaint of his father, Frank Paul, 52, that his car had been stolen. Paul, Jr., testified his mother had sent him in the car to follow Paul, Sr., on a trip to Baldwin Township. Paul, Sr., said he didn't know his son was in the car and asked his release from suspicious person charges.

Kindergarten 'Goat' Play Injures Boy, 6

WHEELING, W. Va., April 3.—"Jimmy" Gresak, 6, suffered a broken collar bone and other injuries today in a dramatization of a kindergarten play, "The Three Billygoats."

Presentation of the play in the Minnie Nay Settlement House in Benwood called for one of the children to bump another. "Jimmy," crawling across a table, was bumped to the floor.

Kline Limousine Offered Police in Bandit War

So determined is Mayor John S. Herron to reduce banditry in Pittsburgh that today he offered ex-Mayor Kline's city limousine to the police.

Herron ordered Public Safety Director James M. Clark to use all radio scout cars in the drive against stickup men.

And, the Mayor added, if that isn't enough, the police can use the limousine of the ex-Mayor.

Herron made this order after hearing that the chauffeur of socially-prominent Mrs. Harvey Childs, of Kipling road, had been held up and robbed of $14 in the Childs car in Fifth avenue near Murrayhill avenue in daylight today. The chauffeur, Samuel McNeal, Negro, said two stickup men jumped on the running board while he was waiting at a traffic light.

A group of assistant city assessors used the car this morning to inspect properties in West End and then made ready to turn it over to the police.

MINISTERS URGE BAN ON BEER

Ask Herron to Curb Sales Until State Passes New Law

Acting Mayor John S. Herron will be asked to declare existence of an emergency and prohibit the sale of beer until state regulations are provided, through action taken today by the Allegheny County Ministerial Union.

This took place as breweries increased operations and orders reached a half million cases. The Fort Pitt Brewing Company went on a 24-hour bases and the Pittsburgh Brewing Company started a new bottling unit.

Gov. Pinchot, mayors of municipalities and officials of smaller communities were asked to take the same action in a resolution adopted at a meeting in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street. The resolution was to be forwarded immediately to Herron.

OPPOSE SOMERS BILL

Joining with seven local groups already on record, the union condemned the Sowers bill. It was termed destructive to public order. A third resolution was voted, asking Gov. Pinchot to veto any measure affecting the Sunday laws. Edward W. Martin, state Republican chairman, was asked to oppose passage of such bills.

The Rev. C. C. Cribbs was elected president of the union; the Rev. H. E. Shade, vice-president and the Rev. E. Roy Corman was reelected secretary-treasurer.

GERMANY BARS JEWS' EXODUS

BERLIN, April 3.—(AP.)—Without offering any explanation, the government announced today that beginning at midnight no one will be allowed to leave German soil without special permission of the police stamped on his passport.

For several days reports have told of an exodus of Jews in considerable number to neighboring countries. At Koenigsberg today the authorities ordered all passports withdrawn from Jews living in East Prussia.

The newspaper Taegliche Rundshau reported this afternoon that a train had been halted by police near Dresden to prevent "an exodus of Jews to Czechoslovakia."

MONEY CONFISCATED

Considerable sums of money were confiscated, the newspaper said, but Jewish passengers were permitted to return to their homes in Germany.

The one-day boycott ended, Berlin seemed normal today with business going on as usual, but measures against Jews in professional life are taking shape.

MAN LINKED IN KILLING OF DIVORCEE

Arrest Believed Near In Fatal Beating In East Liberty

Homicide detectives today expect to arrest the man with whom Hilda Linberg, 44-year-old domestic, was to keep a "farewell appointment" Saturday night when she was murdered in an alley near the Peabody High School.

One hour after leaving the home of her employer, H. H. Laughlin, Woodlawn road, she was found by James Cowan, 714 Beatty street, her head battered. She died in the Pittsburgh Hospital.

Agda Carlton, 30, a domestic in a North Highland avenue home, Hilda's "best friend," told police the woman had confided to her Friday night that she was to meet a man whose identity she had shielded up to that time.

Detectives are convinced the slaying took place in the alley where the woman's groans attracted Cowan, and have learned an automobile was seen parked near the murder scene shortly before discovery of the victim.

Money found in her pocketbook eliminated a robbery theory, police say.

DOG'S SLASHER GETS YEAR

A one-year workhouse sentence and a $200 fine was the punishment Joe Pawloski, 22, of 1024 Willow way, Braddock, received today for stabbing a dog.

Jawolski pleaded guilty before Judge Samuel H. Gardner on charges of maiming and crippling a Belgian police dog owned by Anthony Tamewitz, of 1026 Talbot avenue, Braddock. When he asked leniency, the Judge replied:

"Anyone with so little feeling for a dumb animal can expect no consideration for his pleas for leniency."

The case was prosecuted by Amos C. Brooks, of the Humane Society, who testified Pawloski slashed Blackie three times with a penknife in the yard of the owner on February 23.

Judge Gardner got down off the bench to examine the dog during the taking of testimony.

When asked by the Judge if he was under the influence of liquor at the time of the attack, Pawloski answered "yes," but added he could give no reason for his act.

MRS. RUTH M. BROWN

WIDOW HEARD IN DEATH QUIZ

MT. HOLLY, N. J., April 3.—(INS.)—The widow of Bradshaw Brown, who was shot to death in his Palmyra home last January 16, spent half an hour today telling the Burlington County grand jury what she knew about her husband's connection with the Wilson-Roberts case.

Brown, who was rumored to have been killed because he "knew too much" about the deaths of Ruth Mowdray Wilson and Horace Roberts, Jr., four years ago, was a principal witness at the inquest following the double tragedy.

Authorities have denied that Brown's death was in any way linked with the other shootings, although they have called as witnesses three men friends of Brown who are thought to have feared violence themselves because of secrets they shared with Brown.

Mrs. Brown has been in seclusion in Beaver, Pa., where her parents live, ever since the tragedy, which was at first declared a suicide by Chief of County Detectives Ellis H. Parker. Parker himself, who investigated the Wilson-Roberts case also, will appear before the grand jury before its findings are made public.

ENACTMENT SPEEDED BY CONGRESS

Bill Offered to Lift Mortgage Loan on Agriculture

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—A stupendous departure in farm relief, a $2,000,000,000 plan for reducing the agriculture mortgage load, was put before Congress today by President Roosevelt, and the legislators moved at once to enact it.

In a special message, the President advocated a plan under which 4 per cent bonds can be issued by the Federal Land banks, to be used either by exchanging them for outstanding mortgages, or in making new loans.

The Senate Agriculture Committee had just approved for report to the Senate the administration farm price raising bill.

BILL TO BE STUDIED

It then decided to study the new bill tomorrow and to report both measures as one before tomorrow night.

The mortgage bill, however, was referred to the Banking Committee and a sub-committee under Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, was called to study it tomorrow. Chairman Smith (Dem.), of South Carolina, of the Farm Committee, said his group would not wait for Wagner to report but would press the joint bill tomorrow.

In his message to Congress, the President said he would soon propose extension of the mortgage program so as to relieve debt-burdened owners of small homes, and also that he would ask in a short time for legislation permitting him to initiate reciprocal tariff agreements with foreign nations.

Before approving the farm price bill, the Agriculture Committee attached to it a provision permitting the Secretary of Agriculture to employ the so-called Simpson production cost guarantee plan as an alternative method of increasing farm income.

MAIN PROVISIONS

Main provisions of President Roosevelt's debt-easing bill are:

Federal Land Banks authorized to issue up to $2,000,000,000 in 4 per cent bonds, interest guaranteed by government.

White House Gets Beer, Mrs. Roosevelt Rules

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today issued a statement saying there would be no ban against legalized beer in the White House.

In her statement, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"When it is legal to serve beer in any goverment house it will naturally be proper to do so for anyone who desires it at the White House.

"I hope very much that any change in legislation may tend to improve the present condition and lead to greater temperance.

"There has been a great deal of bootlegging in beer, and once it is legal, this will be impossible, and I hope that a great many people who have used stronger things will be content with legal beer, so that the cause of temperance will be served.

No matter what the legislation, I myself do not drink anything with alcoholic content but that is purely an individual thing.

"I should not dream of imposing my own convictions on other people as long as they live up to the law of the land."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had not the slightest idea whether there were any beer steins in the mansion.

At her press conference, Mrs. Roosevelt showed her attitude was that the residence, as a public building, belongs in a way to all who come there.

Meanwhile the House today disagreed to the Senate amendments to the District of Columbia beer bill and asked for a conference.

The House defeated 195 to 150 a motion by Representative Blanton (Dem.), Texas, to agree to the Senate amendments, one of which forbids sale on government property.

REPUBLICAN LEADER HOLDS UP SENATE QUIZ OF MORGAN

QUIZ BLOCKS EXTENSION OF AUTHORITY

Resolution Ordered Sent to Audit Committee

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(INS.)—A resolution broadening scope of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee's New York stock market investigation to include private banks, with J. P. Morgan & Co., specifically in mind, was favorably reported today by the Senate Audit and Control Committee.

The resolution previously was approved by the Banking and Currency Committee. Senate Democrats planned to force its passage in the Senate tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Immediate consideration of the Fletcher resolution authorizing a broad investigation of private banking was blocked in the Senate today by Senator McNary, Republican leader.

McNary insisted that the resolution be referred to the Senate audit committee for approval of any additional expenditure that might be required by its provision for a general inquiry into the operations of J. P. Morgan & Co. and other private bankers.

ROBINSON PROTESTS

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, insisted that the resolution was not required to go to the audit committee because it did not propose an additional expenditure, but Vice President Garner ruled against him and the resolution was sent to the committee.

Meanwhile the Costigan resolution, calling for an investigation of delay in prosecution of Joseph W. Harriman, New York banker, was tentatively approved today by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The committee, acting without a full quorum, approved the resolution subject to a poll of absent members.

PROBE OF DELAY

The resolution, introduced by Senator Costigan, (Dem.) of Colorado, calls for an investigation by the judiciary committee of the Justice Department's delay under the Hoover administration in prosecuting Harriman, former chairman of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, on a charge of making false entries in the bank's accounts.

George Z. Medalie, District Attorney at New York, asserted that he held up prosecution of Harriman on instructions from the Justice Department at Washington.

It was explained the delay was ordered to afford opportunity to straighten out the bank's affairs, in an effort to save the institution.

MITCHELL TRIAL OPENS APRIL 17

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Federal Judge John C. Knox today fixed April 17 as the date for opening the trial of Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank, on an indictment charging him with attempting to defeat and evade the income tax law as to 1929.

The Government claimed that $573,312 in income taxes should have been paid by Mitchell for 1929, but he reported a loss of $48,000 for the year and paid no tax.

Mitchell, in testimony before the Senate Banking Committee, claimed the loss resulted from the sale of bank stock to his wife, but the Government alleged that the sale was not bona fide.

Canadian Jews Voice Appeal to Premier

TORONTO, Ontario, April 3.—(AP.)—Thousands of Jews and gentiles in various cities of Canada have joined in protests against alleged mistreatment of Jews in Germany and appealed to Premier R. B. Bennett to use his influence to aid the German Jews.

Meetings were held yesterday in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor, Ontario; Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and other western cities.

Explosives Seized In German Red Raids

HAMBURG, Germany, April 3.—(INS.)—Police raided every house in the village of Geesthaak today following arrest of 11 Communists, seizing 10 kilograms of explosives and machine gun cartridges.

Police declared the confiscated explosives were connected with the dynamiting yesterday of the Nazi headquarters in Hamburg.

was tentatively limited to 35. At Frankfurt-on-Main the number of Jewish brokers on the stock exchange was tentatively reduced from 33 to 8.

There were dozens of arrests at various places as the Nazi drive against political opponents was renewed. At the towns of Oberingelheim and Heinstadt, near Mayence, there were reports of the attempted assassination of non-Nazi mayors.

Twenty-six Communists were arrested at Erfurt, and at Brunswick and Frankfurt-on-Main the presidents of the universities were placed under "protective arrest."

The newspaper Nachtausgabe printed a dispatch from Brandenburg today that Friedrich Ebert, son of the first president of the German republic and local Socialist leader at Brandenburg, had been manhandled in a fracas which arose when Socialist members of the new municipal council remained seated while the Nazi anthem was sung.

JEWS PLAN BOYCOTT

PARIS, April 3.—(INS.)—Four influential French Jewish organizations telegraphed Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, today, advising of their intention of instituting a boycott against German products "until the full rights of Jews in Germany have been restored."

The bodies were the International League Against Anti-Semitism, the French Organization of the World Congress of Jews, the Association of War Veterans Descended from Jewish Fathers, and the Committee of Jews Persecuted in Germany.

PROBE WOMAN'S CULT KILLING

INEZ, Ky., April 3.—(AP.)—The Martin County grand jury met here today to hear witnesses unfold the story of a strange religious service that culminated in the sacrifice of an elderly mother in a mountain cabin near Tomahawk, a small village in the Eastern Kentucky Mountains.

The victim, Mrs. Lucinda Mills, in her late sixties, was found choked to death and her body bound in chains last February. Shortly afterwards her son, John H. Mills, 33, was bound over at a preliminary hearing as the actual slayer. Eight others, all relatives, were held as accessories.

Neighbors of the accused termed them "Bible crazy," according to county officials, and told of religious services that included shouting and singing and "swording"—passing a Bible across one another's throat.

CURB PROPOSED ON U. S. LOANS

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Tentative approval was given by the Senate Judiciary Committee to a bill to prohibit loans by Americans to any nation in default of its obligations to government or people of the United States.

The bill, introduced last session by Senator Johnson, (Rep.), California, was approved by the commitee without a quorum, subject to the approval of absent members who are being polled by Chairman Ashurst.

The bill would apply in the case of defaults on war debts or private loans to foreign governments.

It carries a penalty of not more than $10,000 fine or imprisonment for five years, or both, for violations of its provisions.

Roosevelt's Cousin May Become Envoy

FARM DECISION NEAR IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Decision on a production cost-guarantee plan was before the Senate Agriculture Committee today as members went into their last executive session preparatory to reporting a farm relief bill to the Senate.

Under the plan urged by John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, the government would fix prices on basic agricultural commodities to insure the grower the cost of producing that portion of his crop going into the domestic market.

It is being prepared in amendment form by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, with modifications to provide for production control, and was discussed by the committee this morning.

Ghosts of Great Aiding F. R. Says Spiritualist

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Great leaders of America, dead for generations, are aiding President Roosevelt.

So declared Joseph P. Whitwell, of Chicago, president of the National Spiritualist Association, last night while on a tour of spiritualist churches of the East. He said:

"No doubt President Roosevelt is receiving messages and inspiration from such men as Washington, Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson. The messages might be received consciously or unconsciously, but they are nevertheless direct communications from the spirit world."

COUGHLIN FLAYS BANK HOLDING COMPANIES

Radio Priest Resumes Attack on Financiers, Silent on Bombing

Universal Service.

DETROIT, April 3.—Assailing bankers' holding companies as "outlaw agencies, cruel despoilers of widows, orphans and small stockholders," the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Royal Oak, Mich., radio rector of the world's largest congregation, urged his more than 1,000,000 hearers yesterday to back President Roosevelt's new deal for the restoration of "banking sanity."

Making no allusion to the bombing of his home last Monday, following his first radio blast against Detroit bankers, Father Coughlin not only categorically refused to retract his previous accusations against a banker-publisher here but added to them.

CITES SENATOR GLASS

Extending his oral indictment of the nation's bankers, Father Coughlin quoted Senator Carter Glass to uphold his contention that a national bank's security-selling affiliate "contravenes the national banking act." He excoriated the "lying, cowardly, venal financial leadership" which enabled "unmoral bankers" to mulct millions. He said:

"I wonder how the gentle Christ would respond to current conditions if He returned to earth today. I wonder if He would not resent the ruthless rule of business that lets worthy men starve in the midst of plenty; that permits the honest poor to be trampled upon by the economic juggernaut of selfishness serving solely the pharisees of concentrated wealth.

WOULD SPEAK OUT

"Tell me not that Christ would speak in platitudes with 15,000,000 deserving jobless going hungry. He would speak out, even though He be called a radical, or worse. He again would scourge the money-changers from the temple, even though the high priest of property rights framed Him and crucified Him.

"For God's sake, let us think of sound men—sound in body and in soul—rather than of sound money.

"Give us this day our daily bread—bread that is earned by the sweat of the brow.

"The bread that can save America from a catastrophe."

Ohio Banking Head's Removal Demanded

CLEVELAND, April 3.—(INS.)—Removal of Ira J. Fulton, State Superintendent of Banks, and Theodore H. Tangeman, State Commerce Director, was demanded today of Gov. George White by the depositors' committee of the Cleveland banks now operating under restrictions.

Declaring the ousting of the two state officials to be a "necessity," the committee further urged a detailed investigation of the state banking department "for its failure to discover and report conditions of the banks as we now find them."

Kansan Refuses Detroit Bank Post

DETROIT, April 3.—(INS.)—U. S. McLucas, Kansas City banker, has definitely rejected an offer of the presidency of the new National Bank of Detroit, it was learned from an authoritative source here today.

The new bank, owned jointly by the United States Government and General Motors Corporation, was established to end Michigan's banking crisis which culminated in the national bank holiday. It is the first government-controlled "Roosevelt plan" bank.

Treasury authorized to subscribe $50,000,000 to the paid-in surplus of the banks.

Interest rate on loans on mortgages shall not exceed 4½ per cent.

A total of $15,000,000 would be available from Treasury to compensate banks for interest reduction.

Limit on mortgage loans $50,000.

TEXT OF MESSAGE

The text of the President's message follows:

"To the Congress:

"As an integral part of the board plan to end the forced liquidation of property, to increase purchasing power and broaden the credit structure for the benefit of both the producing and consuming elements in our population, I ask the Congress for specific legislation relating to the mortgages and other forms of indebtedness of the farmers of the nation.

"That many thousands of farmers in all parts of the country are unable to meet the indebtedness incurred when their crop prices had a very different money value is well known to all of you.

"The legislation now pending, which seeks to raise agricultural commodity prices, is a definite step to enable farm debtors to pay their indebtedness in commodity terms more closely approximating those in which the indebtedness was incurred; but that is not enough.

"In addition the federal government should provide for the other indebtedness so as to accomplish a more equitable readjustment of the principal of the debt, a reduction of interest rates, which in many instances are so unconscionably high as to be contrary to a sound public policy, and, by a temporary readjustment of amortization, to give sufficient time to farmers to restore to them the hope of ultimate free ownership of their own land.

"I seek an end to the threatened loss of homes and productive capacity now faced by hundreds of thousands of American farm families.

'NOT BURDEN ON U. S.'

"The legislation I suggest will not impose a heavy burden upon the national Treasury.

"It will instead provide a means by which, through existing agencies of the government, the farm owners of the nation will be enabled to refinance themselves on reasonable terms, lighten their harassing burdens and give them a fair opportunity to return to sound conditions.

"I shall presently ask for additional legislation as a part of the broad program, extending this wholesome principle to the small home owners of the nation, likewise faced with this threat.

"Also, I shall ask the Congress for legislation enabling us to initiate practical reciprocal tariff agreements to break through trade barriers and establish foreign markets for farm and industrial products."

Finnish Minister's Automobile Stolen

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—A large sedan owned by Leonhart Astrom, the Finnish minister, has been stolen.

Astrom reported to police that thieves broke the lock on the garage doors at the Finnish legation and made away with the automobile, the license tags of which bear the conspicuous number 325.

World-Girdling

JOAN LOWELL

JOAN LOWELL HITS CRITICS

NEW YORK, April 3.—"If there are any landlubber critics there, you can all go plumb to heck!"

This was the parting shot of Joan (Cradle of the Deep) Lowell as she, her father and a couple of sailors set sail in the 48-foot schooner Black Hawk yesterday for a three-year journey around the world.

Joan, whose first seagoing book a few years ago brought loud razzberries from the old salts as well as the landlubber critics, is going to prove to her public that she does, too, know the difference between a marlin spike and a jib boom.

A crowd of about 500 watched the little boat put out to sea—a nautical crowd from Broadway and Third avenue. They said good old sea chanteys with enthusiasm, if not accuracy.

Just before they weighed anchor, Joan admitted that there was a romantic angle to the trip. She said she had made a bet with "a man I like very much." If she gives up before circumnavigating the globe, she will have to marry the man.

If she makes the trip—well, she'll probably marry him anyway.

Cummings Denies Blackmer's Cleared

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Attorney General Cummings said today he had heard nothing of reports that new information uncovered in Washington would permit the return of Henry M. Blackmer, missing Teapot Dome oil trial witness, from France, without fear of arrest.

Blackmer has been abroad since the Teapot Dome trial. Warrants are out for his arrest on charges of perjury in connection with income taxes.

Senator Proposes Less Gold in Dollar

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(INS.)—A bill to reduce the gold content of the dollar by approximately one-third was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Connally (Dem.), of Texas.

The bill proposed to discontinue the minting of gold coins and to direct the government to hold all its gold reserves and gold in the Treasury for the redemption of currency and certificates.

Hunt Man Braving Furnace to Escape

BOMBAY, April 3.—(AP.)—Mt. Everest, highest mountain in the world, was crossed by airplane today for the first time in history.

FOREST WORK TO BE STARTED APRIL 15

Regional Chiefs Map First U. S. Projects To Be Taken Up

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Plans to put the first recruits of the forest conservation corps at work in national forests by April 15 were drawn today at a conference of regional chiefs of the United States Forest Service.

Maj. R. Y. Stuart, head of the service, directed the regional foresters to prepare data showing the exact projects that may be started by that date and the number of men needed to execute each.

Many of the projects planned for the summer cannot be started by mid-April because of mountain snows, the need for more time to move equipment and to set up camps.

The Labor Department hastened plans for setting up a system for registering applicants for jobs. After recruiting the men will be encamped at army posts for the shortest time needed for physical examinations and conditioning.

Army Recruiters Wait 'Enlistment' Orders

Many applicants for membership in the Civilian Conservation Corps are being turned away today at the United States Army recruiting office, 405 Fourth avenue, in the absence of final orders from Washington.

Maj. William Buerkle, in charge of recruiting for Western Pennsylvania, stationed a man at the office entrance to inform work-seekers the enlistments have not started and may not be started for several days.

Penna. to Furnish One-Tenth of Workers

HARRISBURG, April 3.—One-tenth of the men to be given work in the federal reforestation program will be recruited from the unemployed in Pennsylvania, Warren Van Dyke, Democratic State Chairman, and Joseph F. Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman, said today. These men were in Washington over the week-end and were assured, their statement said, that since Pennsylvania has a tenth of the nation's unemployed, that proportion will be allotted to this state.

Welfare agencies will have charge of recruiting the labor, the Democratic leaders said. This method of enrolling the workers has been determined upon, they said, to "avoid discrimination on political grounds." Workers will be drawn from all sections of the state.

Forest experts estimate there is work enough in the Allegheny National Forest alone to support 18,000 workers for a long period of time.

The Allegheny National Forest is located in Warren, Forest, Elk and McKean counties. There are more than 350,000 acres in the forest, and this will be increased to 600,000 acres when funds are available.

Reinhardt Ousted By German Theater

BERLIN, April 3.—(AP.)—Max Reinhardt, Germany's most eminent theatrical producer, fell victim today to the anti-Semitic wave.

After a conference with a Nazi commissioner, the management of the Deutsches Theater agreed that Reinhardt no longer would have anything to do with the theater, which he has been identified for a quarter of a century. It was said Reinhardt's real name was Goldman. He is perhaps best known for his production of "The Miracle."

Police said Skelley was attacked by an unemployed miner, who fled after beating him.

Authorities said others would be arrested and charged with participation in the horrible death.

26-year-old Celine Novarro, whose body was exhumed from a hidden grave on Jersey Island in the San Joaquin River yesterday.

By the light of flaming torches, investigators reported, the young expectant mother was thrown into her grave the night of last November 19 and earth shoveled over her living body.

She had been accused of unfaithfulness to her sick husband, and women members of the cult demanded her death.

RENO, Nev., April 3.—(AP.)—A party including former President Hoover, Ogden L. Mills, their wives and Mrs. Ruth Pratt, former New York Congresswoman, left here today by automobile for Palo Alto, Cal., after an entertaining Sunday in Nevada during which Mr. Hoover visited the scenes of some of his early experiences as a surveyor and mining engineer.

The former President, beaming happily, rode in the cab of an ancient locomotive to the crumbling old mining community of Virginia City and then topped off a pleasant afternoon by motoring to Lake Tahoe, high in the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Mr. Hoover became slightly irritated at Virginia City when amateur photographers trailed him into the old Crystal Bar, now a museum, and snapped his picture as he was signing a register that already boasts the names of President Grant and other world-famous characters.

The phtographers persisted, however, and Mr. Hoover stomped out rather angrily after completing his inspection of the museum.

LINDYS ABANDON HOPEWELL HOME TO 'GHOSTS' OF TRAGEDY

WON'T RETURN TO SCENE OF KIDNAPING

Friend Denies Rumor Flier, Anne and Jon Will Quit U. S.

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., April 3.—The big white house that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh built for his family in Hopewell, N. J., has been abandoned for good.

All the furniture has been moved out. The unseeded lawn never will be planted to make a grassy playground for Lindbergh children.

For that famous pair whose first born was kidnaped from that house, and murdered, have decided they cannot go back.

'WON'T LEAVE U. S.'

This was learned today from a close friend of the family, following a report that Mrs. Audrey H. Morgan, sister of Anne Lindbergh, was looking for a house for the Lindberg's in South Wales. The friend said:

"The Lindberghs are not going to leave the country. I believe they will stay right where they are, in Mrs. Lindbergh's mother's home here. They have their own wing of the house and are very comfortable. It seems to be the place for them.

"If they were going back to Hopewell, they would have gone by spring. I think they have given up the idea of returning to the place. They never speak of it. It is a subject which, because of its sad associations, is unmentioned in the house."

So far as friends know, the place has not been offered for sale.

The decision to return to Hopewell eventually was made shortly after the birth of the second Lindbergh baby, in the same spirit the colonel exhibited when, after a crash with his fiancee, he took her into the air again to prove it was safe.

His is the kind of nature that doggedly defies fate. He built the house as a permanent home. It took great emotional effort to abandon that home.

But the memories that hang over the house like a troupe of ghosts have been too much for the stalwart Lindbergh and his quiet, young wife.

NO REST AT SCENE

That corner nursery room where baby Charles August Lindbergh, Jr., slept and laughed and was suddenly silenced could not be used as a resting place for little Jon Morrow Lindbergh, who was born less than seven months after his brother's murder.

Jon Morrow Lindbergh never has seen Hopewell. He was born last September in New York, and taken to his grandmother's home, where he still is. The other baby was born in Englewood.

Englewood friends, who were amazed that the second child so closely resembled the first, report that Jon now looks less like little Charlie. He is blond, although not quite as blond, but he is not much like Col. Lindbergh or his mother, Anne. The friend said:

"He looks like himself. He is a healthy, happy baby, thriving and growing all the time."

His parents were still so wounded by the brutal death of the first child that, when Jon was born, they had thought of no name for a little boy. They had been sure Jon would be a girl and called Anne. For two months the question of a name was debated, but never was Charles, Jr., considered.

There could be no going back, even to a name.

HUNT RED SOX WRECKERS

DOVER, Del., April 3.—(AP.)—An intensive manhunt was on today for train wreckers, authors of what officials termed the plot which caused the wreck of a Pennsylvania Railroad flyer bearing the Boston Red Sox baseball team northward, killing the engineer and fireman.

Thundering toward New York early yesterday, the train struck a switch, which railroad authorities said had been tampered with, and left the rails three miles south of here.

The locomotive turned over on its side, killing C. A. Burkhard, of Wilmington, Del., the engineer, and Fireman E. L. Poulson, of Delmar, Del. The express car immediately behind the locomotive plunged into a concrete warehouse, partially wrecking it, and six other cars, including the three Pullmans occupied by the Boston ball players, were derailed but remained upright.

None of the Red Sox party was injured although many of them were hurled from their berths and shaken up.

OPEN NEW FIGHT TO SAVE RUTH

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 3.—(INS.)—Fresh legal moves were planned today in the battle to save Winnie Ruth Judd, "double trunk" murderess, from the noose April 21.

A jury convicted Mrs. Judd of killing Agnes Anne Leroi. The bodies of Mrs. Leroi and of Hedvig Samuelson were shipped in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

Her attorneys, awaiting word from the State Pardon Board on a request for an additional 60-day reprieve for Mrs. Judd, planned, first, to present a motion this week in the court of Superior Judge Howard Speakman asking that the judgment of the jury be set aside on grounds of prejudice.

And old indictment charging her with aiding and abetting Diamond in the torture of Grover Parks, Catskill truckman, will be quashed.

Rockefeller Church Called Inexpensive

NEW YORK, April 3.—(Universal.)—The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick yesterday said his Riverside Baptist Church, also known as the "Rockefeller Church," is "one of the least expensive churches in the United States."

SHOT STROLLING WITH 2 WOMEN

UNIONTOWN, April 3.—A man walking in Cycle Park with two woman was shot perhaps fatally last night by another man who believed one of the women was his wife, according to police.

The identity of the women was not disclosed, but the victim of the shooting, Russel Fisher, 32, denied either was the wife of his alleged assailant, who, police say, leaped from the bushes in the park to do the shooting.

Fisher was shot in the chest by a man who jumped from bushes in the park and fired three times.

After the wounded man was taken to a hospital, state police arrested Silas Green, 32. They said Green admitted the shooting, and said he had believed one of Fisher's companions was Mrs. Green, from whom he was estranged.

FAMILY SAFE, HOME WRECKED

Lucas Channas, his wife and five children were safe today after an explosion destroyed their home, 406 Dawson avenue, Carnegie, late last night. The Channas family, returning from a visit on the South Side, Pittsburgh, were walking from the Carnegie Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad to their home when the explosion occurred.

A section of the roof of the two-story frame dwelling was blown off.

Police said the explosion was caused by gas. They estimated the damage at $8,000.

STRIKE PICKETS BEAT MINER

One miner was reported beaten today in the coal strike of the National Miners' Union.

Most of the mines of the district were reported working at capacity and only one picket line was observed.

The disorder occurred in the Avella district, where Michael Hamerlock, 60, according to reports, attempted to go through a picket line of 75 men and five women to the Paxton mine. He was knocked down and lost a tooth.

A checkup of mines operating under agreement with the United Mine Workers of America revealed no interference, and officials reported they were operating at capacity. The United Mine Workers have ignored the N. M. U. strike call.

Gollmar Assists Strike Settlement

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar today announced that the strike at the plant of the Federal Enamel and Stamping Company, McKees Rocks, had been settled and all employes were back at work. Six hundred girls and a number of men walked out several weeks ago. Gollmar talked over the dispute with both sides and was instrumental in bringing about a settlement.

FRANCE BACKS LITTLE POWERS

PARIS, April 3.—(AP.)—Counter-proposals to the Italo-British four-power peace plan were drafted at today's cabinet session. They were based on the French insistence that the project must protect Poland and the Little Entente, which should be consulted in affairs interesting them.

The Cabinet definitely rejected the idea of any four-power directorate which would seek to impose its will on the rest of Europe.

The main idea of four-power collaboration already had been accepted by France as a basis for discussion. This acceptance was decided on March 21, when suggested modifications of the Mussolini scheme were sent to Rome.

The Little Entente which France seeks to protect is made up of Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Rumania.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Gardner Cowles, Des Moines, Ia., publisher, today announced his resignation as a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, effective April 8.

Mr. Cowles is a Republican and his resignation leaves three vacancies on the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Board, all of which must be filled by President Roosevelt with appointment of Republicans.

IDENTIFIES BOY IN SCOTTSBORO ATTACK

Woman First Witness In Retrial; Tells Of Battle

DECATUR, Ala., April 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Victoria Price today identified Heywood Patterson, Chattanooga Negro, as one of her attackers on a freight train near Scottsboro, Ala., two years ago.

Patterson is the first of nine Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case" to be retried in Morgan Circuit Court under a change of venue.

While witnesses were being assembled, Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief of defense counsel, set up the "Scottsboro Special" on a table before the jury box, for use in cross-examining state witnesses.

Mrs. Price was the first witness called.

TELLS OF BATTLE

Under direct examination by Solicitor H. G. Bailey, who prosecuted the cases two years ago, she said she and Ruby Bates boarded an oil tank car at Chattanooga, but went to a gondola car at Stevenson, Ala. She said:

"Seven white boys boarded it after it left Stevenson."

Five or 10 minutes later, the woman said, 12 Negroes jumped into the car and began fighting the white boys. Bailey asked:

"Was this defendant among them?"

"Yes, sir."

Patterson, she said, was armed with a pistol and during the fight forced six of the seven white boys from the train.

She said Orville Gilley, one of the white boys, remained on the car saying:

"I'm afraid to jump and I'm going to stay on this car and die with these girls."

Mrs. Price testified she was then attacked.

As the train halted at Paintrock, the Negroes jumped from the car and were arrested.

BECAME UNCONSCIOUS

She said she lost consciousness as she stepped to the ground and recovered in a grocery store. Direct examination was completed in 16 minutes.

Leibowitz started cross examination by seeking to have Mrs. Price identify cars of the miniature train, but she said they did not resemble the cars on the regular train.

Mrs. Price became nettled as Leibowitz persisted in questioning her about her resistance of the attacks. She replied:

"I don't know," "I won't say," "I just fought."

30-HOUR WEEK UP TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Legislation to establish a 30-hour work week was taken up by the Senate for consideration today at about the same time that it emerged from a House committee with unanimous approval.

Chairman Connery, of the House Labor Committee, said he planned to report the measure to the House immediately. It was called up in the Senate by Black (Dem.), of Alabama, author of the measure, who told Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, he did not expect a vote today.

The bill would compel private industry to adopt the 30-hour week and penalize interstate movement of products made by labor working longer hours.

CARNERA SHOWN AS ROMEO IN BALM SUIT

Jury Awards $14,280 After Love Letters To Girl are Read

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

LONDON, April 3.—A jury in a London courtroom listened patiently today to a reading of passionate love letters written by Primo Carnera, giant Italian boxer, and then awarded Emilia Tersini, pretty 22-year old waitress, $14,280 in her breach of promise action against the gigantic pugilist.

Written in Italian, and translated for the benefit of judge and jury by Miss Tersini's attorney, the letters disclosed a hitherto unsuspected talent on the part of Carnera. Whatever his abilities in the prize ring, the missives revealed a deft and delicate touch in the composition of honeyed phrases.

PRIMO NOT MODEST

They also showed Primo had no modest conception of his own importance. He wrote from Los Angeles in 1930:

"Here I am the most popular man in the world. I own land and 36 houses in Hollywood. All the great cinema stars invited me to dinner.

"I am having a house built for you, and when the film stars see you they'll say: 'What a beautiful girl Primo has for a wife.'"

The battling behemoth wrote from New York a little later:

"My dearest Emilia for life, I cannot sleep at night. My thoughts are always with you, because you have taken all my life.

"Have patience. Another year and we shall be together for always."

TWO MONTHS' SUIT

Such letters, the attorney said, were written over a period of two months after Carnera left London toward the end of 1929.

Emilia, on leaving the courtroom, declared:

"I'm still in love with Primo. I wish he had been here. Things might have been different. I am sorry things turned out this way, but it was up to him."

Miss Tersini's lawyer revealed she quit her $15 a week job as waitress at Carnera's request and took a position in a shop at a salary of 15 shillings (about $3) a week.

LEADERS SNAG RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—The Wagner $500,000,000 relief bill was received today by the House from the Senate and was immediately objected to by Representative Snell (Rep.), New York, on the ground that it was an appropriation bill that originated in the Senate, in violation of the constitution.

The Republican leader and Representative Treadway (Rep.), Massachusetts, offered a resolution to return the bill to the Senate on constitutional grounds.

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic floor leader, sought to block the Republican move by having the resolution referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

Snell said:

"I want to protect the House and its prerogatives."

He agreed, however, to permit the resolution to lay over on the Speaker's desk until tomorrow to allow the Democratic leadership to study it.

Speaker Rainey was prevented from referring the relief bill to the Ways and Means Committee as he had planned.

It will remain on his desk until the House passes on the Treadway-Snell resolution.

Lonely Widows Wage War on Flappers

NEW YORK, April 3.—(INS.)—The sunset guns today will boom the beginning of a war—on flappers.

Beware, you rootless creatures between 16 and 20, who think that the powder compact is the foundation of the American home! The widows will get you—if you don't watch out.

Mrs. Nelle Brooke Stull, of Elyria, O., founder of the Widows and Widowers Club of America, now in convention at the Knickerbocker Hotel here, said:

"They've had everything their own way long enough.

"It used to be that widows were the ones to be feared, but not any more. The little snip who likes to mix her fingers into everyone else's business and doesn't want a home of her own is the dangerous one today. They have got to let up, and give the older women, who really know how to live, a chance."

The convention therefore will be called upon to ratify an amendment to the constitution of the club, outlawing flappers from the ranks of the legitimate lonely.

Mrs. Stull, whose idea in founding the club was to provide introductions between men and women leading to matrimony, did not believe the banning of flappers would decrease the male membership.

'Shocking' King of Zulus Dies; 15 Left in Harem

By JOHN KOBLER
International News Service.

LONDON, April 3.—Solomon, the 36-year-old Zulu king, who had 15 wives all for himself, maintained a fleet of motor cars that would have put a Hollywood actress to shame and sat on a gilded throne and wore a bus conductor's cap for a crown, is no more.

News of his sudden death has just reached London, and while the British empire will no longer be shocked or amused at his escapades, those of the past will live long in memory.

Solomon, one of the most powerful of African native potentates, was converted to Christianity by a missionary, but never got over his primitive, pagan ideas of what a king should be.

The British government allowed him $25,000 a year, which enabled him to gratify his dominating passion for expensive motor cars.

Solomon had a passion for modernization, and law-suits were his favorite pastime. At the slightest provocation he would summon his white lawyer and bring suit against someone. He lost frequently, but when he won, he declared a national holiday.

Another pet occupation was shopping, but he had such a bad reputation among white traders they refused to give him credit. If he was flush, he would buy a car, then a sword, a gaudy uniform and an umbrella.

Once he saw a porcelain bathtub in a shop window, the first he had ever seen. He bought it, and with great ritual installed it in one of his eight kraals. Every night and morning Solomon then bathed before the horrified eyes of his many wives.

VARE DEFEATS STATE BEER LAW PACT

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 3.—The compromise of last week on beer legislation, arranged by Representative Clinton A. Sowers, representing Republican wets, and Representatives Wilson G. Sarig and James L. Quinn, representing Democratic wets, has gone on the rocks.

William S. Vare has personally blocked acceptance by Sowers of the Democratic proposal for licensing commissions in the state's seven largest counties, Philadelphia, Allegheny, Westmoreland, Luzerne, Delaware, Lackawanna and Montgomery.

Some Democrats also have refused to go along with the compromise. Vare insists that in Philadelphia, at least, Judges of Common Pleas Courts shall issue licenses, a system the compromise applied to smaller counties of the state.

Word of his stand was brought to Philadelphia by Republican City Chairman James M. Hazlett, who has just returned from a visit to Vare in Florida.

SEEKS LOST POWER

Position of the rebellious Democrats has been communicated to Sarig, Quinn and State Chairman Warren Van Dyke, who appears anxious to recapture some of the hold he lost over his party last week when Quinn and Sarig told Gov. Pinchot they would not agree to his plan, and insisted upon a bi-partisan political system of licensing.

The result is to add to the already confused beer situation, increasing the assurance that there will be no state legislation by Friday.

It has been expected that the Sowers bill would be amended tonight, pursuant to the agreement he, Sarig and Quinn reached last week. Vare has upset that.

Whether Vare will agree to the bi-partisan agreement in the other six large counties is debatable, and the picture can and probably will change many times during the day and night as the legislators stumble around, with a goodly number seeking adoption of some system which will put beer in politics to the advantage of themselves or their factions.

The fantastic Democratic scheme for a bi-partisan state board of two members selected by the Republican State Chairman, two by the Democratic State Chairman and one by the Governor, will get nowhere, though the Democrats may try to force the issue.

COUNTY COMMISSIONS

Their other plan for county commissions consisting of one member named by the County Commissioners, one by the Democratic County Chairman and one by the Republican County Chairman, is equally futile.

Democratic willingness to throw the whole license situation into bare-faced politics, provided they can get a share of the advantage which might be gained through favoring this or that license, has not increased the prestige of the party.

Some of the saner members appreciate this, which is the reason they will repudiate Sarig and Quinn, and Van Dyke also if he suuports anything of a similar nature.

The Pinchot plan calls for issuance of manufacturers' licenses by the Alcohol Permit Board. Retail licenses would be issued through the Department of Revenue. Issuance would be almost automatic under the provision of the bills drawn by Attorney General William A. Schnader and introduced by Representative James H. McClure. There would, apparently, not be the chance of favoritism which exists in the commission system.

PINCHOT PLAN BLOCKED

But the Pinchot bills are safely blocked, and beer is deeper in politics than it was as an issue during prohibition. Every counter proposal to the Pinchot plans has at its root some factional self-seeking, and there is a chance that some plain talk may be heard on the floor of the House tonight.

Some Pinchot opponents are meeting his threat to veto the Sowers bill, or the Democrat plan, with a threat to take from the highway fund $5,000,000 for unemployment relief in lieu of the money sought for this purpose through the beer tax.

This is an idle threat. It is doubtful if the Senate would pass such a bill, due to the rural members who wish the road fund undisturbed. If a bill of this nature should pass it would be vetoed, and the veto would easily be upheld.

Michigan Vote First Repeal Strength Test

Ballot by Districts Raises Hopes of Dry Element

DETROIT, April 3.—(AP.)—Michigan blazes an unmapped trail today, as the first state to elect its constitutional convention for consideration of the amendment to repeal national prohibition.

An estimated 900,000 voters will elect 100 delegates to the convention, one from each of the 100 representative districts.

In each district there are two candidates. One is pledged to vote for ratification of the repeal amendment; the other for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment. Thus, when the convention assembles, April 10, it will have no deliberative function to perform—only a formal recording of the sentiment expressed by the voters at the polls.

Although this is the first opportunity voters anywhere have had to render a decisive verdict on national prohibition, state prohibition was a clear-cut issue at the polls last November—and the wets won, repealing the "bone dry" clause in the Michigan Constitution by a vote of 1,022,508 to 475,265.

That was done by a popular majority, Detroit's vote weighing heavily in the balance. Today, however, with the vote in each district standing alone, the chances for repeal are proportionately less and prohibition leaders are basing their hopes principally on that factor.

WISCONSIN NEXT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3.—(AP.)—Wisconsin will pass official judgment on the Eighteenth Amendment tomorrow, with the head of the state's Anti-Saloon League frankly pessimistic of the outcome.

The Rev. Warren Jones, state superintendent of the league, said he conceded the repealists would win.

Fifteen delegates are to be named to the convention which will meet at Madison April 15.

Scranton Policeman Slain by Robbers

SCRANTON, Pa., April 3.—(AP.)—Wounded in a battle with men who tried to hold up a store, Lieut. Lewis Roberts, head of the Criminal Identification Bureau of the Scranton police, died last night.

CHICAGOAN DIES IN BEER WAR

CHICAGO, April 3.—(INS.)—Murdering a soft drink parlor owner and bombing another establishment, gangland today defied State's Attorney Thomas Courtney's campaign to halt the underworld invasion of the legitimate beer industry.

Four hours after the prosecutor summoned a hurried meeting of Chicago's licensed brewers to discuss the gangster strong-arm campaign, George Rusu, 45, was found slain in a bedroom of his soft drink parlor. Deep cuts on his head indicated he had been stabbed and beaten with a blunt object as he slept.

Gunmen before dawn today hurled a black powder bomb into the establishment of Anton Powalski on the far South Side, badly jolting Powalski, two patrons, and the proprietor's family who were asleep upstairs. The bomb did an estimated damage of $1,000.

Police were convinced that the beer racketeers, trying to force dealers to buy $15 a barrel beer for $17, had approached both Rusu and Powalski and found them intractable.

Need Nice Gallows? Real One for Sale

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 3.—(AP.)—Could anyone use a nice gallows?

Cleaning up the basement of the Courthouse, Supervisor Jacob White ran across one on which two men were hanged. White says he would like to sell it, as it is no good in Illinois any more. The state now electrocutes its slayers.

500 Cases Before April Grand Jury

The April grand jury was charged today by Judge Samuel H. Gardner and began consideration of about 500 cases. Ten men and 10 women comprise the jury, with William H. Trimble, 1209 Maple avenue, Turtle Creek, as foreman.

West Virginia U. Seeks R. F. C. Loan

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 3.—Approved by the state Legislature, officials of West Virginia University have petitioned the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for $400,000 with which to erect a men's dormitory, and additions to the women's dormitory.

Construction plans are being rushed under the direction of President John R. Turner, in anticipation of a favorable reply. The dormitory for men would house 360 students and the additional wings to Woman's Hall would provide rooming and dining facilities for 150.

SENATOR DAVIS WANTS PIE, NOT BEER

United States Senator James J. Davis, recuperating at South Side Hospital from a recent operation, longs for a piece of pie.

Lying hardly more than a cork's pop from the Independent Brewing Company plant, where the hum and excitement of beer's return provides "sweet music to his ears," the Senator's one great desire is a big piece of berry pie.

The doctors have cut out his appendix. They have found other ailments—stomach ulcers, intestinal adhesions and gall bladder troubles. They have taken away the Senator's pie.

He complains:

"What is a better dish to set before anyone than a nice juicy berry pie—for breakfast."

Of the commotion in the brewery just over the hospital wall he says:

"That's certainly sweet music. It means prosperity. No—I won't be allowed to drink beer either but then I never did drink beer, even before prohibition."

The Senator expects to leave the hospital Wednesday. Dr. John W. Shirer, attending surgeon, predicts his early return—for another operation.

PREACHERS ASK BAN ON BEER

Thursday midnight was tempered today by a great big IF.

NO LIMIT LIKELY

If the Legislature raises no bars in the meantime, beer will be sold without restriction.

That is, if the prospective dealers can get the beer.

None was willing to push to completion plans for selling the new brew until there was conclusive information from Harrisburg. Almost everyone in the restaurant and hotel business was ready to dispense the beer once they obtain assurance that they may do so.

Restaurant and hotel men hoped for clarification of the situation.

The local breweries had the field to themselves for the first trade, since no shipment can leave the breweries until midnight Thursday.

Beer trucks trundled through the streets today as the Pittsburgh Brewing Company advertised its product with a parade.

'Hoarder' Turns in Counterfeit Coin

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(INS.)—Prompted by the anti-gold hoarding campaign an elderly local citizen turned over to his bank a coin he had saved since he was a boy, only to learn that it was counterfeit.

N. Y. BEER FIGHT BEFORE PEOPLE

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Lehman has carried the beer fight to the state, calling upon New Yorkers last night to support his plan of beer control which he described "as not merely a problem of controlling beer, but of all intoxicating beverages which may be made lawful in the future."

He asked for a state board of five members to administer beer laws.

The Republican members of the Legislature have objected to state control, demanding that county boards direct the licensing of beer dispensers. The Republicans control the Assembly although the Democrats—Mr. Lehman's party—control the Senate.

BEER TAP RESTS WITH PATRONS

It'll all depend upon how Pittsburgh takes to its beer.

If there is enthusiasm in the social swirl for dining and indulging, Hotel William Penn officials revealed today that a tap room of swank and class will be the hotel's contribution.

Tentative plans already have been arranged, Manager F. L. Andrews said. The present Georgian Room off the main lobby will be transformed. A new entrance will be made from Oliver avenue. Canopied and ornate, it will feature an electric car-caller for the patrons' chauffeurs.

CONNELLY MARVELS AT 'CHANGE'

Playwright Mourns Indian's Passing In 15 Years

(Marc Connelly, Pittsburgh's playwright, who returned to his home city for the opening of his Pulitzer prize play, "The Green Pastures," jotted down the following lines for the Sun-Telegraph. Before departing for New York 15 years ago Connelly was a writer for the old Gazette-Times.)

MARC CONNELLY

Memory is such a tricky faculty. Once more looking at the city of my youth after an absence of more than 15 years I have been so battered by a crowd of recollections as to be scarcely able to focus my attention. Nudged by one prompting I would turn to look, only to have another seize me by a mental lapel and spin me around to the opposite direction. Only now, after several days adjustment, have I begun to coordinate recognitions and retrospect.

GEN. McKEESPORT? ? ?

The old fort down at "the Point," as we used to call it, is still here. I have been delighted to learn. The Indians, I am told, are gone. On Smithfield street I look in vain for Conestoga wagons. Now that once thrilling thoroughfare is a bedlam of new fangled trolley cars and phaetons. Braddock himself is long dead with a handsome city standing where he fell, perpetuating his name. Gen.

Recalls Youth Here, Reminisces of Days Agone

McKeesport, too, is in his grave, but surely my recollection of him, tall, erect, smoking wampum with old Chief Monongahela City, every inch the gallant French marchand de bois, is forever engraved on the back of my watch.

CATHEDRAL AN INN

In those days when our young Republic was fighting for its existence the housing problem was acute. Thousands of us slept in the Fort. Occasional travelers were given shelter at the old University of Pittsburgh skyscraper, now a gaunt skeleton of the great institution we used to think it would be.

Mt. Washington, it seems to me, has grown much shorter. Time was when the eagles used it as a landing field. Then the eagles left and Joe Armstrong appeared. Then came the Civil war and I left. Then came 1933 and I appeared again. Then came the Pennsylvania's 12:56, and I got on it and went back to New York. The old town has certainly changed.

FIGHT IMPENDS ON STATE ECONOMY

HARRISBURG, April 3.—(AP.)—Economy is the cry again as the Legislature begins another attempt tonight to provide relief for the unemployed.

A fight impends over the Turner bill, which changes the administrative code, cuts state employes' salaries, wipes out several state bureaus, commissions and departmental deputies, and limits the Governor's executive power.

While the House considers this bill on final reading, with debate expected to hold off a vote until midnight or later, the Senate is to act on the McClure omnibus utility bill.

FINAL ACTION DUE

This measure, permitting the Public Service Commission to regulate issuance of utility securities, and giving the commission control over holding companies, likewise is on final reading.

If passed, it goes to the House.

Gov. Pinchot has announced he will speak to the Legislature about "utilities within the next two weeks."

Pinchot bitterly opposes the Turner bill, whose sponsor, Representative Ellwood J. Turner, of Delaware County, again defended it in a statement last night.

The Governor, while opposing Turner's economy bill, is in accord with demands for reduction of school costs. Last night he asserted proposed savings in school districts, provided in bills before the Legislature, are necessary "to prevent many schools from closing."

He said the cuts will be met "by similar or greater savings in the Department of Public Instruction." These he estimated at $300,000 for the next two years, adding that a reorganization of the department will be effected by April 15 and will include elimination of five bureaus and three deputies.

REVISED PROGRAM

This week a revised legislative program is to be pressed in the House. It eliminates bills previously included to reduce state payments for transportation, vocational education and closed schools.

No reductions are to be made in any state payments to districts, and a special revolving fund of $5,000,000 is to be set up to aid the poorer districts.

Continued in the new program are bills cutting salaries of county and assistant county superintendents, and permitting reductions in teachers' salaries and other fixed local district costs.

Pinchot Proclaims Arbor, Bird Days

HARRISBURG, April 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has issued a proclamation setting April 7 as Spring Arbord Day and April 21 as Bird Day.

He urged that these occasions be observed by planting and conservation of trees and the study and preservation of bird life.

Wise Cracking Under Ban for Traffic Police

MINNEAPOLIS, April 3.—(AP.)—No "smart cracks."

That's the new order by Capt. John T. Hart to motorcycle police in promising a "new deal" to motorists.

He tabooed shouting at motorists, and directed his men to use their hands and motion the car to the curb.

All such "smart cracks" as "What's your hurry?" and "Where's the fire?" must go.

He also told his men not to set "traps" and not to hide behind billboards, oil stations and in stores.

Watchman Killed In Steel Plant Yard

Lawrence Kritcher, 72, watchman for the Firth-Sterling Steel Company, was killed early today when he was struck by a shifting engine in the company yards. He lived at 65 North Grandview avenue, McKeesport.

PINCHOT FIGHTS TAX ON COAL

HARRISBURG, April 3.—Gov. Pinchot today said he was opposed to the plan to levy a 3-mill tax on each ton of anthracite and bituminous coal mined in Pennsylvania. A bill imposing this tax for inspection purposes is on the House second reading calendar tonight. The Governor said:

"This is no time to burden the coal industry with new taxes."

The bill is part of the program drafted by the Sterling Committee on Legislative Finances.

Pittsburgh Youth Wins Class Honor

Remo J. Iannucci, of 7306 Tioga street, has been appointed a member of the sophomore blazer committee at Catholic University, Washington, D. C., according to an announcement made today.

SISTER, FIANCEE SHARE ESTATE

A three-line will today contained romance and pathos. It was the last testament of Joseph I Crowley, of Munhall, who died several weeks ago in the Homestead Hospital. The will:

"I hereby bequeath all that I possess to my fiancee, Miss Catherine Bridges, and my sister, May Cunningham, in equal shares after all expenses have been paid."

The will was made March 7 and probated today.

For nine years they had known each other, during the last two of which Crowley had been unemployed, according to Miss Bridges.

VET BONUS CUT ORDERS DRAWN FOR ACTION

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Instructions to field workers were prepared today by the Veterans' Administration to carry out President Roosevelt's order for a cut of $400,000,000 in annual benefits to war veterans.

The Chief Executive's action hits all along the line, with officials indicating that new construction at veterans' hospitals will be held up unless the improvements already are under way. Some institutions may be closed.

BIGGEST SAVINGS

The biggest savings, about $100,000,000, will come through removing from the benefit lists all veterans whose injuries or sickness are non-service connected, unless the victims are totally or permanently disabled. Those totally or permanently disabled — even though not rendered so by service—will receive only $20 a month as compared with $40.

The new allowances, effective July 1, for service connected cases are cut a flat 20 per cent and a new system of five ratings of disability established. The new ratings and allowances:

Ten per cent disability, $8 monthly; 25 per cent, $20; 50 per cent, $40; 75 per cent, $60 and 100 per cent, $80.

NEW CLASSIFICATIONS

In-between ratings, such as 41 per cent disabled, are discontinued and all such cases will be reclassified. All payments for temporary disabilities of a non-service character and free hospitalization for such disabilities will be eliminated.

Under one regulation veterans of the Spanish-American War, Philippine insurrection and Boxer rebellion and the widows and children of World War veterans will continue to receive present pensions under a "presumption" that the pension is payable because of service-connected disability, but the government can challenge this "presumption."

Officials said that there also would be a cut of 10 per cent on July 1 in pensions for Civil and Indian War veterans and their widows under the new economy law.

New Pension Schedule

MANY VETERANS IN DISTRICT AFFECTED

Sweeping changes in the compensations of war veterans from the Pittsburgh district are expected as the result of President Roosevelt's economy bill.

At the Pittsburgh office of the United States Veterans' Administration, the staff is marking time until the new regulations arrive from Washington. The new rules are expected in about one week, according to E. R. Benke, manager.

Approximately 26,000 veterans in Western Pennsylvania and four counties of West Virginia have been receiving compensation, according to Benke, and of these, only about 9,400 cases were based on injuries alleged to have been received in direct combat.

The other 16,600 men may be in danger of having their compensation eliminated.

As soon as official regulations are received, Benke stated, each case will be reviewed. In most cases the examination will be entirely from the records, but in some the men will be summoned for new physical tests.

From present indications, even the soldiers who were disabled in actual fighting, may have their $100 a month compensations cut to $80.

Veterans' insurance, where premiums have been met, is not affected, it is reported.

At present the offices of the Veterans' Administration in the House Building, Smithfield and Water streets, are unable to give positive information pending the arrival of the new regulations.

MEDICS TO AID CHILD HEALTH

Organization of county medical groups throughout the state to cooperate with the State Emergency Child Health Committee today was under way for health examinations of more than 1,000,000 children now fed by the State Emergency Relief Board.

Dr. S. McC. Hamill, of Philadelphia, has been named chairman by Gov. Pinchot. Besides committee members from the 60 county medical groups, membership will include hospitals, welfare and social groups. Dr. Hamill said:

"The purpose of this statewide movement is to meet an emergency which, insofar as the health of our children is concerned, is much more threatening than any situation that arose during the war. It is not alone the million children that require careful health examinations, advice and followup, but more especially the thousands of children in families on the borderline of starvation, those families in which the income has been reduced to almost nothing."

Pinchot is receiving recommendations for county chairmen appointments.

Powder... cleans teeth as nothing else can

OUTLASTS TOOTHPASTE 2 to 1

Doubly Efficient At Only Half The Cost

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer — Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Dr. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

They Satisfy

..all you could ask for!

Just two words...

Yes, I have heard about two words; and now and then three words—but "They Satisfy" means "To gratify fully."

Why do these two words "they satisfy" fit Chesterfields? Because Chesterfield Cigarettes are milder. Because Chesterfield Cigarettes taste better.

Chesterfield's way of blending and cross-blending fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos brings out better flavor and aroma.

They Satisfy!

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Mayor Herron proved himself a real globetrotter by his appearance Saturday at the old microphone. He sat right down before the twin circles and made his radio debut as Mayor with friendly greetings and a wide smile that was reflected in his voice. He followed the precedent set down by President Roosevelt in using radio to speak his thanks and outline his hopes.

* * *

Dear Miss Reiter: Sorry that your answer has been delayed. Thought your letter referred to plums and sent it to the Garden department for details. Find out now that it was not information about plums that you wanted but slums.

* * *

Now that the yarn problem is out of the way, do you want to exercise your brain on this problem relating to jugs?

A man has three jugs, eight-gallon, five-gallon and three-gallon. The eight-gallon jug is filled, let'S say with water, the other two are empty. The problem is to pour and repour to get two equal portions of four gallons each.

Paul J. Rothrauff sent it on. He'd better send the answer, too.

* * *

Mrs. H. B. Livingston—For accurate information as to the progress of the Wendell estate through the New York courts, write to the Surrogate, New York City.

* * *

May we report that the unknown gallant who lent his handkerchief to the lady sitting next to him in the Squirrel Hill street car is being thanked by the lady who was too embarrassed at the time to thank him herself.

* * *

If birdies annoy you by fighting their images in the window pane, Mrs. Ethan suggests that a piece of paper over the glass will solve your difficulty.

* * *

Answer to Globe Trotter—No bill passed at Harrisburg permitting the use of 1932 license plates with the payment of $5. After September 1 new license plates are procurable at half rate.

* * *

Have all my scouts working and as soon as those cherry blossoms in Washington get in full bloom your letters referring to same will be answered. Too notorious a poor guesser to hazard the date at this time.

* * *

Have had more requests for jig saw puzzles from the various hospitals. The Legion Post at Oakmont is collecting puzzles, too, with the aid of the Boy Scouts. If you live in Oakmont and have puzzles to give let me know and a scout will call for it.

'Fool' Wynn Wealthiest Air Star

By AIRCASTER

Some oddities along radio row: Long Beach, Cal., school kids are playing on the sands, listening to lessons via KHJ, while their schoolhouses are being rebuilt after the quake.

Easy Aces originate their programs in Chicago, but use "Manhattan Serenade" for a theme.

Ed Wynn, billed as the perfect fool, is perhaps the richest of all radio performers.

George Givot, foremost of the Greek dialecticians, is a Russian, and Jack Pearl, a Hungarian, ranks first in German dialect, but can't speak a word of that language.

The Mail Bag

In which we turn our attention to some of the customers' queries:

A. J. V., Pittsburgh: Benny Meroff, on those Cantor programs, is George Givot, the "Greek Ambassador." Teddy Bergman played Jack Pearl, and Larry Ellinger, a discovery of Cantor's, Ed Wynn.

Clark M., Swissvale: Ted Lewis started a thrice-weekly late dance series over CBS March 23 on a Tuesday-Thursday-and-Sunday at 11:30 p. m. schedule. Only the Sunday programs are carried by WJAS, the CBS outlet.

C. H. R., East End: Elias Breeskin is broadcasting from WOR, Newark, N. J.

Flora F., Glassmere, Pa.: Betty and Bob are Beatrice Churchill and Don Ameche. Ameche also appears on the First Nighter programs.

Daytime Plea

Mrs. R. Bonham, of Springdale, Pa., expresses a plea for fewer tiresome daytime programs and "more of the Banjoleers, Annabelle Jackson, James Melton, Jack Benny, Phil Cook and symphony orchestras."

Cook, by the way, begins a weekly series on KDKA tonight.

Lewis Munnell, WJAS baritone and staff announcer, once sang with the Philadelphia Orchestra . . . Adrian R. Cooper wrote a little 30-minute playlet for the KQV Players one night . . . And called it "The White Fugitive." To date it's been running eight weeks.

Alicia Fuller, KQV pianist, is working on a composition inspired by the recent Pittsburgh flood.

Ann Butler, the newest of the NBC build-ups, is setting a new comedy pace and has an extraordinary bit of musical support . . . Among those in the musical outfit on her program are Andy Sanella, Frank Banta, Sam Herman and Lou Raderman, all of them virtuosi in their own right . . .

Actor Interprets Play to Churchgoers

Richard B. Harrison, Negro actor who portrays the role of "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," last night gave a religious interpretation of the play before a congregation which crowded East End Christian Church. The Whispering Trio and George Randall, baritone, also members of the cast, sang.

Children Present 'Family' Program

Talented Pittsburgh kiddies present a 30-minute program for children during the thrice-weekly Sun-Telegraph Family broadcast on WCAE today at 4:45 under the direction of Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum.

CLASSIFIED ADS ARE AMONG THE GREATEST MONEY-SAVERS KNOWN.

Have You the Room I Want?

I am a stranger in Pittsburgh, I just arrived, Many are coming "in" NOW, I want to be near my work, but in a pleasant location, I want a homelike room with nice people. I am only one of hundreds of young men that want the same.

I do not know your street names so I shop up and down the Sun-Telegraph "To Rent—Rooms" advertisements—not up and down the street for signs. You probably have just the room I am looking for. Won't you help me to find your room by advertising it in the "To Rent—Room" want ads of the Sun-Telegraph. Phone GRant 5400.

Today

Spaniard from beyond the Pyrenees.

UNCLE SAM still interests himself in the Seminole Indian, a little in his body, a great deal in his soul, which insists on remaining pagan. It is stated seriously that the government could board all remaining Seminole Indians in first-class style in Miami hotels for less money than it costs to fuss over and interfere with them.

A former Indian commissioner said to the old Indian, Tiger Tom:

"Tom, how many wives have you? Three? Too many. Choose the one you really like, and kick out the other two."

Old Tom, sat deep in thought, resigned, knowing that he must try to act like a good Christian, and "kick out two," presumably the oldest. His conscience awoke and he said to the Christian commissioner:

"No, you do it."

The commissioner looked at the three wives, especially at the oldest ones that had contributed many babies to Tiger Tom, to measles, and the Indian burying ground. Then he dropped the subject, to take it up by mail, later. What the two old squaws would have done to the commissioner is a matter of no uncertainty.

DR. ASHE at this time is rushing on to Caxambas Island, that looks out upon the Gulf of Mexico. Thin streamers of white herons fly against the sky, toward the West.

It is dry here, birds and land animals follow the water to the gulf watershed. You pass under a fine arch across the road, announcing "Collier County."

Barron Collier owns that whole county, except little patches here and there, about one million five hundred thousand acres. And how hard he works at his advertising and other business in New York, to continue owing it.

He has thousands of acres of beautiful cypress trees, their trunks, swollen at the base, nearly always in water. He owns fertile land and fisheries, has built a city, complete, with park, hotel, city hall, school and jail, and dug endless miles of canals. He will be able to say at the last judgment:

"While I lived down there, I spent time and money improving the place."

That must be his reward.

The real owners and beneficiaries are the peaceful animals, pleased that cougars and wild cats have been driven out by white men that like to shoot. The raccoons in the trees, the "loggerhead" or "snapping" turtle that drag their houses across the highway looking for a better canal, the birds, all protected.

Their happiness more than makes up for millions of dollars poured in that will stay in.

A GASOLINE driven ferry boat carries the car across a narrow bayou to Caxambas Island. See it some day in your travels. From the high point, a heavily wooded earth mound, looking out from the top of an old abandoned building, you see some of the ten thousand islands, all built up by mango trees fighting against the salt gulf, as they fight the ocean on the east side.

Uncle Sam owns those long stretches of water and islands and protects all wild life there, except the fish. They can take care of themselves.

The highest hill in Southern Florida is made of clam and oyster shells thrown away by Indians that ate the contents long ago. And below your feet the Indians lie buried.

They knew they would be safe from rising waters and big cats there. They are not safe from white men. The Smithsonian Institution took away two hundred of their skeletons, last year.

VISIT CAXAMBAS ISLAND. The Florida East Coast Railway will take you there in Pullman car comfort, and if you are near enough to the Indian to like fishing, you will be pulling out a jumping, fighting tarpon soon after you arrive.

Go to the good island hotel, "Marco," of Marco City, a tiny town on the island, only industry fishing, and a clam factory. See H. J. Kemp. He will tell you everything, how some come to fish, some for skeletons, some for scenery, some, from museums, for the marvellously colored night moths, some for their nerves, some to get away from human beings.

ALAS, THE most interesting things are crowded out because of time wasted with Billy Bowlegs and Chief Tiger Tail. The cow that tried to get nourishment out of water hyacinths, the strange story of these plants that choke canals and lakes, the co-operation of the cow and blackbirds against the woodticks, the story of the tumbling porpoises that fought sharks victoriously, the Cornell man who has a shark factory on Pine Key and plans to make kid gloves from the lining of sharks' stomachs, all this must be left out and much more.

Even the real estate investment suggestion must wait until another day. That is not a topic to be handled hastily or in few words.

SEE YOUR COUNTRY AND FORGET ABOUT YOUR DEPRESSION.

Oh, yes, completely forgotten. Professional fishermen on Caxambas Island get one cent a pound for mullet, four cents for mackerel. What do you pay, at retail? Is there something wrong with our methods of distributions?

In April of 1933 folk still have the same urge to go on pilgrimages as in Chaucer's time, but resorts near or far, mostly near, are their aim.

The Howard Evanses and their daughters Evelyn and Laura who've been traveling about for some time are now in California, and have been at the Desert Inn, Palm Springs. They have as their guests Charles W. Fairbanks and H. Carlartt, of Pasadena, Cal.

The H. F. Devenses, of the Schenley Apartments, are at always popular Atlantic City, where they are stopping at the Chalfonte - Haddon Hall.

ACCESSORIES ARE IMPORTANT AS ENSEMBLE IDEA DEPARTS

BEIGE, AS a glove color, is being worn again. With the gradual departure of the ensemble idea in dresses and coats, accessories take on a new importance — they are suited more than ever to each individual. There are certain women who have never deserted the beige glove, in spite of every fashion, indication toward black and darker colors.

* * *

WHILE THE general trend is toward leathers and fabrics in dull finish, there are many gloves in glace kid—such as the glove in today's sketch. It is in the new, deeper-cuff gauntlet shape, with self-colored stitchings that follow the line of the cuff on the outside, but on the palm-side turn sharply toward the edge and finish there.

* * *

THE HAT, of matching beige, is of felt. Taking the general direction of the cloche, it alters its brim a bit by turning sharply up toward the crown at the left side, so that only one eye and brow are visible. Like many of the newer hats, it is worn tilted sharply forward, so that the edge of the brim is lower than the level of the browns, and the hair at the back of the neck is visible.

* * *

BOTH THE bag and the shoe in the sketch are of black pin seal, both fastening with a butterfly clip. The bag is a modified pouch, full at the bottom and flat at the top, with a deep flap but no handle. The shoe, built on opera pump lines, has an extension of its vamp that comes up high on the instep, almost to the ankle.

Tube City Catholic Women Fight for Clean Politics

Alternate meetings have been in the form of open forum discussion, with various members presenting papers on educational subjects. In addition, charitable work among the needy has been undertaken.

Although the membership is restricted to Catholic women, the organization is not associated with any other society, fraternal or political, and has as its only purpose the betterment of civic conditions and recognition for its membership.

Officers are Mrs. Gertrude O'Shea, president; Mrs. Sue Traeger, vice president; Mrs. Eva Crossen, treasurer; Miss Margaret Gorman, secretary, and Mrs. Agnes Mullen, chairman of the program committee.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Regarding the alleged "misbehavior" at the Friars' Club affair for Bernie—you didn't do anything out of order at all . . . The committee for the "Saturday Night Boys" at the club called me about it. They said to tell you that the first they knew about anyone criticizing you for "going gay" was when they read it in your "Portrait" column—and they "regret exceedingly" that S. Jay Kaufman "appointed himself a committee of none" to remonstrate with you for pulling a shady quip, considering that before you were called on—their own members and toastmaster went in for levity, etc. . . . The Saturday Nite Boys, they added, and the Friars' Club as a whole—felt, and still do, that you are a most welcome guest at all times. They appreciate the nice comments you've published, too. They urge you, then, to overlook the actions of S. Jay Kaufman, for they said they are not in accord with his actions. They want you to come to the club whenever you feel like it. . . . So now do you feel better, you big baby? . . . Oh, yes, Flippen, Piermont and the others said when you come there the next time, be sure to bring some more of "those honeys" . . . Whatever they may be!

Patrick Kearney's suicide was caused directly by a play company—a dramatic hock shop . . . The playwright, who dramatized Dreiser's "American Tragedy," and who wrote "A Man's Man" and other plays (you liked his "Old Man Murphy," too), was under a five-year contract with this play firm. The sole purpose of the contract, they tell writers, is to help them over the "rough spots"...Kearney was so broke, and had wearied of asking his friends and pals for meals, that he sold his play, "Veiled Eyes," to Carroll Sachs for $1,200 cash . . . The play company, however, stepped in and took the 12 C's because Kearney was under contract to them. Kearney begged them to give him $50 a week for six weeks, so he could get on his feet, but they refused . . . So he turned on the gas and went to sleep . . . You were usually nice to him in print, Walter, and he told people you always shot square with him—although you never met him.

Jane Vance, ex-Paul Whiteman canary, refused to wear her engagement ring for fear, she said, it would spoil her career—so Dick Stabile, the terrific sax tooter with Double-B's band, packed her up and sent her back . . . Johnny Hudgins is blind and in a hospi..., poor fellow . . . "Central Airport," the Warner flicker which caused them so much trouble on the coast (and they had to remake almost half of it) because the commercial flying companies squawked plenty, has now put them in a jam in the East. Airport officials are indignant . . . It's a son at the Earle B. Mountains . . . Joan Crawford and Doug Fairbanks, Jr., both signed a wire to you thanking you for hitting above the belt during their trials with the press.

Izzy called. Said he doesn't know how "The Back-to-the-Farm Movement" will work out—but, anyway—it's better than the present back-to-the-wall routine . . . Say, lissen—when you say your prayers, do you include Elinson's name? . . . Phil Stack called. He hopes the 3.2 beer is never as stale as youknowho's jokes! . . . Sidney, in discussing the movie boners, said they used a phone directory in "If I Had A Million," which they don't. It's a City Directory . . . Let's tease him a little.

There is a new ink on the market, which may be a boon... It cannot be eradicated from paper, eliminating chances of forgery, but will wash out of materials and leave your paws cleansed more quickly than ordinary ink. . . Norman Anthony's biggest magazine hit has incorporated many of the better features from his "Manhattan," which folded. . . The bally thing now is a breezier magazine. . .Here's a grand item from the April Mencken mag's piece called "The Theatre Goes Broke". . . It says that during the 1932 season, there were more theatrical ticket agencies on Broadway than legitimate productions! . . That Lippman "Impossible Interviews" (with you) drawing in Vanity F.—by Covarrubias is swelegant clowning. Wonder who wrote the caption?

Norman Frescott and Sunny Fuller of the Hollywood are really serious . . . Susan Hart, formerly of the same rendezvous, is the Sweet Hart of one of your best contributors, Sid Weiss-guy . . . Sardi, the restaurant man, a real gentleman and a credit to Italy, for whom you went to bat on Wednesday, is so grateful. He says you are a nice boy—and next time you come in—he will cook your spaghetti himself . . . Morton.

Skeedmore's stuff lately has had so many errors you wouldn't have enough space to show him up . . . It appears he is reprinting stuff from the files of many years ago without checking up to find out if conditions and things pertaining to the items have changed, which they have! . . . I'm saving them . . . But here's what you've been waiting for! . . . Eddie, who also should call his stuff "A Comedy of Errors," and who wants to play columnist—last week told a touching tale of Lynn Overman, the actor. He reported with that verve and dash of his, and that sangfroid, how poor Lynn had a lotta tough breaks all in one week. He stated (among other newsy things) that Overman lives on a farm at Red Hook, N. Y. And that he had a brush fire. And that it was such a fire that his house was completely destroyed because of the town's horse-drawn fire engines . . . Well, in the first place, Lynn doesn't live in that town. His address is Rhinebeck, N. Y. In the second place, darling, both towns have motor fire wagons, not horse-drawn ones—and haw!—in the third plotz—Lynn's home didn't burn down! . . . It probably wasn't Lynn Overman, but Lynn, Massachusetts!——Your Girl Friday.

'Brief Moment' Given By Playhouse

The Cooperative Playhouse of the Y. M. & W. H. A. gave S. N. Behrman's "Brief Moment" last night and will repeat it tomorrow. It is like his "Biography," so thin as to be almost transparent. There is a heroine of elastic virtue for whom all the men fall and go boom. She is surrounded on all sides by epigrams, dates and uncertainty. The dialogue is very brilliant, but seems to have been written to see how many unprintable words can be used in each act of the three.

The cast was well selected and did valorous work in a very difficult task. M. Bower Maze and Alexander Shaw were exceptionally effective. Milt Brauman as a Russian film director, played an interesting bit well. Martha Clare made a creditable showing as the shady heroine, while Dorothy Figley was sweetly aggressive as the sister of 'Roderick. Harold G. Daniels, Herbert Osgood, John Johns and Cecile Browdy completed the cast.

The stage setting evoked much admiration for its practical realization of a bookcase combined with a Volstead bar.

Jackie Cooper To Portray Prodigy

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 3.—Good stories for children are hard to find, but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer thinks it has an ideal vehicle for Jackie Cooper in "Buddies," the adventures of an orphan who becomes a $1,000,000 child prodigy.

A screen original by Edgar Allen Woolf and Howard Emmett Rodgers, this picture will be begun very soon, and will bring Jackie before the camera for the first time since "Divorce in the Family."

There is a grand part in "Buddies" for Marie Dressler—the keeper of a theatrical boarding-house who adopts the orphan—but it looks as if she will be too busy with "Dinner at Eight and "Tugboat Annie" to play the role.

Jackie

Since you've seen the hero of "Skippy," he's grown a bit, added numerous items to his collection of weapons, and has gone to school like any other boy. Jackie is 9 years old, will be 10 on September 15.

He is still the nice, friendly kid who brought the lump in your throat when "The Champ" lay dead and the waif cried for him to come back.

A swell story goes the rounds about one of the studio fashion designers. Some time back he lectured before a group of women. After he had finished, a very stout matron bustled up to him.

"I heard your speech," she gushed, "but won't you give me a little personal advice. What colors should I wear?"

The designer tried to get away, but she pinned him down. Finally, he said:

"Madam, God colored the butterfly in red and yellow and the elephant in gray."

Past disputes all forgotten, Janet Gaynor has signed a new contract with the Fox studio. It means she will stay there for at least a year, and there is an option on another 12 months. It was four years ago that the tiny star first signed with the company. She made a tremendous hit in "Seventh Heaven," split with the studio over later stories, came back to work and has been there ever since.

As I get it, Norma Talmadge is studying dancing to join the road company of the musical, "Flying Colors." She would take the part played in New York by Tamara Geva. Gladys DuBois (she's Bob Armstrong's constant companion) has written a book of poems, "Wives Come First." They're modern verse with a disillusioned note. . . . Friday was the birthday of Walda Winchell (she's Walter's daughter, you know) and the youngster is that proud of her new doll carriage.

That was the party of Joan Bennett and Gene Markey in which Doug Fairbanks sat in the gold room of the Beverly Wilshire. He didn't bring a girl. . . . And Mary Brian was with Jack Oakie again. . . . After spending several days with Sue Carrol, Dixie Lee moved to her mother's house to await Bing Crosby's arrival. . . . Mack Sennett was so anxious to get Richard Hemingway for a comedy lead that he had the actor fly out here from New York. . . . When Ann Dvorak paid her first visit to the Warner lot, she went directly to Busby Berkley's set to renew her acquaintance with chorus girl chums of days gone by. Ann came back from her trip very slender, and with a deep tan from the African sun. It seems that she didn't let her mother know she was coming home. Just phoned from San Pedro.

Flaps

Edna M. Harris is the celestial flapper in "The Green Pastures," Marc Connelly's noted play that begins its second week in Nixon.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Green Pastures" will begin its second and final week in the Nixon tonight. The play is presented by the original company that opened in New York more than three years ago—with one exception. This is in the role of Gabriel, now played by Doe Doe Green. The two Gabriels preceding him died and both were succeeded by their understudies.

Jerry Mayhall, formerly associated with the local production staff of Warner Brothers, has been engaged to arrange the orchestration for the coming musical production of the Pitt Cap and Gown Club, "All to the Point," which will be presented in the Nixon the week of April 24.

Katharine Cornell will not make a tour this summer with her latest success, "Alien Corn." She made an extensive trip with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," last season, but has decided that she will take a vacation this year. She plans to close the play about the middle of the summer and go abroad.

"Alice in Wonderland," which Eva Le Gallienne produced in her Civic Repertoire Theater in New York early in December, has been moved to the New Amsterdam Theater that for years was the permanent home of the Ziegfeld "Follies." Josephine Hutchison plays the title role.

Last week Broadway saw only one new play, "The Party's Over," by Daniel Kussell. This week there'll be two, "Tin Soldiers" and "The Tragedy of the Ages," the latter a passion play.

* * *

"Alice in Wonderland," with Mary Pickford as Alice, and the rest of it animated drawings in the Walt Disney manner, is a project being discussed. If made it will be in color. Miss Pickford, looking ahead, asked United Artists to negotiate with Sir James M. Barrie for rights to "Peter Pan," as a possibility for similar treatment.

Fraternity Merger Announced at Pitt

Announcement of the merger of Pi Sigma Gamma with Beta Sigma Omicron, national social fraternities on the University of Pittsburgh campus, was announced today by the organization heads. Mrs. Miriam Weisell, of Cleveland, O., national alumnae secretary and official inspector of the eastern division of Beta Sigma Omicron, was the guest of the chapter over the week-end.

Final Titles Announced For Three New Films

Final titles were announced by Paramount for three of its forthcoming pictures. "Song of the Eagle" has been chosen for the story of beer's return now being produced by Charles R. Rogers with Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, Jean Hersholt, Charles Bickford, Louise Dresser and Andy Devine featured. "Disgraced" is the new name for the production featuring Claudette Colbert and William Harrigan which formerly was known as "Apartment Nine." "Suspended Sentence" will be the title of B. P. Schulberg's production the working title of which was "On Probation." Wynne Gibson and Edmund Lowe will be featured.

Norman Foster Signed For "Careless"

Norman Foster, whose automobile accident recently necessitated his withdrawal from an important screen role, has been signed for the male lead in the RKO Radio screen version of Maurine Watkins' new play, "Careless."

Broadways Of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. RESOLUTE, INDIA-BOUND.—Mr. G—— is responsible for today's yarn. I was sitting in a deck chair this afternoon, trying to steal a little nap, when he planted himself beside me. At the moment, there was nobody in this whole, wide world that I wanted to see less than Mr. G——. But what could I do about it? After all, politeness is the mother of invention. Or am I wrong?

At any rate, as I've already stated, Mr. G—— sat down. He started talking about everything from the price of mosquito netting to the cost of each torpedo that was used in the last five wars. And then he sprang his deuce in the hole.

"Would you be interested in hearing a very good story, sir," he inquired.

"I might, my good man," sez I. "What is it all about?"

And whether you believe it or don't, he actually told a good yarn. It seems to me, though, that I heard it once before, hundreds of years ago. But I'm not quite sure. It might have been two other stories.

However—

A certain chap was driving along in his own car and met with an accident. While in bed he determined that he might as well make some money out of his misfortune. So he planned a suit against a transportation company that had absolutely nothing to do with his accident.

Accordingly, he called in four of his friends and outlined his scheme to them. To his notion, the thing was a cinch.

"Look!" he cried, "all I have to do is to swear that I stepped off a certain trolley car and that the conductor yanked the bell to proceed before I had reached the ground.

"I'll get numbers and things and all you four fellows have to do is to swear that I was injured while getting off that car. It's a cinch. We'll collect plenty of dough and split it five ways. Boys, we can't lose no matter how you look at it."

One of the four friends was a trifle leery. At least, Mr. G—— said he was, and he should know.

"But," said the leery one, "you were nowhere near any trolley car when you were hurt. Don't forget, you were driving your car when the accident occurred. And it'd be terribly foolish to say that you were on the trolley when you weren't near it."

The injured man grew a trifle peeved. And whenever he was peeved, he always had a habit of snorting. So, he snorted.

"What's that got to do with it?" he insisted. "I've already pointed out that it's the easiest thing in the world for me to swear I was on the trolley car. And when I was alighting at my destination the conductor was too hasty in giving the 'go-ahead' signal to the motorman.

"All you fellows have to do is to swear that I was there because you saw the whole thing. The transportation company is licked if you'll do that for me, boys. Yes, sir, they'll be licked plenty. Will you do it?"

But there was another way to look at the situation. They were all pals. And if pals can't help one another, what good are they? So the four agreed to go through with the scheme.

Time—as it always does—passed and the case came to trial. After the jury had been picked and the recess declared, however, the man who had objected to the case in the first place developed a very bad case of cold feet.

He went into conference with himself. And after thinking the whole thing over, he determined to make a clean breast of it to the judge. Why not? Suppose the scheme went screwy?

That afternoon, just before court convened, he went to the judge's chamber and told him the entire plot to defraud the transportation company.

"The witnesses," muttered the guy with the chilled tootsies, "will say that the plaintiff was actually injured while getting off the car. But he wasn't, Your Honor. No, siree. That's not the way it happened, at all."

The judge cleared his throat. He peered over his glasses.

"Well, my good man," he said, "just how did the plaintiff receive his injuries? You say he wasn't near a trolley car on the day in question. If that is the case, the injuries were caused in some other manner. How?"

The mug spoke up.

"He was driving his own car, your honor," he stated, "several days previous to the time he was supposed to be on the trolley. The machine skidded and crashed into a tree. That's how it happened."

The judge was amazed. He pondered long and carefully.

"My good man," he said, "you've done well to tell me the truth about this case. Very well, indeed. But I don't want you to say a word about it to anybody else. I have a plan in mind. Yes, a very good plan indeed.

"Instead of doing anything about this immediately I think I will wait for a portion of the trial. I just want to see how far these perjuring witnesses will go. Remember what I told you. Not a word of this to any one."

A short while later court opened for the afternoon session and the judge listened as though he knew nothing whatsoever about the true story. One by one the witnesses for the injured man walked to the stand and testified that he had actually suffered his injuries while stepping from the trolley car.

The story had been rehearsed so well and so often that the whole thing went off without a single hitch. As Mr. G—— so aptly put it, the injured man was beginning to believe the yarn himself, so well did the witnesses put it over.

They told of seeing their friend stepping down from the car. They saw the conductor yank the bell-rope before the passenger had planted his feet firmly on the ground. The car started off with a jerk, knocking the plaintiff to the ground. They rushed to his assistance. Blah! Blah! Blah!

All this time, of course, the judge knew that the man who was seeking damages hadn't been near a trolley car. Several times during the afternoon he was tempted to pound his gavel, denounce the witnesses and halt the trial. But something held him back.

Late in the afternoon it came time for the transportation company to present its side of the case. And how they presented it!

The judge almost fell from the bench when the company produced six witnesses who swore up and down that the injured man had been intoxicated when he stepped from the trolley car!.....

Boys' Inconsistency About Kissing Puzzles Girl

Do men like nice girls?

Girls who won't pet with every passing stranger—who refuse to pay for an evening's entertainment with a necking party?

Yes; they say they do! To hear them tell it, they spend their days in a futile search for a sweet, modest, old-fashioned girl who abhors loose, free, modern ways. But when at last they meet up with such a girl, what's their reaction?

Do they appreciate her? Do they respect her refusal to pet? And do they eagerly seek another chance to take her out?

Janice has an answer for all those questions. And is it going to be a treat for men readers? Judge for yourself!

Dear Elsie:

I am in somewhat of a quandary about something, and I hope that you can give me a few pointers about it—or perhaps the boys can, since it is about them that I am puzzled.

To kiss them, or not to kiss them—that is the question that I can't seem to settle. And it seems to have me in a corner. I am 19, and I have gone out with quite a few boys—for a while. But I can't seem to keep on going out with them for some reason. I think it is because I don't go in for kissing.

I went with one for about two months, and he seemed to think that because we went out together rather often, I should. I didn't think so. And I haven't heard from him for several weeks now. But I have heard from others that he thought I was "too slow" and "stingy." And I know he liked me, too.

I liked him and thought we were really good friends; but since I didn't take him seriously—I don't want to take any boy seriously yet, and I know that he didn't take me seriously either—I didn't want to do a lot of necking. It seems to me so unnecessary and rather cheap, to kiss every boy I happen to have a few dates with.

HEARD BOYS TALKING

Well, that was my experience. And now boys don't ask me for many dates, although I dress well, am full of fun and try to be interesting. And now for some other things I have heard.

I have been told—and also have heard them at it—that the boys don't speak so well of a girl who does kiss them all. I was at a dance not long ago, and I happened to hear three boys talking about a girl in our crowd. We have always thought she was a nice girl, although we know she does go in for quite a bit of necking.

But these boys were laughing about her among themselves, and calling her a "hot number," and altogether their attitude toward her was not an attitude I'd want them to have toward me. They weren't saying anything really bad about her, mind. They were just laughing about how many of them she had petted, and how they could always count on petting if they dated her. And they didn't seem to be giving her much respect.

THINKS IT UNFAIR

The whole thing seems to me horribly unfair and inconsistent. What is the matter with boys, anyway? They are forever clamoring about "nice girls"—yet it seems that they insist on the girls being "not so nice" when it comes to dates—and then laugh at them when they try to live up to date specifications. I wonder what other girls think of this?

And I hope some of the boys will try to explain this riddle to me, too. The explanation had better be good, because I am mad. I know a lot of other girls who are, too! JANICE.

That's a splendid letter, Janice; and personally, I'm willing to wager that some man will appreciate your attitude some day, and make you glad, always, that you kept yourself for him. But I, too, would like to know what other girls, and men, think about it.

So what's your answer, Rose and Alice Marie?

And yours, Donald, Jake and Al?

What sort of a comrade do you prefer? What sort of a mate will you choose for a life partner? Someone who has been "choosey"—who has rated himself or herself too highly for promiscuous petting—or someone who has been too big-hearted to ever say "No?"

Kindliness to Animals a Strongly Human Trait, Says Fay King

ANY FOOL CAN KILL! IT ONLY TAKES A GOOD GUN, AND AN INSTANT'S AIM!
A POSE IN WHICH AN ANIMAL SHOWS CONTENT AND AFFECTION IS A FAR GREATER ACCOMPLISHMENT THAN A HUNTER OF BIG GAME AND HIS KILL
IT TAKES TIME, PATIENCE AND KINDNESS TO WIN THE CONFIDENCE AND TRUST OF ANY CREATURE
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Ninety-five persons out of a hundred are fond of animals. Of the remaining five, four may be indifferent, but only one inclined to be cruel.

Animals are always popular in picture or show. But the public prefers to see an animal do some cute thing natural to it, than some extraordinary and dangerous stunt accomplished by a tyranny of fear.

Nothing delights the average person more than to witness that expression of confidence and understanding between some creature and its human friend that comes only through patience and kindness.

Countless clippings are saved about kindly keepers and their contented charges, but how few are interested in a hunter and the defenseless victims of his gun, or trap?

Cruelty is the essence of conceit.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The End of Yellow Fever

Within the past quarter of a century there has been a definite decrease in the number of cases of yellow fever throughout the world. Modern medical sanitation promises that within a short time the world will be entirely free from this dreaded disease.

Dr. Copeland

At one time, yellow fever was a serious menace to the inhabitants of Spain, France, England and the North Atlantic states. It was a common disease in Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone.

For many years the cause of the disease was not known. It remained for Doctor Walter Reed, an American army medical officer, to discover the cause of yellow fever. During an epidemic in Cuba, a great many American soldiers were dying of the disease. Three Americans volunteered to expose themselves to yellow fever in order that a thorough study of the disease could be made by the army doctors.

For a long time it was suspected that yellow fever followed the bite of a mosquito. But because there are many types of mosquitoes, it was difficult to determine which one had a part in carrying yellow fever.

The brave volunteers subjected themselves to the bites of various mosquitoes. The disease was contracted and the type of mosquito carrying yellow fever was discovered. This was indeed a noble experiment. Unfortunately, one of the volunteers died from contracting the disease.

Since the first experiment was conducted, great strides have been made in the prevention and treatment of yellow fever. As a result of this knowledge, Havana is a clean and healthful city. The Panama canal was built only after yellow fever was conquered.

It is now known that yellow fever is definitely caused by a germ carried within the blood of a certain mosquito. This mosquito is given a big name, "Stegomyia fasciata." When the mosquito bites its victim, the germ is passed from the mosquito to man.

The sufferer complains of high fever and his skin becomes yellow. Nausea is present and the patient is restless, the face is congested, the eyes reddened and the patient complains of pain and thirst.

Yellow fever has been almost entirely wiped out by following simple hygienic laws, and the intensive warfare against mosquitoes. Yellow fever is controlled by destroying the particular mosquito which carries the disease. Similar success has resulted in the prevention of malaria, which follows the bite of a mosquito called the "Anopheles."

The victim of yellow fever requires careful medical attention and constant nursing.

Lee Chow Volunteers to Guard Brixton

Harry Underwood's query was like the release of springs setting a machine in motion. It was the question for which we all had been subconsciously waiting, even since Lee Chow, Mary and I followed by the men carring Samuel Brixton's inert body, had come to the place in the winding trail where my father, Hugh Grantland and Phillip Veritzen were waiting.

"Right you are." My father's reply was prompt. "We do not wish to shave the time, and we shall be able to make it with a comfortable margin of time if we start right away. But what about Brixton? It seems inhuman to leave him alone, yet—"

"If I may be permitted to make one small suggestion," Lee Chow's voice calm and slow as always, broke into the conversation.

"Of course." The four other masculine voices sounded as one.

"I am an old man, and because of my recent—illness—no longer a strong one," the Chinese began, and there was a faint, elusive note of mournfulness in his voice. It brought back a fear Hugh had voiced to me during Lee Chow's convalescence from the deadly poison concealed in the spring that darted out from the sealed envelope in the secret compartment of Marion's strong box.

"I'm afraid Lee Chow isn't telling the truth about that poison," Hugh had said apprehensively. "He assures me that it all can be eliminated from his system in time, but—it doesn't seem possible after what we saw."

UNPLEASANT MEMORIES

The measures Lee Chow himself had devised had saved his life, but he had been very ill for many days, and I wondered now with Hugh if he never would be well again. I found myself baffled also, as always, by the query unsolved for so many years, not to be answered until Marion's coming of age, as to the mysterious contents of that lock box.

That Lee Chow knew the contents of that knobby envelope, I was as certain as I was that no one else would ever dare to open that package, with death so diabolically concealed within it. Not even the elaborate precautions Lee Chow had taken against anyone else being injured, as he had been, would ever alleviate my nervous horror of the thing.

It had taken but a second for that dread series of memories to flash across my brain, and when Lee Chow, after a pause, went on speaking, my attention was focused with the rest upon his utterances.

"I have neither the strength nor the quickness to be of use to you in this attack," he went on, "but I can remain with Mr. Brixton, so that if he needs ministrations I can give them. I will ask only one thing. Some of these miscreants may come down this way if they escape your clutches. I would be armed better than I am."

SUPPLIED WITH WEAPONS

"You shall have anything you wish," Hugh Grantland said, but I noticed with surprise that there was no relief in his voice, such as one would expect when an old and frail friend decides to stay away from a dangerous position. Instead, I wondered if I fancied that his calm voice held an undercurrent of apprehensive solicitude.

The men crowded around the elderly Chinese, and from each hand there passed to his some object unseen by Mary and me, but which we knew well were deadly weapons. And then we left the little opening in the trees, and began ascending the winding trail, Philip Veritzen and Harry Underwood in front, Mary and I next and my father and Hugh Grantland bringing up the rear.

My nerves began to tingle with a sense of high adventure and danger. It was not carelessness but intention that had placed us in the center of that advancing party.

It was my father's voice, low but pregnant with meaning, that caught my ear just after the ascent had begun.

"Do you think he meant that about being too old and weak to help us, or has he some plan of his own in view?"

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY, and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

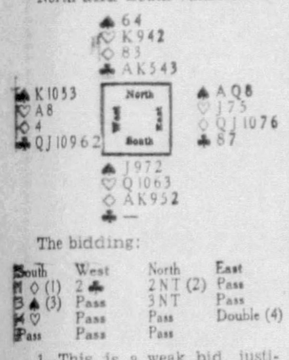
Defense Tenaces—Asset or Liability?

The tenace positions in defending hands are puzzles. Leading a suit containing tenaces often gives Declarer his contract. On the other hand, it is quite possible that the partner of the player charged with the lead may hold an honor completing a sequence, and the lead of the suit will assure a set. These remarks are based upon a recent letter from Dr. E. Reed Whittemore, of New Haven, Conn., who points out that contracts which may easily be beaten at Double Dummy play are frequently made, more often due to the errors made by opponents in tenace play than to any other defensive mistake. Frequently you hear, "A heart lead would have set him," and the reply, "I hated to lead from my King."

Dr. Whittemore, in illustrating this principle, sends the hand below, in which he was "out on a limb" against strong antagonists. However, one held the spade King, the other the Ace-Queen, and what promised to be a cold bottom at Duplicate play turned out to be a "top on the board."

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
♢ (1)	2 ♣	2 N T (2)	Pass
♠ (3)	Pass	3 N T	Pass
♡	Pass	Pass	Double (4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This is a weak bid, justified by strong support if partner bids a major.

2—A close question. Some action seems indicated.

3—With poor notrump distribution, South decides on a desperate attempt to find a major "fit." He must show spades first.

4—A weak Penalty Double, but East probably saw South squirming.

Dr. Whittemore thus comments on the play:

"The Club Queen was opened, and with at least two spades and the trump Ace to lose, the one faint hope seemed to lie in a crossruff. Spades were discarded on the club Ace-King and the diamond King cashed, but when West ruffed the diamond Ace with the heart 8, defeat looked certain. However, West did not realize on what a shoestring South's spade bid was made, so he led another club, which South ruffed and again led a diamond. After going into a huddle, West ruffed with the Ace (a bad play, saddling himself with the lead and allowing a spade discard from Dummy). This time a spade was led, but it was too late. The hand was crossruffed out, making the doubled contract."

Criticism of West's play is easy, but had best be attempted by those who never made a similar mistake.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

At an Hotel

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I wonder if you will be so kind as to help me?

1—I am going to attend a concert shortly. It is to be in a large city and I shall be staying at a hotel. I am in doubt as to the correct way of ordering a taxicab from my room? Will you please tell me in detail just what to expect, and so forth?

2—After leaving the concert, how do I arrange to return to the hotel? LULU.

The most convenient and safest thing for you to do is to ask the hotel desk about making arrangements for a taxicab to take you to the concert and to have the same driver call for you after the concert. The clerk at the desk will be glad to make any arrangement of this kind for you during your stay.

Thank-You Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiancee would like to know if it is proper to send thank-you cards for presents received at a shower? PHIL.

Not thank-you cards, sir, but thank-you notes. That is, the polite and appreciative bride-to-be writes a charming note of thanks to every guest who brought or sent her a gift to the shower. The day after the shower, if this is possible . . . but, in any event, as soon as she possibly can after the shower. And these notes should be written even if she had an opportunity of thanking each one at the shower.

April 1 Summons Takes Tailors To Morgue

It was open house at the morgue yesterday, and all the tailors were there.

They called to "identify" a man killed in a railroad wreck, whose coat bore certain tailor shop marks.

It was explained to Deputy Coroner John T. McQuaid, that Saturday they had been called by a man representing himself as a morgue official who asked them to come to the morgue Sunday to aid in the identification of the victim—who wasn't there.

Some were insistent when told no such victim had been brought in, and refused to agree that it might have been an April fool joke, Saturday having been that famous day.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP POLICE IN NIGHT CLUB

POLITICS

Politicians of State Watching Pittsburgh

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, April 3.—Pittsburgh and Allegheny County members of the Legislature are thinking as much about the political changes at home, whereby John S. Herron succeeded Charles H. Kline as Mayor, as they are about the muddled situation which confronts them in Harrisburg. The Pittsburgh situation, as a matter of fact, is of interest to legislators from all parts of the state, for on the developments in the western city may depend the color of the next state-wide primary campaign.

Mr. Shields

It is accepted here as a matter of course that Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh will be the first of the Kline regime to go when Herron is officially elected Mayor by City Council. Herron is cold to Walsh's desire to finish out the year as head of the police department.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt is another who is to be displaced in the new administration.

A third replacement will be in the city treasury, where the veteran Richard W. Thompson has been serving since Roy Schooley was removed by Kline, following an indictment on which he has never stood trial because of illness.

There will be other changes, but they will not come suddenly, and not until a month after Herron formally takes over the reins will he have completed the major shifts.

* * *

Monaca Club Barrier To Barry's Ambition

For Walsh's place, Inspector Albert Beebe is in the lead. Inspector John Barry would have had the preference, but the operation of the Monaca Club in his district so openly and flagrantly is a barrier which the new administration would not care to face as a hurdle in the primary when Herron seeks the Republican nomination.

Assistant City Solicitor Thomas Benner is being boosted for Waldschmidt's place. He has some Common Pleas Court Judges interested in his promotion, and they have spoken to friends of Herron on the subject. They were referred directly to the acting Mayor, though some discussion of the matter is understood to have gone on between Herron and the friends approached by the Judges.

Herron is reported to be looking for some recognized financial expert to take the place of Thompson. He intends to hold out the bait that if his administration can be intrenched in public favor the appointment will not be any stop-gap, running only until January, but will be continuous for four years thereafter.

That, of course, is problematical, for there apparently are three Mayoralty candidates in the field. This observation is based on various appearances.

In the case of Herron there is no room for doubt. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination just as much as though he had officially announced himself.

* * *

Witherow, Mackrell Prospective Candidates

William P. Witherow is the preference of the Citizens' Committee, though he has said nothing publicly on the subject. To friends, however, and to politicians outside the camp of Herron and Senator James J. Coyne, his desires are well known, and he has the support of the group with which he is associated.

There remains Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. Mr. Mackrell is reticient, he says he does not care for the place, but he must not be very vehement in his disinclination, otherwise friends who are boosting him publicly and privately would not engage in a promotion they knew to be distasteful.

That would not be the part of friends. And the energy and enthusiasm and persistence in which his name is being advanced leads to no other conclusion than that they believe Mr. Mackrell can be induced if the occasions seems propitious.

They would expect him to receive support from some independent circles and in organization groups which are not extremely friendly to Herron and Coyne, but which will have nothing to do with Mr. Witherow.

It is admitted that a three-cornered fight would favor Herron, and some of those who can be described as most ardent friends of Mackrell—though I believe without his direction—appear to be discouraging in their discussions of Mr. Witherow, though through methods of indirection.

One difficulty about a coalition of those opposed to Herron and Coyne is that the enthusiastic friends of Witherow are suspicious of anyone who has been professionally attached to politics and the professionals opposed to the acting mayor cannot get warmed up over Witherow.

Mr. Mackrell's name may never appear on the ballot, he may never emerge as an announced candidate, but unquestionably there is a careful—and not too well concealed—attempt being made to thrust him forward as a compromise coalition entry.

Certainly his individual popularity cannot be questioned.

Home Burns, Family Of Five Wiped Out

Slain Woman

CHURCH IN MINE ZONE BOMBED

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., April 3.—(INS.)—Authorities today blamed the coal mine wage war for a bomb which exploded at the rear of the First Baptist Church last night while the Rev. J. R. Hastings was conducting the Sunday evening services, including his farewell sermon.

The bomb, apparently hurled from an automobile, shattered a window in the church and threw 140 worshippers into confusion. Several ran to the street.

Seeking a motive for the explosion, Christian County authorities recalled recent sermons in which the Rev. Mr. Hastings referred indirectly to the miners' wage controversy which culminated last year in a strike by the Progressive Miners of America faction.

The Rev. Hastings resigned his post here yesterday morning to accept one at Moline, Ill.

Sheriff J. A. Seaman, of Washington County, announced today that Frank Borich, radical miners' organizer, against whom deportation proceedings are pending, led the picket line of less than 100 at the Cedar Grove mine near Burgettstown this morning. No trouble occurred.

Election Campaign Starts in Yorkville

YORKVILLE, O., April 3.—Yorkville is taking the lead in Eastern Ohio municipal politics, a group of citizens having nominated Michael Hassett, councilman and steel mill foreman, for Mayor at the election next November. Hassett was nominated by ex-Mayor Benjamin Oliver, who announced previously that he will oppose Mayor W. L. McKean for re-election.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 3.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Walter Lippman was a Democrat before the deluge to Democracy, but his writings were so fair and impartial that Republicans used to sneak off around behind the House and read 'em. Being Republicans they never profited by his sage advice. Now they read him and weep. Well, he was out to our igloo and and broke cornbread and chili with us the other day. He thinks the green lights are with us. And the only thing can stop us again is prosperity. (There is nothing that sets a nation back as far in civilization as prosperity). He is proud of all parties uniting during this pilgrimage of "back from ga-ga." He thinks that America will not only remain on the gold, but will remain on its feet, which is more important. Yours, WILL.

President's Removal Of Tax on Foodstuffs Brings Popularity

Gabriel Over the White House

Adapted from the novel, "Gabriel Over the White House," and from the motion picture produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—a Cosmopolitan production.

With a brief recess for luncheon the Cabinet resumed its deliberations during the afternoon. Long after dark it adjourned for the day only to meet again Tuesday morning.

By tacit consent it had been agreed to leave the question of the squatters until the end, as this was the problem which demanded immediate action.

Secretary of War Brooks, waxed eloquent on the necessity for upholding the law, on the menace these partially armed and perhaps reckless communities were to the peace and good order of great cities. With head back and fists clenched, he called upon President Hammond as Commander-in-Chief of the Army to issue the necessary order to start the military machine rolling across the country, regardless of consequences.

The President gazed across at the War member of his Cabinet with eyes of arctic inscrutability. Said he:

"If you will sit down, Brooks, I will let you have my decision."

After a carefully phrased and quite impartial review of the arguments both for and against, his concluding sentences were:

"Those who, like the Secretary of War, ask for the armed forces of the Government to be used against these unfortunate men, who are demanding no more than that which every citizen of the United States should be ensured—the elementary necessities for keeping life within their bodies—have forgotten their obligations as members of the Administration. Not only this Cabinet, but each member of Congress is more answerable to the public conscience for this defiance of the law than the meanest hoodlum who breaks the windows of a shop to obtain the food he cannot earn money to buy because those responsible for providing work have failed in their moral obligations.

"Gentlemen, this is my last word. I will not throw the country into civil war. I refuse to order mobilization."

Removes War Head

Secretary Brooks could not contain himself.

"If this is your final decision, Mr. President, there will be no alternative other than for me to resign. I cannot . . ."

Icily the President's voice cut in:

"Mr. Secretary, your resignation is accepted."

Completely unstrung, Brooks stammered out some incoherences which suggested that he did not wish to leave the President in the lurch in such a difficult situation, and that if in the heat of the moment he had said something about resignation, he begged leave to withdraw it.

This unexpected scene reduced the other spectators to incredulous, almost dazed, immobility. There was a deathlike silence as they heard the President's cold clipped words:

"I regret, Mr. Brooks, that in the circumstances it will be necessary to appoint someone else as Secretary of War. As your presence at these discussions can no longer serve any useful purpose, you have my permission to withdraw."

CHAPTER IV.

Jasper Brooks took his grievance against the President directly to the Washington correspondents, pouring out his chagrin and spleen to them in one intemperate interview after another. He also primed one or two friendly Senators to sound off in his behalf at the Capitol. The resultant publicity throughout the land left the one-sided impression that the President had dispensed with the services of an able Secretary of War in the heat of a personal quarrel.

On the strength of Brooks' loose talking it appeared that the President was a man of mean spirit and that his whole administration would be tainted with personal pique.

Quick to sense the spread of this evil notion, President Hammond summoned the same correspondents to his White House office. His voice cut like a knife as he told them for quotation:

"There was no quarrel with Mr. Brooks. The state of the country precludes personal wrangles. The Secretary of War was dismissed because a man of greater competence is required to handle the special difficulties of the War Department in the present abnormal situation."

Loses Public Backing

After this front-page blast from the White House Brooks' fury led him into a fatal blunder. He broke Cabinet secrecy by publicly citing the President's declaration against use of the Plunging from the Sixth Street Bridge early today an unidentified man ended his life in the Allegheny River, another plunged to his death from the Murray Avenue Bridge, while an Oil City nurse is reported to have jumped into the Ashtabula River at Ashtabula, O.

Reich Hamilton, of 914 Arlington avenue, told police he saw a middle-aged man climb to the railing of the Sixth Street Bridge and jump. Running to the spot, he said he saw the man struggle and sink in the icy waters of the Allegheny. River Patrolman Charles A. Snyder is seeking the body.

Robert A. Cain, 30, of 2714 Jenny Lind avenue, McKeesport, unemployed, plunged to his death from the Murray Avenue Bridge, according to a coroner's report. The body dropped into Beechwood boulevard, not far from a police radio cruiser. Two youths found his coat and hat containing automobile cards by which the body was identified.

Believed to have leaped 80 feet from a viaduct spanning the Ashtabula River, the body of Ruth Irwin, 23, a nurse at Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, was recovered from the river. Miss Irwin was the daughter of Mrs. Kate Irwin, of Oil City, Pa., according to police.

'NEWLYWED'S' DIVORCE CASE THROWN OUT

Would-Be Movie Star Loses in Suit Against Wife

Judge Thomas M. Marshall today threw out of court the divorce case of Andrew C. Kloby, handsome young newlywed of Homestead Park with ambitions to become a movie star, against Mary Kloby.

After hearing all the evidence the husband and witnesses had to offer, the court said:

"I am not going to hear the wife's side of this case at all. You can't grant divorces in Pennsylvania for incompatibility."

The Klobys were married in 1931 and had separated twice, but had continued to live in the same apartment. Last week Kloby brought his wife and her witnesses to the courthouse in his automobile.

Kloby had brought the suit on the ground of cruelty. He testified his wife had called him names. He later refused to discuss a report that he was to enter the movies.

His wife said:

"He told me he was going out to Hollywood and become either a movie or radio star, and added, 'You're going to listen to me.'"

CHURCH THIEVES COOK MEAL

Three hungry thieves jimmied a window in St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Morewood and Center avenues, and prepared and ate a meal of corn, beans and bread last night.

It was the fifth church broken into in the East End and Oakland districts in 10 days.

Jesse Scott, janitor, found the church kitchen's table littered with dirty dishes and food this morning and complained to church officials of "careless cooks."

Scott was informed there had not been any recent church suppers. Investigation then disclosed the jimmied window.

Even the Prune Is a Beautiful Bud in Its Youth

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Right now we would like to be down in Georgia for peach blossom time. Or out in California for the orange budding season.

Down in Shenandoah Valley they're going to stage their apple blossom festival. Come to think of it, even a prune is a beautiful bud some time in its career.

Consult your optician and he will tell you that the best thing for your eyes is to look at fifty miles of fruit blossoms.

And there's an aroma in the air that no perfumer ever succeeded in bottling.

The closest we can get to the spirit of the thing is to kick a grapefruit around a kitchenette. But, if you have some vacation on your hands and want to go some place beautiful, pick out Florida, Georgia, Virginia or California in the month of April. They're the first four stops this side of Paradise, which is the fifth.

THUGS GET $750 IN BUSY CAFE

Five gunmen raided Albert Rice's restaurant, known as Rice's Landing, 910 Fifth avenue, last midnight, and from a safe and a score of customers, among them a woman, took loot that was estimated at $750, according to a police report.

With weapons drawn, the thieves herded the patrons in a rear room of the establishment where pool is played on week days, the detectives said.

Three of the men took valuables, estimated at $250, from the customers. The other two forced Rice to open the safe, which he reported contained $500.

The girl was an unidentified waitress. Although she was driven into the back room with the other victims, nothing was taken from her, Rice reported.

Sleuths Stay Silent As 'Hired' Girl Cries 'April Fool'

Yarsky's "club," once the hangout for South Side politicians, was stuck up by a single robber Saturday night, it was reported in "wise" circles today.

Not only was it held up, but police and a noted South Side racket leader as well as a few tired businessmen and their ladies, were present when it happened. The robber is said to have escaped with a toll from the till and customers of several hundred dollars.

But a young woman who said she was "the hired girl" at Joe Yarsky's, remarked today that it was "just an April fool joke."

The several lines on the police and detective blotters where such a report might conveniently have been written are still blank. Police and detectives say they haven't heard of any robbery—yet.

Senior Capt. Dennis Hennessey, in charge of the South Side district, today said he had heard rumors of the holdup, but there had been no official report. He said that according to custom, if the matter was not worth reporting, it would not be investigated.

STAR DONOHOE WITNESS DIES

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 3.—Mrs. Hannah Reid, the state's star witness in the trial of former County Detective R. C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stangoni for the murder of Constable John F. Donohoe, is dead.

Mrs. Reid, a resident of California, ill at the time of the trial, disappeared from the courtroom a few minutes before she was to have been called as a witness.

Believing she had been spirited away, the court ordered a massing of officers in a search for her. Two hours later she walked into the courthouse, her clothes drenched. She explained that she "felt a spell coming on and walked out for air."

SCIENCE STRICT WITH LIBBY'S 'GIANT' BABE

Universal Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—Here's a day in the life of one of the most widely discussed babies in the world—the infant son of Libby Holman and the late Zachary Smith Reynolds. It was revealed for the first time to Universal Service exclusively today.

Born in the fierce spotlight of publicity, with a heritage of tragedy and melodrama, handicapped by premature birth, Libby's $11,500,000 baby leads a carefully scheduled life.

He wakes each morning promptly at 6 o'clock and a tiny wail announces to the nurse that it's breakfast time.

7-POUND 'GIANT'

Instantly the nurse is at his side. Every resource of medical science has been marshaled to guard the welfare of this bit of humanity, who in two and a half months has grown from 2 pounds 7½ ounces to the 7-pound "giant" Libby now calls him.

His room is on the seventh floor of the maternity wing of Pennsylvania Hospital, where his mother still makes her headquarters, in order to superintend his care.

Libby's baby is given his bottle, as the first event of his day.

Every drop of milk he takes is first weighed, tested and checked. His formula is bleraded with research laboratory exactness, and a nurse is with him 24 hours a day.

At first he was fed nine times a day—every two hours.

Now he is given a slightly larger bottle every three hours, from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

BATH BIG EVENT

After his first bottle and an hour's rest, comes the big event of the morning—his bath.

After the bath, he has his exercise. Regular exercises for his arms and legs, his back and diaphragm, to lay the foundation for a robust physique.

Then, at 9 o'clock, comes the second bottle, which puts him to sleep again.

The most elaborate precautions are taken against germs. No one—not even his mother or his grandparents—may come into the room without first donning sterilized garments.

After his noon bottle, he has another nap.

KEPT AWAKE 3 HOURS

He is kept awake from 3 o'clock until 6, so he will be sleepy for his night's rest. And he has learned to take his last bottle, at 9 o'clock, almost without waking.

Dr. Norris W. Vaux, who delivered the child, says of his mother:

"Never in my experience have I seen so much real co-operation from a mother. I want to compliment her as a real mother."

Dr. C. A. Fife, famous pediatrician, who has been caring for the child, echoed the praise.

The doctors are frankly proud of the way they have pulled the baby through.

At present he is in almost every respect a perfectly normal baby. His doctors are confident he will attain normal weight and size soon, and will start teething, talking and walking at the same periods as the average child.

Within two weeks he is expected to leave the hospital with his mother, to go to the estate Libby has leased at Wilmington, Del.

CHILDREN FACE LEGAL FIGHT IN 'TRIANGLE'

KANSAS CITY, April 3.—(AP.)—Four children were the central figures today in a matrimonial triangle which had its inception more than five years ago when Cebert Catron allegedly deserted his wife and family to elope with Mrs. Ruth Phillips, mother of the children.

Catron, who detectives said had not only eloped with the wife of Thomas E. Phillips, but had taken the children and their father's surname as well, was arrested Saturday night on a federal indictment charging violation of the Mann Act. It had been returned at Lincoln, Neb., five years ago on complaint of Phillips.

LOYAL TO SECOND MATE

Mrs. Phillips, whom officers found living with Catron on a small plot of ground in Clay County, said she would resist all efforts of Phillips to regain custody of the children he has been seeking since Thanksgiving Day, 1927.

The children are Lorraine, 11; Lucille Mary, 9; Robert, 7, and Raymond, 5. The father never has seen Raymond, born after the alleged elopement.

Police quoted Mrs. Phillips as saying:

"The children all like Mr. Catron, and look upon him as a father. After he was taken away Raymond cried himself to sleep, begging for him to come home."

BERATES FIRST HUSBAND

Officers said she commented on Phillips as "not the type of man to have charge of these children," adding:

"He is not responsible and provided no home for us the eight years I lived with him. Only the children and my marriage vows caused me to stay with him as long as I did."

Catron, believed by detectives to be an ex-convict, probably will be turned over to federal authorities today.

Dispatches from Omaha said Phillips had not been located last night to be informed of the finding of his wife and children. It was presumed he still was seeking them.

ARMANDO del CIMMUTO EXHIBITING JAMES POPOVICH'S PAINTING CALLED "CORD WOOD"

3 MEN SOUGHT IN ATTACK

County detectives today are searching for three men, who, according to Mrs. Frances Siakow, 39, of 1219½ Fifth avenue, McKeesport, beat her on a lonely road in Elizabeth township.

Mrs. Siakow said she was hired as a midwife by a man who started to drive her to his home. In Boston, two other men boarded the machine, one a cripple. A short time later, according to Mrs. Siakow, the three men beat her, the cripple striking her with his crutch.

Afterwards she was pushed from the auto and was found by two boys, she told County Detectives John O'Brien and Patrick Traynor.

Suspect in Killing Of Couple Freed

Ralph Moore, of McDonald, taken into custody two weeks ago in connection with the murder of Frank and Katherine Kuschulas, in their Champton Hill home, was released yesterday by county detectives.

The detectives said they were unable to connect Moore with the crimes and admitted they were without a solution.

Settlement Students' Paintings on Display

Sentiments of Youth Are Reflected in Pictures

By PENELOPE REDD

Strolling into Elliott's "Little Gallery" on Sixth street, we encountered Sidney Teller and Armando del Cimmuto of Irene Kauffmann Settlement House, their arms laden with pictures for a students' exhibition. The show will continue through April 15. To Sidney Teller, the pictures are but a means to an end in "proving that the potentialities of the arts are all about us and that we hope we are anticipating an intelligent use of leisure for this generation by showing them the way to amuse themselves."

Miss Redd

Armando del Cimmuto has created exceptionally able work through his students. Many of the current exhibitors have been observed by this reviewer for at least five years. One recognizes a quickening of perception and definite progress in the articulation of ideas through paint, in almost all of them.

James Popovich, particularly, thinks directly in paint, without the labored transliteration of the idea from some literary stimulus frequent in young artists. His "Ruins," small in size, is potent in thought. "Cord Wood" portrays the creatures of earth preparing for the inimical rigor of winter. His luscious still life, aglow with tropic life, shares that absolute quality of the appropriate found in all of his work.

Leonard Lieb, especially in "Umbrella Vendor," without any conscious imitation, strikingly suggests the recession of planes found in the mural decorations of certain of the contemporary Mexican artists. The living, earthy colors augment the flavor found in the design.

Joseph Klieger, whose progress has given us concern, shows "In the Dark," a Rouault-like harlequin woman shrouded in shadows, and also "Rose" of orchid charm, who may perhaps be from the same strange ways. Lucy Raven's portraits haunt as documents of sorrow. Ziff, concerned with the idiosyncrasies of individuals rather than their totalities, is droll in his conglomerate "Street Car." Edward Goodman has an abstract "Cello Player."

These pictures are significant because they are genuine reactions to the visual world as youth feels today.

BASILICA FIRE PLOT THWARTED

MONTREAL, April 3.—(AP.)—A close watch was placed on all Catholic churches today after the destruction of the fifth in Quebec in six months by fire and incendiary attempts on several others.

Blazing papers were found yesterday in St. James Basilica after a milkman reported seeing a man jump from the roof of a low wing of the building. There was evident uneasiness among many persons who went to Montreal Catholic churches yesterday as a result of the series of incendiary attempts.

The church and presbytery in Clarke City were destroyed by fire Saturday. Burning papers were found in a confession box in St. Edouard Church last week.

Rare Art Treasure Damaged by Fire

MONTREAL, April 3.—(INS.)—Half of a collection of old masters and other art treasures was damaged or destroyed today in a fire which swept through the Van Horne mansion.

The residence was tenanted by Lady Van Horne, widow of the former president of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It contained the most priceless collection of art in Canada.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DIET GOAT GETS EXCITED, DIES

ITHACA, N. Y., April 3.—(AP.)—An unlooked for discovery that diet may cause heart disease comes to light with the death of "Depression," the prize synthetic goat of Cornell University.

Apparently in perfect vigor, "Depression" got excited a few days ago and fell dead. Autopsy showed death due to a degenerated heart muscle, in the ventricle.

"Depression" moreover was the sixth goat fed on the synthetic diet and all the others died of heart disease. The diet substitutes cellulose for hay. It includes starch; casein, the solid part of milk; various mineral salts, yeast and cod liver oil.

Whether there may be human lessons in the heart diet factor is not known. In view of the fact that heart troubles cause more than twice as many deaths annually in the United States as the next most fatal disease, cancer, scientists regard the goat experiment with interest.

AIR CRASH LAID TO PASSENGER

SALFORD, England, April 3.—(AP.)—Authorities were investigating today the possibility that Albert Voss, English passenger aboard the ill-fated airliner City of Liverpool, while mentally deranged may have set the fire which resulted in the plane crashing in Belgium last Tuesday and the death of all 15 persons aboard.

Coroner A. H. Flint, who will direct an inquent into Voss' death, said, however, it was difficult to reconcile such a theory with the fact that Voss had his 16-year-old schoolgirl niece, Miss Lottie Voss, aboard with him.

The inquest also will try to clear up any suspicion that Voss may have taken poison. Flint said he understood that some time ago Voss attempted suicide. Apparently Voss fell from the liner nearly two miles before it crashed near Essen.

Voss' body had been brought home and the mourners were assembling for the funeral here yesterday when police suddenly held up proceedings.

Collapsing in Car, City Engineer Dies

James M. Suffern, 56, of 514 Chester avenue, an emloye of the city Engineering Department, collapsed today in a Perrysville avenue street car. He was dead when removed to a physician's office.

The body was identified by fellow employes. Suffern had been employed as an assistant surveyor with the city more than 30 years. Morgue officials said death was due to heart attack.

SUNDAY SHOW AIDS NEEDY

The Father Cox unemployment relief supplies were augmented yesterday by three or four tons of canned goods and package groceries from the food benefit at the Regal Theater, Wilkinsburg. The house was crowded to capacity from 2 p. m. until 11:00 p. m.

Father Cox said last night:

"These added donations of food come at a time when we need them more than ever and the poor to whom they will be distributed are again indebted to the Sun-Telegraph for its continued and magnificent co-operation in this mighty task of furnishing relief to the destitute and unemployed of Pittsburgh."

As usual Father Cox was given a check Saturday on account of his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. The check was for $89.70. Father Cox has come to look upon Saturday as "pay day"—the Sun-Telegraph checks coming to him as regular as clockwork. He also says that he could not continue his activities for the relief of the unemployed without this regular weekly check.

Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relieff fund a liberal cash commission.

CONFER ON RAIL UNIFICATION

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Railroad officials, security holders and representatives of labor were given their first full view today of the proposals before the administration to bring about unification of the nation's carriers.

After going over the program with Secretary Roper, A. F. Whitney, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, told newspapermen his organization would present its reaction in a statement to the Secretary of Commerce.

Whitney said before any elaborate consolidation of roads is completed a thorough overhauling of the carrier's capital structure should be made. He suggested that security holders and savings banks should co-operate in bringing about a reduction in interest rates.

While Roper conferred with the labor spokesmen, rail executives, shippers and others discussed the question in an adjoining room.

Previous indications have been that the transportation legislative program might be completed by the end of the present week.

Nungesser, Coli Clue Again Fails

PARIS, April 3.—(INS.)—Reports that the skeletons of Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, French airmen lost on a trans-Atlantic flight, had been found in the Newfoundland forests were officially denied today.

The Governor of the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon cabled the Minister of Colonies branding the reports as "absolutely unfounded."

STEEL VETERAN RETIRING

The last link connecting the Homestead Steel Works with the old makers of steel has been broken with the retirement of Thomas J. Jamison, superintendent of the open hearth mill.

Beginning as a laborer when the mill was built in 1879, Mr. Jamison rose until in 1915 he was made superintendent of open hearth No. 3, one of the largest mills of its kind in the world.

He was the oldest man in years of service in the company and served under every general superintendent at the Homestead works. He had many dealings with Andrew Carnegie, Charles Schwab and H. C. Frick, serving directly under Schwab.

He was presented a bronze statue of himself by R. H. Watson, vice president of the Carnegie Steel Company, on behalf of his fellow superintendents.

His successor has not been named.

Army. By so doing he put himself out of court from the point of view of the Senate. After a short time he accepted the situation and forwarded his formal resignation to the White House.

The knowledge that the President had refused to use armed force against the squatters intensified an already dangerous situation.

Out of the shadows of national unrest and discontent had emerged a strange new figure destined to unify the unemployed and lead them back to the light. His name was Otto Kuhl. During the World War as a top sergeant with the A. E. F. he had won the Congressional Medal of Honor for a type of physical courage that left his superiors aghast at his recklessness. Afterwards he had worked as superintendent in a Detroit automobile factory until it was forced to close down. Thereafter he drifted with the jobless tide.

A crude but dynamic speaker, he was now going about the country exhorting those out of work to stand together, to mass upon the cities, to demand their due in food and shelter. He preached a gospel of peace and order, but behind his words was a threat. By common consent Otto Kuhl was rapidly becoming the organizer and leader of the squatting movement.

In New York City ten thousand unemployed were camped in Central Park. Almost as many were squatting in Atlanta's Piedmont Park. Boston Common was speckled with puptents and lean-tos. Big cities were panic-stricken.

The ordinary citizen accepted all such developments with at least a show of good nature. After all, the squatters were of his own kind, his one-time friends and neighbors. But the underworld, for reasons which even to this day have not been fully explained, took an exactly opposite attitude and turned savagely upon the unemployed as upon a new enemy. The ruthless fury of the gangster element was fraught with large historic significance.

Crime Heads Quake

Among the motives offered for this extraordinary criminal outbreak were the increased activity of the police, the presence of militia patrols, the curfew, the apprehension of every section of the community, the drop in liquor prices incident to hard times.

The non-provocative attitude of the squatters up to the present had prevented any clash, but the irritation of the racketeers was rapidly reaching the breaking point.

The sympathy the press gave the President during his illness had now been largely withdrawn. Editorials condemning his attitude, accusing him of weakness and indecision, began to make their appearance.

At this point, however, public attention was temporarily diverted from the squatter problem by President Hammond's altercation with Congress on what later became known as the "tin can tax." From this episode can be dated the actual beginning of the President's new popularity with the great mass of citizens. Constitutionally it marked the real transfer of the federal taxing power from the Capitol to the White House.

Under the Twenty-third Amendment Congress had delegated to the President authority to reduce taxes as a means of preventing revenue piling up into Treasury surpluses in good times and thus tempting the government to extravagance. However, Congress had reserved to itself sole power to increase taxation.

For months the business world had been raising the false clamor that it could make no headway out of the slough of the depression because of its burden of taxes. Out upon a helpless country it pumped a torrent of propaganda to the effect that a cut in its special levies would revive industry and help employment. Heedful of this demand Congress had prepared an emergency revenue bill in which a tax was to be placed on all canned goods—a direct tax on food. The purpose of the tax was to shift, as far as possible the emphasis of federal revenue from Wall street to the people at large.

When the measure came to the White House President Hammond promptly vetoed it, explaining to the country its real purpose. A defiant Congress repassed it over his objection. What Congress had failed to do, however, was specifically to repeal the taxes on business and finance, presumably on the theory that the President would be morally bound to reduce them when the tin can tax began creating a surplus.

Nullifies Act

Such a presumption showed all too clearly what a poor understanding Congress had of the new character of the man in the White House. Twenty-four hours after the tin can taxes became effective President Hammond issued a proclamation under the Twenty-third Amendment "reducing" them to exactly zero and thus defeating the will of Congress. Financiers and businessmen on whom the old taxes were allowed to operate unchanged loudly protested that such Presidential action was a usurpation of legislative power. But the millions upon millions of people who ate out of cans began to feel that at last they had a true friend in the White House.

* * *

One evening, while the excitement over the tin can taxes was at its height, Pendie and I were dining with Peale Lindsey. We had brought with us Harry Gilmour, a relative of my mother's family, who had served as a pilot in the early days of the Transatlantic Air Service.

Our host was a likable man, just over middle height, wiry and lithe. A shock of untidy brown hair topped his rather plain features. His perpetually smiling face might have suggested an easy-going nature, but the steel in his gray eyes and the strength in his profile corrected any misapprehension on that score.

Publicity Stunt

Founder and head of one of New York's biggest publicity corporations, Peale Lindsey dealt in public opinion on a mass scale. I have known him on and off for years and reckoned him among my best friends.

Over dinner Peale had been joking Pendie and me about our reticence in communicating what he called the "purple secrets of the White House."

After dinner, while we sat over coffee and cigarets, Peale mounted his pet hobbyhorse:

"Look here, Beek, the President's flag is right at the top of the mast at the present moment. The unemployed have fallen for him. No one opens a can of beans without giving loud cheers for him. He is a pain in the neck to Wall street, but this only adds to his popularity with the crowd.

"But crowds are fickle and the public has a short memory. Let him make one mistake and down will come his flag, and not to half-mast either. I think he's more than half a false alarm, but the people have accepted him at his own valuation. To them he is the only man with guts we have had at Washington for years, and the fellow who always comes up when the times demand leadership. But sooner or later he has got to do unpopular things, things the crowd won't like, or understand, and he won't be able to get away with it unless he tells the world what he is after and the reasons for it."

Pendie laughed and said:

"I see. Full-page advertisements in all the papers and special articles in every magazine—the contract for the said publicity being let on the usual 10 per cent basis to Peale Lindsey, Incorporated, of New York, Chicago and San Francisco."

Why Not Dictator?

Peale grinned.

"Well, now that advertising has flopped because nobody has any money, that's not a bad idea. But no kidding, Pendie. What is happening? Since his illness old Hammond has come back with a bang, but so far there is only the reverberation and the smoke. He cannot leave the squatters where they are indefinitely. After his run-in with Congress he's got to find new revenue somewhere. Meanwhile, business is almost extinct, unemployment is growing and half the farms in the South and West are up for auction, with no buyers in sight. We thought we had reached the limit a couple of years ago, but now anything can happen from Bolshevism to a Dictatorship."

Pendie's eyes filmed with baffling inscrutability, and with a Mona Lisa smile she said:

"Why not a Dictatorship?"

Peale choked with laughter.

"Old Jud Hammond, the genial lotus eater, a Dictator! Good Lord! That's the best thing I've heard this year."

By tacit consent, Pendie and I had agreed not to refer, apart from ourselves, to the change in the President since his illness. For one thing, we had arrived at no clear conclusion in our own minds, and, furthermore, the attitude of Peale Lindsey showed that whatever we said would hardly be believed.

Pendie, with an alacrity which rather hurt me, accepted Peale's suggestion to go off somewhere and dance, and Gilmour must have found me somewhat sulky and distrait as I accompanied him to his hotel.

ASSAILS BUDGET OF HOMESTEAD

A budget only $768 lower than the total estimated revenues from all sources probably will be adopted by Homestead Council tonight, according to Myles McConnon, head of the Taxpayers' Association of Homestead.

McConnon, who met with a councilmanic committee on Saturday, said they had not taken into consideration the fact that little more than 50 per cent of borough taxes were collected for 1932. The proposed budget for 1933, $243,799.80, is based on 100 per cent collection of the 14-mill tax levy, he said.

FIRE DAMAGES LANDMARK

A father and son were injured and members of four families routed in night attire during a blaze that shortly before last midnight damaged the home of John Dockman, a Shaler Township landmark, in East Ohio street.

Dockman was treated for burns of the feet suffered when he attempted to stamp out a blaze in the hallway, police said. Nick, 22, a son, suffered cuts on the right hand as he smashed the glass in an alarm box.

FEAR SHOTWELL TOO LIGHT FOR POST

As soon as he can feel reasonably certain that the weather has become settled, Coach Jock Sutherland will begin to send his Pitt football candidates through real workouts in their spring drills, and the first move he plans to make is not, as many would surmise, to try to find a replacement for Warren Heller, his graduating all-America halfback. Instead, the astute Scotchman is spending a lot of time with Ralph Daugherty in picking out a likely man to team up with the lightweight, George Shotwell, at center.

George Shotwell

Shotwell, one of the smartest and hardest working snapperbacks to show up at Pitt in some years, is judged to be a little too light to stand the pace that the Panthers must maintain during the season to come. Just before the Blue and Gold gridders left Tucson for Pasadena last December, the rangy Wilkes-Barre youngster stepped on the scales and tipped the beam at exactly 163 pounds, which is not an ideal weight for a man who has to play in the center of the line. Sutherland already has made two experimental shifts.

THE PITT MENTOR has taken Art Detzel, of Erie, crack freshman guard of last season, and is trying to convert him into a ball snapper, and he has moved Nick Klisky, of Braddock, from fullback to center. Detzel, a big husky lad, looked like a good varsity bet at guard, and his going is a relief to Tar Onder and Doc Hartwig.

Klisky is built along the lines of John Karcis, though not quite so bulky, and he backs up the line with the same fierceness as the former Carnegie fullback. Should Detzel fail, Klisky has a fine chance for the center job. Indeed, Detzel might be a success and yet have to play second fiddle to the Braddock youth. The Panther coaches will know more a few weeks hence, when spring training is over.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL managers differ in their ideas as to the best conditions for spring training, apart from the main item of baseball practice. As has been the Pirate policy, some prefer small towns where there are no distractions to take the minds of the players off their diamond work.

Bill McKechnie takes the opposite view. He feels it is a mistake to train in a very small town. He holds that it makes the athletes restive and homesick, and does not give them enough novelty or outside interests to keep them in normal health and spirits.

M'KECHNIE HAS BEEN informed that three other National League clubs are trying to chisel in on Waterfront Park, the present practice field of the Braves in St. Petersburg, Fla. He took up the matter with the civic leaders of the town to learn if the Braves had worn out their welcome, and says he found that relations are as friendly as ever. Accordingly, McKechnie serves notice that the Bostonese will train in St. Petersburg again next spring and for many springs thereafter and will not allow themselves to be elbowed out by any rival. Bill thinks the park used by the Braves is the best in the South. The practice field is all that could be desired and is located just across the street from the hotel, whereas the Yankees, training in the same town, have to ride seven or eight miles in buses to reach their conditioning grounds.

Dolly Stark

UMPIRE DOLLY STARK, of the National League staff, bases a prediction of a big season for baseball on the belief that people will find their fun there, rather than in a round or two of golf, or in a fling at the night clubs, both of which, he thinks, have become too expensive.

John A. Heydler, league president, is another who scoffs at the suggestion that golf hurts baseball. Heydler sees no conflict there. He says he'd rather watch baseball than any other game in the world, and would rather play golf than any other pastime. He rates baseball as a sport, a spectacle, a form of entertainment, while terming golf a recreation.

AL SCHACHT, veteran coach of the Senators, predicts the Yankees will crack; that before the season is 100 games old Babe Ruth's legs will put the Bambino out of commission, Tony Lazzeri's throwing arm will buckle, and Joe Sewell will slow down to a walk.

Joe McCarthy and the Yankees ridicule the forecast, and say Schacht is only using this as a way to boost the pennant chances of the Senators. Even if breaks should occur on the club, they declare it is sufficiently well fortified with capable substitutes to carry it through to another flag.

IT WAS AN odd coincidence that both New York clubs should discover among their spring recruits young shortstops who showed up in such surprisingly good style as to be in line for regular positions. Blondy Ryan continues to perform so brilliantly for the Giants that Manager Terry's worries about Travis Jackson's still doubtful condition have been lessened considerably. Even if Jackson doesn't break down, it is reported Terry may rearrange his infield to provide a place for Ryan. And Bill Werber has kept up his impressive work for the Yanks so steadily that he has forced Manager McCarthy to install him as the club's first shortstop, for the present at least, after McCarthy had definitely picked Lyn Lary for the post. Another coincidence is that both flashy recruits played for Buffalo last year. Ryan crowded Werber out of the shortstop position there, and Bill was sent to Jersey City.

OPERATORS OF FUTURE books report that most of the early betting on the Kentucky Derby has been on long shots. As usual, the players have been tempted by the big figures, taking a long chance that a horse will start and win at heavy odds.

The effect has been to cut the odds on Flying Cadet from 100 to 1 down to 40 to 1, and those on Shepherd Boy from 60 to 1 to 30 to 1. No disposition has been shown to play Ladysman, which remains favorite at 10 to 1.

A POPULAR EARLY game on Duquesne University's basketball schedule for next season will be a meeting with Waynesburg College. The contest is understood to have been closed for a December date.

Tom Heeney

It shows that neither school is looking for soft spots in the first part of the campaign, and that each is willing to cope with tough opposition right off the reel. The Dukes were the best team in the district this last season and Frank Wolf's quintet made a very creditable showing in a hard schedule, especially in its Conference games.

THE SORRY SHOWING that poor old Tom Heeney put up last week in the bout in which he was cut to pieces and stopped by Stanley Poreda probably wound up the ring career of the one-time Hard Rock, at least as far as appearances at any of the clubs in the large cities are concerned. If Heeney doesn't retire voluntarily, chances are he will be forced to do so through being unable to find any promoter willing to put him on, for humane reasons as well as for the fact that he will no longer draw. Heeney is almost 35. He never was a master of defense. His only defense was his ability to take punches and still keep coming in. He still takes the punches, but he no longer can keep coming back. Tom means only an easy win for the other fighter, and it is argued that it is not worth the price, to Heeney, to his opponent, or to boxing.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, April 3.—Gallant Sir, a $50,000 race horse was sent against a band of glorified selling platers here yesterday afternoon, won the Agua Caliente handicap without being extended, and hung up a new track record of 2:02-3/5 as added proof of his supremacy.

The 4-year-old colt, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, added $24,200 to the treasury of his owner Norman Church, by his victory in the fourth running of the classic.

WAYLAYER SECOND

Waylayer was second, winning $2,500. Lemon Hills took third money, $1,250, and Loversall fourth money, $750.

The weather was perfect, the track fast, the crowd of 15,000 and the start perfect, after a delay caused by the fractiousness of Waylayer and the Nut.

As they shuffled out of the chute The Nut was first show in front. He was supplanted in the lead by Whizz James as they passed the cheering crowd in the grandstand. Gallant Sir was third from last in a field of nine, but was under a stout pull until he took the clubhouse turn.

Then Jockey Woolf moved Gallant Sir up bit by bit and he began rapidly to close the gap that separated him from the pacemakers.

Bahamas took the lead from Whizz James on the backstretch and Satin Spar, Waylayer and Loversall proceeded to gang up on him. Suddenly the announcer boomed:

"Gallant Sir is now fifth, and moving up fast on the outside. He's fourth now, no he's third, he's third, there he goes—he's second now—and now he is taking Bahamas."

So he was. He caught the leader as the turn was made for home and after that it merely was a question as to his margin of triumph.

FINISHES FRESH

He came back to the scales looking as fresh as if he was just going to the post.

Gallant Sir paid $3.60, $4.00 and $2.60 in the mutuels, surprising prices, inasmuch as the books were quoting only 1 to 5 against him. Waylayer paid $4.20 and $3.40 and Lemon Hills $5.20.

COAST NINES AWAIT BELL

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(AP.)—Primed for a great comeback after a disappointing season financially last year, Pacific Coast League clubs will swing into action tomorrow for what promises to be a close and hard fought schedule.

Portland's Beavers, 1932 pennant winners, lost several players through the process of graduation to the majors and the departed talent has not been entirely replaced.

On paper, Hollywood and Los Angeles stack up as the most formidable members for the thirty-first annual campaign.

Hollywood, runner-up last season five and one-half games behind Portland, will line up a team of veterans.

Fifth place club in 1932, Los Angeles has received pitching help from the Chicago Cubs in Leroy Herrmann and Bud Newsom. Fay Thomas was purchased from Brooklyn, and his speed ball is expected to be highly effective in night games.

Cellar champions for the last two years, San Francisco's Missions have shown impressive spirit in exhibition games.

Oakland has added several oldsters, including Long George Kelly, a 10-year man in the majors, and Dutch Ruether, wise southpaw twirler. The San Francisco Seals, Sacramento and Seattle Indians either have added strength or have good points to recommend them.

Local Polo Stars To Meet Harvard

An all-star team of players from the Pittsburgh Polo League will meet the Harvard University trio in the Hunt armory on Saturday, April 22. Paul Mazzuzan will lead the all-stars.

Matches with Akron and Wilkes-Barre also are planned for the local riders.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: IMPERIAL APRIL FOOL DAYS—The civil marriage of Napoleon I to Marie-Louise, of Austria, was celebrated on April Fool's Day, April 1, 1810, in the Apollo Gallery at St. Cloud, before Chancellor Cambaceres. Four years later, on April Fool's Day, 1814, the Empress, after fleeing from the Tuileries from the approaching armies of Prussia, Russia and Austria, finally yielded to the persuasion of the Allies and resolved to desert the Emperor forever. She never saw Napoleon again, although the Emperor outlived her desertion by seven years. THE HANGED CAT—A cat was publicly tried and convicted of murdering a child at Longueville, France, in 1476. The death sentence was executed by hanging the feline offender on the gallows in the public square. Criminal responsibility of animals was part of medieval jurisprudence for a long time. Mosquitoes, dogs and pigs would be solemnly tried for offenses, a legal defender would be assigned to them and a straight-faced judge would pronounce the sentence, worded as pompously as the law would permit.

Eastern League Fails to Reorganize

HARTFORD, Conn., April 3.—(AP.)—Plans to reorganize the defunct Eastern League for the 1933 baseball season were abandoned yesterday at a meeting of delegates from five of the six New England cities proposed as members of the circuit.

The delegates, however, agreed to meet next fall to consider the advisability of reviving the league for 1934.

RANGERS GAIN HOCKEY FINAL

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—For the second year in succession and for the fourth time in their seven seasons in the National Hockey League, the New York Rangers have reached the final playoff series for the Stanley cup, historic trophy which represents the world's professional hockey championship. But it remains for a final game tonight to decide whether their opponents will be the Toronto Maple Leafs, last year's successful rivals, or their old enemies, the Boston Bruins.

Toronto and Boston are all even with two victories apiece in their "first place" playdown for the league championship and the other berth in the finals. The last game is to be played tonight. The winner will head for New York immediately to start the finals tomorrow.

The Rangers won their place in the finals by eliminating first the Montreal Canadiens then the Detroit Red Wings, who in turn had beaten the Montreal Maroons. The Blue Shirts outscored Detroit 6 to 3 in their two-game, total-goal semi-final series. They ran up a 2-0 lead at New York Thursday, then went on to win 4 to 3 on their rivals' rink last night.

SYRACUSE WINS

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Showing the form that gave them the season's high-scoring honors only in the final game of the playoffs, the Syracuse stars wound up the International Hockey League's post season campaign by moving into a tie with the London Tecumsehs for second place in the playoff standing. Syracuse outfought and outplayed the Buffalo Bisons, who already had been crowned champions for 1932-33 by a 5-to-1 count in the closing game.

Casanova Stops Newsboy Brown

MEXICO CITY, April 3.—(AP.)—Babe Casanova, Mexican bantamweight sensation, knocked out Newsboy Brown, of Los Angeles, in the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout here yesterday. A crowd of 25,000, the largest to see a fight here in two years, filled the bull ring.

Joe Glick, veteran New York welterweight, and Alfredo Gaona, of Mexico, drew in a 10-round preliminary.

CURRY, SYGAN TEAMS TIE

The Curry and Sygan soccer clubs battled to a scoreless tie in the second round of the West Penn open competition yesterday afternoon at Greenlee Field with a small crowd of fans standing in a heavy rain watching the contest.

The heavy going precluded the use of scientific soccer and the players had to be content trying to drag the ball into the net. The score justified the game.

At South Park another handful of fans watched the Castle Shannon Zoneys trounce Springdale, 7 to 1, in the same tourney. The Curry-Sygan lineup:

Chilly Sauce

Mike Donlin and Honus Wagner feature the weekly program of the Los Angeles Examiner. Interviewed by this writer, the two found so much in common they naturally drifted into a discussion of battle between the Giants and Pirates when Mike was one of McGraw's terrors. The broadcast brought Mike and Honus a lot of responses.

Wagner, other Pirates and the Cub state Donlin should be back in the game in a role similar to that of Wagner. Mike's health has returned. He plays a nine-inning ball game Saturday for an old-timers' team. He says he prefers the game to acting.

Hazen Cuyler, using crutches, was all to swing Eastward with the Cubs. Manager Grimm and his players appear to be resigned to losing Cuyler until July. Meantime they have a lot of confidence in Frankie Demaree, sturdy understudy.

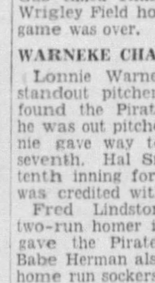
Tony Piet, a batting disappointment through most of the Pirate preparatory season, is meeting the ball better since he changed his Bebbie Groh stance back to a more convenient posture.

Piet now sets himself somewhat similar to Lindstrom; that is, he stands in the back end of the box with his feet close together. Tony was chasing too many curves from the other position. Piet rifles liners straight into Babe Herman's hands yesterday.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 3.—I see Babe Ruth denies he will quit baseball at the end of this season. Why, Babe is good for 10 more years if they'll let him wobble up to the plate on crutches and use one of 'em for a bat.



Nick Altrock

The only thing Ruth has to worry about is his legs. That's all Marlene Dietrich has got to worry about, too. You take five years from now and as an outfielder Babe will be covering about as much territory as a dame dancing on a dime. But I was thinking if the American League could sort of make Ruth an outfielder-emeritus and let him go up to the plate as an honorary batter it would work out fine.

Of course, Ruppert right now is all excited about his 3.2 beer. But a year from now let him find what the Yankee Stadium customers would rather see hobbling around the bases—a brewery truck or the Babe.

PIRATES BEAT CUBS, 8 TO 7, IN TENTH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

TUCSON, Ariz., April 3.—George Gibson's Pirates and Lou Fonseca's White Sox stopped off in this picturesque desert city today for the purpose of starting an inter-league series which will continue through most of the week at intermediate points on the eastern trail.

Tucson had practically declared a holiday in deference to the big league boys, who are all set to cross bats at the local ball orchard. Steve Swetonic will twirl for the National League representatives.

SUHR'S HIT WINS

The Buccaneers quit sunny California last night a well conditioned team. Their last official act before saying farewell to the land of sunshine was a sensational home run victory over the Chicago Cubs, whose previous didoes had caused a lot of moaning and groaning among Gibby's somewhat shaky pitchers. The battle surged through 10 innings, the score being 8 to 7.

Gus Suhr was the belated hero of the Pittsburgh success, a triumph which enabled the Pirates to make it three out of eight from their Chicago rivals. The Pirates entered the final with a five-run lead and Bill Swift had been making a mess of the Chicago hitters. But the jackrabbit festival was unlossed in the ninth, much to the the delight of almost 5,000 Los Angeles fans, who screamed with approval as the Bruins tied up the game.

The capable Pirate first sacker took the matter of winning the game into his own hands as he pried off the tenth for the Buccos. Gus timed Tinning's pitch for a Wrigley Field homer and the ball game was over.

WARNEKE CHASED

Lonnie Warneke, one of the standout pitchers of the sport, found the Pirates too tough as he was out pitched by Swift. Lonnie gave way to Yerkes in the seventh. Hal Smith worked the tenth inning for the Buccos and was credited with the victory.

Fred Lindstorm walloped a two-run homer in the third that gave the Pirates a good edge. Babe Herman also was among the home run sockers in a park which makes them a cheap commodity.

The Pirates won nine and lost 12 of their barnstorming games.

TOMMY PAUL RETURNS TO GARDEN RING TONIGHT

JACKIE WILSON THIRD FOE OF BUFFALO STAR

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

They don't have any of the fighters of the good Peter J. Buntach on the card at Motor Square Garden tonight, but they do have Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, in the main bout for the third time in four weeks, which may come under the head of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Tommy Paul

Every story must have an opening paragraph, so this one will have to do for today.

It's something like the story they tell about the young author who couldn't sell his pieces. One day he put a gun against the ribs of the editor and asked him why. The answer was:

"You don't have enough zip in your opening paragraphs. What you need is more sparkle and pep."

So the next story of the author opened like this:

"'Oh, hell,' said the duchess."

HAS TWO WINS HERE

All of which has little or nothing to do with the scheme song of this story, which is the boxing show at Motor Square Garden tonight. But we have got safely past the opening paragraph.

Speaking of Peter J. Buntach, we wonder if he's recovered yet from his attack of writer's cramp. Haven't had a letter from him in several days, and he certainly must have a complaint or two to register about the fact that they're bringing back those three 10-rounders at the Arena next Friday night and Tommy Paul is working for the third time in a month at the Garden while his Joey Marcus and other fighters must blush unseen.

Well, anyway, to get down to the story. This Tommy Paul fellow has reversed the old order again and shuffled off from Buffalo to come to Pittsburgh, and tonight he looks over the last of our bantamweight and featherweight Mohicans, Jackie Wilson, Negro flash, of Homewood. He has taken Jimmy Thomas and Mose Butch into camp, and, if he does the same to Jackie, well that will be most ap-Paul-ing, to say the least. For then the promoters will have to get down to work and try to figure out some matches, instead of just going on with their jigsaw puzzles and telling the matchmakers to quit bothering them and call up Tommy Paul and tell him there's some money for him in the box office.

FINISHED PERFORMER

Paul has struck the fans from the start as a finished performer. If he gets past Wilson, as he figures to, he will be that and then some insofar as Pittsburgh is concerned until Willie Davies' young son grows big enough to take him on. Tommy really isn't a good business man in the fighting game. A gent with a business head on him would have got a draw against Thomas and fallen out of the ring against Butch and kept the field ever green for himself here. But not Paul. He is one of those old-fashioned fellows who believes that to win is the thing.

Wilson has speed afoot and of hands. He can travel faster than the March wind and stick out more left hands than you can count. But the trouble with Paul is that when the left hand gets where he was he isn't there. Tommy has a trick of bending one knee and falling away from or stepping inside a punch and blazing away with both fists. It's a treat to see him boxing. He knows all of the answers, and his average opponent doesn't even know the questions.

So Peter Buntach willing or not, Tommy will be in there again tonight giving the fans an evening's entertainment and his opponent a few pointers that aren't in the book. Then he'll shuffle back to Buffalo and await the next call to arms in the fair city of Pittsburgh-by-the-Allegheny, where the streets are paved with gold for the Tommy Pauls.

ALABAMA KID RETURNS

Carlos Montebano, the Braddock middleweight, who got so accustomed to the jeers of the cash customers that he hardly knew what to do when they turned to cheers as he stopped Paul Pirrone his last time out, is in the eight-round semi-final, against the Alabama Kid, of Dover, O. The Alabama more than met his match in Frankie O'Brien in his most recent battle at the Garden, the referee stopping the bout, and he'll try to redeem himself tonight.

Nat Litfin, of the Hill, and Charley Burns, of Johnstown, meet again in the main six-round bout. Litfin plastered Charley a-plenty for four rounds in the same ring a few weeks ago, but tired in the last two rounds, and Burns rallied and was given the decision. Last Friday night, at the Arena, the veteran Willie Davies outsmarted Burns in a six-round bout, but Burns also got this nod. So tonight—what?

DEVLIN AFTER YAROSZ

Edourado Duarry, Cuban from Erie, boxes Marty McHale, McKeesport welterweight, in the first six-rounder, and Tommy Harris, of Bloomfield, does a comeback against Johnny Hazel, of the Hill, in the four-round opener, at 8:30.

Danny Devlin, of Allentown, Pa., who meets Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, in one of the three 10-round bouts at the Arena Friday night, wants to fight Ted Yarosz here. He has met some of the toughest welters in the East, and is managed by George Engel, handler of Tony Falco. Frank Novak battles Jack Pallat, of Cleveland, again in the 10-round windup, and Al Gatchell and Frankie Edgren are in the first 10-rounder.

Tonight's Fights

Tommy Paul vs. Jackie Wilson, 10 rounds; Carl Montebano vs. Alabama Kid, 8 rounds, and Nat Litfin vs. Charley Burns and Edourado Duarry vs. Marty McHale, 6 rounds each, and Tommy Harris vs. Johnny Hazel, 4 rounds, Motor Square Garden.

Unknown Winston vs. Reds Barry, 10 rounds, Holyoke, Mass.

Stanislaus Loayza vs. Eddie Shapiro and Dominick Pirone vs. Jim Doyle, 8 rounds each Coliseum, N. Y.

Finals in Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., senior championship tournament, Keystone A. C.

Middle Atlantic Association A. A. U. championships, Philadelphia.

George Cook vs. Larry Gains, 15 rounds, Leicester, England.

Natie Rosenbloom vs. Lou Scozza (non-title), 10 rounds, Buffalo.

Jackie Sharkey vs. Wilbur Chevalier, 10 rounds, St. Paul.

Eddie Shea vs. Frankie Mincarva, 10 rounds, Louisville.

Doc Conrad vs. Joe Gorman and Joey Meradon vs. Solly Kreiger, 10 rounds each, Newark, N. J.

Antol Kocsis vs. Johnny Brennan, 8 rounds, Trenton, N. J.

Buster Brown vs. Paisy Wallace, 8 rounds, Atlantic City.

Wayne Short vs. Jimmy Murray and Dick Demaray vs. Red Haggerty, 6 rounds each, St. Paul.

Jack Sharkey in opening of exhibition tour (Charley Anderson and Owen Flynn, sparring partners), Montreal.

Isadore Gastanaga vs. Joe Doktor, 10 rounds, and Bobby O'Hara vs. Mickey O'Shea and Jack Delmar vs. Jack Robinson, 6 rounds each, Chicago.

Eddie Cool vs. Johnny Jadlich and Billy Ketchel vs. Johnny Pilc, 10 rounds each, and Dan Hassell vs. Guido Conte, Jack McCoy vs. Ed Prante and Bobby Dechter vs. Vincent Reed, 6 rounds each, Arena, Philadelphia.

LOCALS CRASH MONEY LIST

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—Having registered 50 per cent efficiency at plunging into the American Bowling Congress tournament prize fund, members of the two Pittsburgh teams who shot last night will try to make it 100 per cent today when they swing into the doubles and singles events:

The E. M. Tuckers, putting together games of 868, 926 and 960, hung up a 2,754 total. A. Porter was the life of the party with his 580 series, being ably seconded by L. Hamilton, who hit 566.

The Yacht Club five ran into foul weather its first two games and rested content with a 2,695.

The scores:

FIVE-MEN TEAMS

ARNOLD HOLDS LEAD

HARTFORD, Conn., April 3.—(AP.)—William A. Arnold, of Annapolis, Md., United States individual champion in 1932, made a strong bid to retain that distinction yesterday by going into first place in the men's singles in what was the high spot of the twelfth day of the national Duckpin Bowling Congress.

Arnold rolled a three string total of 429, eight pins better than the score hung up by James L. Askey, of Baltimore Saturday and one pin better than the score with which Arnold won the individual championship last year.

RED SOX SAFE AFTER WRECK

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 3.—(AP.)—The Boston Red Sox went into their game with the Jersey City International League baseball club yesterday in a condition, described by Phil Troy, secretary of the club, as slightly "skittish" after their early morning experiences in a train wreck that killed two men near Dover, Del.

The ball players and other members of their party were shaken up, but they proceeded here in a special train after several hours delay.

Race Driver Dies In Coast Smash

LOS ANGELES, April 3.—(AP.)—Tom Forsyth, Oakland automobile race driver, was killed by the crash of his car into the fence in the fourth lap of the 9½-mile event at the Legion Ascot Speedway yesterday.

Attempting to avoid a crash with the spinning car of Harry Gentry, of Los Angeles, Forsyth drove into the soft sand at the top of the track, where his machine skidded and hit the guard rail. He died of a skull fracture.

Ernie Triplett, of Los Angeles, won the 25-mile main event in 17 minute 57.05 seconds. He established a new record by bettering Lester Spangler's time of 18 minutes 27.05 seconds.

A. M. A. SENIOR RING FINALS ON TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

It's a pretty swell sort of boxing tournament that comes down to the semi-final round with 16 clubs having representatives on hand and its a pretty swell sort of a club that has 10 individuals in line for title consideration.

That is just the sort of a tournament that will be concluded tonight as the annual senior A. M. A. championship wind-up in the Keystone A. C. ring with 16 clubs represented by 33 star punchers. The Willow Club, which has turned out more ring stars here than Joe Miller had jokes, has no fewer than 10 lads remaining in the action.

SEVEN CHAMPS REMAIN

The boxers have come through three nights of torrid competition with a pip of an array of warriors set for semi-final action, including six junior A. M. A. champs and one intercollegiate titleholder. Of the 12 champs who were on hand when the tourney opened, seven have survived the barrage of punches thrown by crack fields in every weight class.

All seven stand at least 50-50 chances of coming through with gold medals tonight, too. In the 112-pound class, little Joey Sulk, of the Willow Club, may run into his toughest opponent in a clubmate, Frankie Wingo, fighting as a flyweight for the first time after previous boxing as a bantam.

Another Willow Club star, Tony DeMore, easily is the best bet among the 118-pounders and may draw the same gent whom he knocked out for the junior title a month or so ago in the semi-finals, Sammy Angott, of the Tucker A. C., of Washington, Pa.

Harry Krause, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, will find the road to the senior crown in the 126-pound class plenty rugged, with such lads as Eddie Katkish and Leo Sweeney set to trip him up.

ELEY FAVORITE

William Eley, the crack Negro triple champion, just about the niftiest bit of fighting machinery in the tournament, ought to take the 135 crown. George Julius, of the Willow Club, appears to be his most formidable foe. Eley has been punching holes in all opponents and doing so with eclat, to say nothing of gusto, efficiency and what have you.

On the strength of his sensational whipping of Charley Crovata, who held the senior welterweight crown for three years and won a place as an alternate on the U. S. Olympic boxing team last year, young Dick Ambrose, of the J. L. Thomas Club, will enter the semi-finals tonight pretty much of a favorite. He finds both Jimmy Campbell and Art McGivern, the latter the junior champ, in his way, however, and either would have duplicated his feat Saturday night of whipping Crovatta, with the latter fighting as poorly as he did. Ambrose can take it and is a willing mixer and always on the aggressive.

SHRICKER STILL IN

Jack Shricker, of Pitt, the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference champ, and Eric Bredl, the Fighting Printer, holder of the A. M. A. junior title, have one another and Al Quaill, of the Y. M. H. A., to worry over. The 175-pound class field lacks an outstanding performer, in fact, most any of the 160-pounders would beat the best looking of the light heavies, George Bitner, of the P. V. A. C.

The heavyweight situation also is scrambled, with Dutch Weir, junior champion, as good a bet as any.

NORTH, SOUTH DUELS OPEN

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3.—(AP.)—George T. Dunlap, Jr., of Garden City, L. I., the medalist and tournament favorite, will meet R. A. Jones, Jr., of Larchmont, N. Y., today as match play opens in the thirty-third annual North and South amateur golf championship.

Dunlap, former Princeton golfer and a member of last year's United States Walker Cup team, topped the field in qualifying play by a 13-stroke margin with a score of 137 for the 36 holes.

Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, former Georgetown golfer, and Jimmy Robbins, of Philadelphia, wound up in a tie for second honors in the qualifying play with scores of 150.

Two Pittsburgh golfers passed the qualifying test. James A. Fownes, of Oakmont, takes on Fred Towne, of South Orange, N. J., today while R. G. Morrison meets Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y. star.

RUNYAN IS WINNER

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., April 3.—(AP.)—Steady shooting Paul Runyan, diminutive professional from White Plains, N. Y., yesterday won the Cavalier Open golf tournament with a lead of four strokes on the field.

His medal score of 280 brought him $300 in prize money and boosted his season's winnings to $4,336.

Denny Shute, Philadelphia, took second place with 284, and Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., was third with 285. Shute received $250 and Wood $200.

WOMAN SETS RECORD

CHICAGO, April 3.—Marie Warmbier, of the Alberti Jewelers, set a world record for women's bowling here last night when she scored 1,903 in the all-events of the Chicago tournament. She got 663 in the doubles, 582 in the singles and 658 in the team event.

TOURNEY AWARDED

INDIANAPOLIS, April 3.—(AP.)—The executive committee of the Elks National Bowling Association has awarded the 1934 tournament to Cleveland.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

A most embarrassing query is put by D. A. Brauner, of Erie, Pa., who writes:

"It has always seemed strange to me that top-rank golfers can blow up as completely as some do in open championships. No one seems to be infallible. All, at one time or another, have had the experience of being put out of the play by one bad hole or bad round. Is there any way to explain what happens?"

Unfortunately, the occurrence of these balloon ascensions in important competitions where the strain is great is easier to explain than to prevent. The complete breakdown is usually capable of a psychological explanation, resulting almost always from a loss of confidence or destruction of morale through the happening of some sudden catastrophe. The player's muscular powers and his ability to swing the club are the same after the disaster as before. But the one misadventure causes him to fear others, even to an unreasonable extent, and this state of mind, of constant anxiety and apprehension, makes it impossible for him to leave his muscles free to perform their accustomed functions.

Bobby Jones

BAD BREAK TAKES TOLL

I think the worst shocks are those which come unexpectedly and without apparent reason or justice. When a wild tee shot goes off into a jungle you expect a 6 or 7, and you have some chance to prepare yourself for it. And you will tell yourself that you will not let that happen again. But I have found out that it is also possible to take a 6 or 7 without being in any particular trouble and without playing any really bad shots. When you see that the thing can happen through once missing a shot that you no more expected to miss than any other you get a real shake.

I might cite my experience in the last round of the Winged Foot's championship in 1929. I had started with a very valuable lead over the entire field, and, through the seventh hole, I had not only been able to hold it, but had actually increased it, comfortably, I thought, as word came back of the troubles my closest rivals were having.

SOME REAL TROUBLE

I was never more confident and serene in my life. I hit a good drive around the dog-leg to the eighth hole, and hit a No. 4 iron second which was in no sense a bad shot. But it caught the edge of a bunker on the right corner of the green. A yard more to the left and the ball would have turned in quite close to hole.

I felt that might be considered an unlucky break, but I had had several lucky ones, and, anyway, the bunker was not difficult. I would have a putt for a 4, and, even if I failed to get it, I could be out in 36, which was good enough. My shot out of the bunker was not bad, either, but the green sloped away and was keener than I expected. The ball kept trickling, and barely tumbled over the edge of another bunker this time, in a nasty place under the bank. Anything might have happened then. It did. Back across the green I went into the bunker I had just left, this time, out successfully, and two putts for a 7.

Once having seen how easily it could be done, I became afraid of every second shot, afraid of going into another bunker. I tried to steer them all, and I got the usual reward for my pains. I had played the first seven holes one under 4s; I played the last eleven two under 5s. The first disaster was one of those things that can happen any time you lower your guard. The balance of the round was an agony of anxiety.

Local Boat Trails In Havana Race

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 3.—(AP.)—Messages from the Coast Guard cutter Tuscarora, which is convoying the fleet of 11 yachts in the fourth annual St. Petersburg-Havana sailing race, late last night said the schooner Haligonian, owned by Houston Wall, of Tampa, and the schooner Antonia, owned by Harkness Edwards, of Pittsburgh, had distanced the rest of the fleet. The Haligonian was last reported 86 miles southwest of the channel buoy marking the entrance to Tampa Bay with the Antonia six miles behind.

Central League Quits for Year

DAYTON, O., April 3.—(AP.)—The Central Baseball League has suspended operation for a year.

The action came yesterday after Ducky Holmes, holder of the Dayton franchise, had declined to grant league interests 48 hours more in which to try to line up Evansville, Ind., for the circuit. Holmes had authority from Judge W. G. Bramham, president of the Professional Baseball Association, to take his club from the Central League and join the Middle Atlantic League.

AMERICANS ADVANCE

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—The New York Americans soccer team yesterday entered the championship round of the national challenge cup, defeating the Pawtucket (R. I.) Rangers, 4 to 1 in the final game of a home and home series to win the eastern title on total goals 6 to 5.

HOUSE OF DAVID SIGNS JACOBS

By TOM BIRKS

Bill Jacobs, who played with the J. L. Thomas Club in the City League last season, and later joined the House of David aggregation, has received another contract from Manager Grover Alexander and will report to the club at Benton Harbor, Michigan, on May 5.

The Hazlewood boy, who played first with the Jimmy Smith Club, and then with the Thomas nine, made quite an impression with old Alex. The former great National League star admitted that Jacobs was one of the sweetest outfielders he had watched last season.

STAR MUCH SOUGHT

At least two of the teams in the City League this season have been trying to line up Jacobs, but the contract from Benton Harbor has settled matters.

The Thomas Club held its organization meeting yesterday afternoon in the club rooms. It appears definite that Porco, Donett and Martell will be back with the Bloomfielders, who by the way, will play their league games at Greenlee Field.

Practically all of the managers in the City loop are working hard these days perfecting their aggregations for the coming campaign. Anthony will be back with Books at second base and Jiggers Welsh also will stay with the Champions.

Quider, former Reliance star shortstop, will be with the Gillespie club at Brentwood, according to advices from the South Hills. Lambert is to play second and Rentler third and it is likely that Manager George Spiers will cover the initial sack.

DORMONT STARS SET

Dormont will have Trappe at short and Walker at first. Rhiny Kress probably will be back, with Whitmore and Richards twirling.

The move taking the J. L. Thomas nine to Greenlee Field should prove to be a good thing for the league, and also a good move for the Bloomfield officials. The Thomas club played to the largest crowds of the City League season last year.

WINN RENAMED HEAD OF TURF ASSOCIATION

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP.)—Col. Matt Winn today was re-elected president of the American Turf Association, overthrowing all opposition at a stockholders' meeting.

The association controls the Washington Park and Lincoln Fields race tracks in Chicago and the Churchill Downs and Latonia in Kentucky.

A schism within the ranks of the stockholders was threatened two weeks ago when one faction expressed dissatisfaction with Winn's management of the association's affairs and threatened to depose him at their annual meeting.

Col. Winn's supporters clinched voting power by purchasing 85.966 shares of association stock held as collateral in the Bank of Kentucky at Louisville.

DUKES TO CALL TENNIS SQUAD OUT TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Signs of spring should be apparent on the Bluff this afternoon as Coach Grant Siverd calls together his 1933 edition of the Duquesne varsity tennis squad for its initial meeting. Formal practice will not be inaugurated until tomorrow, but in the event of good weather today it is quite probable that numerous aspirants to Hill racquet posts will seize opportunity to fare forth on the asphalt courts for brief outdoor sessions.

The veteran Red and Blue mentor, starting his tenth consecutive campaign as guide of Duquesne's net destinies, faces the task of replacing Capt. Regis Bullion, Joe O'Neill, and Slim Stillwagon from last year's regular line-up. Frank Casey and Cliff Soisson, senior stars, constitute nucleus around which Siverd will strive to build an array capable of registering creditable showing as the Hilltoppers tackle a stiff card of a dozen or 15 contests.

Bill Purcell, junior performer, looms as formidable contender to retain a varsity job, while several of last season's freshman outfit, notably Frank Serany and Roy Getty, should make determined bids for recognition.

Duquesne will not sponsor a yearling squad this spring, but freshman players have been invited to report with the varsity and, though they will be ineligible for competition, they will enjoy continual opportunity for working out under the watchful eye of Siverd. Sam Keller, Andy Smeaton and Paul Sullivan, former Bluffite court captains, will again aid Siverd with the team, and Julius Boise, pro of the Allegheny Country Club, has once more promised to lend assistance from time to time. Smeaton has been delegated to devote a portion of his tennis leisure to whipping the Duke Prep contingent into shape for participation in the Interscholastic Conference race.

Hack Wilson Speeds To Son's Bedside

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 3.—(INS.)—Bobby Wilson, 7-year-old son of Hack Wilson, Brooklyn Dodgers' star hitter, developed a sudden turn for the worse today.

Bobby is suffering from a serious attack of grippe. Mrs. Wilson is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the heavy-hitting outfielder who left Jacksonville, Fla., for home last night.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 3.—The bond market continued to maintain its watchful waiting attitude today and price changes, for the most part, were rather narrow. Moderately reactionary tendencies were displayed by United States government securities and various foreign obligations.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Transactions in three most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STOCK MARKET FLUCTUATES NARROWLY

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Stocks see-sawed placidly today, making frequent changes of trend, but moving narrowly in either direction.

Small early gains under leadership of farm implement and other shares interested in the fortunes of agriculture were succeeded by scattering declines when rails again eased, but the list firmed again as it entered the afternoon trading. On the whole, however, the market was irregular with volume of inconsequential proportions.

Wall street noted that President Roosevelt in his farm mortgage message said the legislation he suggested "will not impose a heavy burden upon the national treasury" and would utilize existing government agencies. Announcement of his intentions in the direction of "practical reciprocal tariff agreements" also attracted wide interest.

General market averages, embracing three major classifications of stocks, have gone virtually to the level of March 3, the day before the exchange closed. Advances in the period since March 15, when trading was resumed with an enthusiastic whoop, have been infrequent, but extreme dullness has marked the dominant reaction. Some observers feel the market has feared the imminence of further deflation, though a well-defined depressing influence has been provided by the letdown in the heavy industries.

News of interest to individual stocks was meager. Eastman Kodak's management believes it can maintain the $3 annual dividend rate on the common through economies already made, though President Stuber was careful to condition this bit of optimism with the phrase "unless the volume of business further declines to a substantial extent." The Bell system's loss of telephone stations in the first quarter is estimated at about 300,000; the decline has been leveling off in recent months, but so long as it continues Wall street will probably continue to look for a change in the American Telephone dividend rate.

First quarter earnings reports, soon to make their appearance, are hardly expected to provide much nourishment for the market. Estimates made early in the period have been generally revised as a result of the curtailment of activity made by many companies during the bank holiday, so previous forecasts as to probable results are regarded as rather inaccurate. To what extent individual companies will charge to first quarter income the writeoffs necessitated by the March setback cannot be determined; some will doubtless spread these charges over a longer period.

Call loans on the stock exchange renewed at 2½ per cent, which was the renewal rate on March 2. Later last month the charge firmed to 5 per cent, but the swift return of money and gold to banks, as well as a recent flow of funds to this center, has restored credit markets to comfortable positions.

INCOME TAXES SHOW DROP

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP.)—Income taxes of $2,380,200 reported on March 31, the last day for filing returns, brought the total for the month to $180,712,300, compared with $195,400,800 a year ago.

The amount, however, does not represent all returns filed, because many mailed and would not be counted until today. So officials believe the government still has a chance of exceeding the amount collected during last March.

The Treasury's statement for the end of March showed the government completed nine months of the 1933 fiscal year with a deficit of $1,361,613,789, with receipts of $1,522,239,493 and expenditures of $2,883,853,282.

The gross debt of the nation on March 31 amounted to $21,362,-464,177, as compared with $20,-934,729,209 at the end of February and $18,506,720,307 on March 31, 1932.

A drop of nearly $300,000,000 in income tax collections for the nine months of the fiscal year was one of the causes of the deficit. In that time the tax has amounted to $564,044,349, compared with $853,-532,165 last year.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Standard Oil Company of Indiana preliminary consolidated report for year ended December 31, 1932, shows net profit of about $16,500,000 after depreciation, depletion, amortization, inventory adjustment and federal income taxes, equal to about $1.03 a share outstanding at the end of the year. This compares with net profit of $17,596,396 in 1931, or $1.04 a share on the 16,908,543 shares outstanding.

Pittsburgh Forgings Company report for year 1932 shows net loss of $159,694 after all charges, compared with net loss of $184,458 in 1931.

Eastman Kodak Company and subsidiaries in 1932 earned $2.52 a share on common, against $5.78 a common share in 1931.

Wesson Oil and Snowdrift Company and subsidiaries report for six months ended February 28, 1933, shows net loss of $320,254 after all charges, compared with net profit of $1,973,002 in the like six months of the previous fiscal year.

Parmelee Transportation Company net loss in 1932 was $2,801,470 after all charges against loss of $3,165,954 in 1931 after charges and a special reserve of $2,000,000 appropriate contingencies.

Supermaid Corporation net loss in 1932 was $310,382 against loss of $515,587 in 1931.

Curtis-Wright Corporation, in its report for the calendar year 1932, shows a loss of $607,182, not including an outlay of $145,265 for idle properties. This compares with a loss of $4,126,059 for 1931. Gross sales fell from $21,651,985 in 1931 to $12,406,720 last year.

United Gas Improvement Company for 1932 shows a combined net income of $35,-384,300, which amounted to $1.36 a share earned on the outstanding common stock. This compares with $37,722,774, or $1.46 a share earned in 1931.

TRADE CURVE IN UPWARD SWING

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP.)—Business statistics of the past week began impressively to reflect the rebound from the low levels reached coincident to the banking crisis early in March.

While many lines were still under the best levels of February, business has entered April with the approach of Easter and the spring shopping season giving a real boost to wholesale and retail trade, and with statistics for such important barometers as electric power production and freight car loadings showing substantial improvement over the levels of the first half of March.

IMPORATNT GAINS

The railroad traffic report of last week—which covers the movement for the week ending March 25—showed car loadings amounting to 475,850, an increase of 26,138 over the previous week.

A like trend was indicated by electric power output. Although such production last week was 6.9 per cent below the corresponding week of 1932, the previous week's figures revealed a drop of 10.6 per cent.

Steel ingot production in the past week was lifted 1½ points to 15½ per cent, according to the magazine Steel. The normally active railroad and public construction work, however, has not materialized, due in part to watchful waiting attitude pending determination of the administration's program for the carriers.

BREWERS SPENDING

With the emotional froth blown away from Congress' 3.2 per cent beer, the business community is making a dispassionate survey of the facts. The F. W. Dodge Corporation estimates a $65,000,000 outlay for the next four months to modernize old brewing plants and construct new ones. Many manufacturers have already felt the spur of increased expenditures, notably makers of containers, retail fixtures and trucks. The railroads naturally expect an improvement in traffic. Printers' Ink estimates that beer advertising will total $13,000,000 for the first year.

Aided by more favorable weather conditions, the curve of retail trade during the past week rose more sharply than usual just before the Easter season. A movement toward the conversion of hoarded or other cash into merchandise also contributed to this development.

COTTON EASES ON SELLING

NEW YORK, April 3.—Cotton futures opened steady, ¼ lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables and under scattered selling. May, 6.33; July, 6.48; October, 6.68; December, 6.82; January, 6.87; March, 6.99.

Early offerings were absorbed by trade buying of the near months with a scattering demand for later deliveries coming partly through houses with western and Wall street connections. The May contract held between 6.33 and 6.31 during the early trading with the market at the end of the first half hour quiet but fairly steady at net declines of 1 to 3 points.

Prices sagged another point or two later in the morning with May selling down to 6.29c and October to 6.68c, or 2 to 6 points net lower, but offerings were smaller after the close of Liverpool and the market held fairly steady later on a very moderate demand. At midday active months were about net unchanged to 2 points lower.

AUTO DEMAND LIFTS STEEL

CLEVELAND, April 3.—(AU.)—Automotive requirements the past week lifted steel ingot production up 1½ per cent to 15½ per cent, with greater gains in finishing mill operations than indicated by this rate, the magazine Steel said today.

The increase also was accelerated, the magazine said, by "fuller specifications on first quarter contracts, owing to apprehension that any change in prices will be upward.

As a whole, the magazine said, indications are that April will see a moderate upturn in iron and steel demand, with impetus mainly from the automotive industry, a quickening in seasonal requirements, and expansion in beer manufacture and distribution.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

BUSINESS GAIN SLIGHT; FAITH ENCOURAGING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Business in the last week has shown a further moderate pickup from the state of paralysis into which it fell during the bank holiday.

Mr. Rukeyser

In some lines, such as retail sales, the improvement has been discouragingly slight. Actual sales reflect the handicap resulting from widespread unemployment, impoverishment of farmers, and frozen deposits in closed banks. Comparisons with a year ago are thrown out of balance because of the earlier occurrence of Easter last year.

AWAIT WORK PLANS

The sensitive speculative markets were quiet, and the price trend was slightly lower. Traders recognized the immediate deflation entailed in the failure of numerous banks to reopen and in the restrictions on foreign exchange.

Both schools of thought in the street are waiting for positive assurance from the White House as to how much counter deflation the administration will sponsor in the form of accelerated public works and related activities.

The return of beer, though a small episode when related to the totality of business, is at least giving the welcome spectacle of expansion in a circumscribed field. The effect of the spending for new facilities is magnified by the fact that it is being concentrated within a short period of time.

FAITH RENEWED

On the constructive side, the working out of the bank crisis under the aegis of the President has been encouraging. There has been a significant rebirth of faith.

The other "new deal" measures entail a broad scheme for refashioning our economic institutions, and the results are to be measured in terms of years rather than days.

In connection with the renewed faith in opened financial institutions, it is important to arrest continuing deflation which further impairs the value of assets. The beer, farm and unemployment relief measures are counter deflationary in spirit. It seems important to keep all measures pointing in the same direction.

BUDGET BALANCE

The decision to balance the operating budget of the federal government should facilitate refunding and also the distribution of additional government bonds.

The former administration for some time lived from hand to mouth financially, greatly increasing the volume of floating debt.

Accordingly, more than half of the federal debt, which last month exceeded $20,584,310,420, will be either callable or due for payment before the end of this year. Of this, some $2,653,856,900 will mature, and $8,912,187,440 will be subject to redemption.

The chief advantage of calling and refunding the redeemable bonds would be to reduce the carrying charges. If the bonds entailing the higher rates of interest were called and replaced by new 3 per cent to 3¼ per cent bonds, it has been estimated that the government could save up to $85,000,000 annually in interest.

Ability of the government to achieve such economies would go far to break the deadlock in the capital market, and would be a step toward recovery.

BREWERY ISSUE ANNOUNCED

A group of Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Cleveland brokers, consisting of Butler, Wick & Co., Witt, Kraus & Co., and Brinker, Bell & Co., is making a public offering of 115,000 shares of the capital stock of the Renner Company, formerly the Renner Brewing Company, of Youngstown, O., at $1.50 per share. Upon completion of this financing there will be outstanding 450,000 shares of $1 par value out of an authorized capitalization of 600,000 shares.

The company has no funded debt, bank loans nor preferred stock and the pro forma balance sheets as of February 28, 1933, adjusted to give effect to the present financing, shows the company is resuming business with $155,278 in cash and there are no liabilities to be met beyond a current payment of $4,601. The fixed assets have been appraised at $635,014.

The company has agreed to make application for the listing of the stock on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. Prior to prohibition, the company conducted a profitable business in Youngstown and vicinity when there was more than one brewery in the territory. The new era in the beer trade begins, however, with Renner the only plant in the Ohio city.

Curb 'Guinea Pig' Directors, House Demand

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(INS.)—The House Interstate Commerce Committee today had learned what "Guinea pig directors" are from the lips of a former oil magnate, Representative Marland (Dem.), of Oklahoma, now a member of the committee.

During the hearing on the securities bill, Marland said there are directors of corporations in New York, who make a living going from one meeting to another all day long, collecting a $10 gold piece at each stop. He said:

"Over in England they call them 'Guinea pigs' because they get a guinea for each meeting."

Marland urged a curb upon directors who merely lend their names to companies.

FIRM EXPANDS ADVERTISING

The largest advertising campaign in its history is being conducted in 1933 by the Van Camp Sea Food Company, Inc., of Terminal Island, Cal. according to Emil Brisacher, president of Emil Brisacher and Staff, Pacific Coast advertising agency in charge of the company's advertising. The 1933 appropriation is said to exceed $400,000.

Brisacher stated that this year, as in the past, more than 90 percent of the appropriation is for newspaper advertising which has been a vital factor in the company's growth to its present gigantic size. The Van Camp Sea Food Company, Inc., is not only the largest tuna packer in the world, but packs a great deal more tuna than all others combined. Its annual output is in excess of 60,000,000 tins of California fish products.

The Van Camp Sea Food Company, Inc., states that it has been greatly aided by the "Buy American" campaign of the Hearst newspapers which has so forcefully called the American public's attention to the dangers attendant upon foods which so often are below American standards. Then, too, there is the inevitable decrease in American pay rolls which results when foreign-made merchandise is purchased.

French Restrictions Blow to U. S. Radio

PARIS, April 3.—(Universal.)—New French import restrictions announced today strike blows at the American radio and leather industries.

CHIMES TOWER PLANS READY

As summer approaches, plans are being expedited for major improvements in the Allegheny County Memorial Park, situated in McCandless Township, North Side, at the intersection of Duncan avenue and Thompson Run road.

Janssen and Cocken, Pittsburgh architects, have designed for the burial park a tower of chimes.

Faced with the advisability of constructing a water tank of 27,000 gallons capacity, to provide constant gravity pressure for the more than five miles of water lines throughout the park, it was planned to house this utilitarian project in a structure of beauty.

The present building program of the Memorial Park will require the expenditure of half million dollars, most of which will be spent in Pittsburgh for Pittsburgh labor and materials.

The tower of chimes will be 175 feet high. Its main shaft will be 25 feet square and its foundation 25 feet deep. Besides the stainless steel water tank and the carillon, it will house stairways and elevators leading to a top lookout. The structure will be built with a steel frame, covered with dolomitic limestone.

The tower of chimes will be considered as a lofty memorial to all who are buried within the park, according to Ralph R. Mason, vice president of the Allegheny County Memorial Park organization. He said:

"The carillon or chimes will be tuned scientifically by a device which measures vibrations to a high degree of accuracy. It will have a tone range equal to the human voice."

The tower will be equipped with electrical contrivances for broadcasting throughout the park, Mr. Mason continued. It will have a microphone and loud speakers for broadcasting organ music and electrical transcriptions.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XI.

Eddie lay on his face on the pavement.

A man ran out to him from the other side of the street. He reached him before Sharlie did and carried him into the cigar store.

Sharlie followed him, sobbing under her breath.

"Have to telephone for an ambulance," she heard him say. His voice sounded faint and far away. The lights in the store seemed to turn purple as she looked at them—then everything went dark.

She never knew that she fainted. It seemed to her that she closed her eyes, and when she opened them again the little store was filled with people. She was sitting on a chair behind the counter.

Two men, all in white, were putting Eddie on a stretcher. She had a glimpse of his face. It was white as wax and his eyes were closed.

"Where are they taking him?" she asked the man who had brought him into the store.

"To Charity Hospital."

She telephoned Eddie's father and told him she would meet him at the hospital in 15 minutes. Then she went across the slippery wet street and climbed into Eddie's car.

It seemed to her as if she were driving through a dream that night. Nothing seemed real. Even the thick, dark, substantial walls of Charity Hospital looked unreal to her when she drove up before them and stopped the car.

She was going up the steps to the front entrance when Eddie's father drove up in a taxicab. He had pulled a pair of trousers and a coat on over his nightshirt, and he was holding the collar together with one hand. He wore no hat.

"Where's Eddie?" he asked, his face working. "How badly hurt is he?—Where have they put him?"

INJURIES FATAL

A nurse was coming down the entrance hall. They asked her where they could find Eddie. They told her what had happened to him.

"Just wait here a minute. I'll find out where he is," she told them in a half whisper and vanished into a room behind a swinging white door. In a minute or two they could hear her talking over the house telephone.

Then she came back to them. "If you'll go up to the second floor——" she murmured, waving them toward a staircase at the left of the hall.

Another nurse was waiting for them at the head of the stairs. She led them down a long, white corridor to a small white room furnished with a table and two straight chairs.

She left them there. They could hear the soft, slipping, sliding sound of her rubber-heeled shoes on the cork floor of the corridor . . . Then there was silence.

And then, after 10 minutes or so, the nurse came back with a doctor in a long white coat.

He was very grave, and what he had come there to say he said in a very few words . . . Eddie had died on the way to the hospital.

"Dead?" Eddie's father began to shake all over. Tears rolled down his unshaved cheeks. "I've got to see him—I've got to see Eddie—"

GOES TO MOTHER'S HOME

The nurse and the doctor took him away down the corridor between them, and Sharlie was left alone in the white room. . . . She had no desire to see Eddie. Eddie with his grin and the twinkle far back in his eyes, with his pink shirt and his checked cap that made him look like a young thug—

* * *

His car stood at the foot of the steps where she had left it.

She got in and drove it back to Seventeenth street. The rain had stopped and the backyard was filled with moonlight just as it had been two nights before when she had driven into it with Eddie . . . Only two nights before? Why she had lived a whole lifetime since then!

It was only 12 o'clock when she reached the apartment bufiding on Halstead street. The windows of her father's flat were dark.

But from the Hanaberrys' flat across the street came the sound of voices and phonograph music, and the open windows were bright with light . . . The Dunns were evidently spending the evening there.

"I'll just slip into my own room and nobody will even know I'm there until tomorrow morning," Sharlie thought wearily as she climbed the stairs and unlocked the door of the flat.

She was very quiet about it. But she must have made a tiny noise. For just as she set foot in the living room Edna's voice called out from the dining room:

"Who's there? Is that you, Dodie?"

"No. It's Sharlie."

She went through the darkness of the living room and stopped on the threshold of the dining room door.

Edna was sitting at the table writing letters.

"You've left that boy!" she cried. "Oh, Sharlie, I'm so glad."

Then she saw that the girl was shaking her head. She was trying to say something. But her lips simply opened and closed without letting out a word.

"Poor kid! This has been too much for you," Edna said soothingly, and, taking her by the arm, she led her out to her own small white bedroom.

She saw now that Sharlie was too shocked, or too worn out, to talk.

So while she helped her take off her clothes and slip out of her shoes she went on talking lightly and cheerfully . . . "Off with your slip, Sharlie, and into your nightie! Out of your shoes and into your bedroom slippers."

Only they weren't Sharlie's bedroom slippers and nightgown. Hers were all neatly packed in the two suitcases that still lay open on the floor of Eddie's room. But Edna had gone swiftly into her own room and returned with one of her white silk gowns and a pair of her blue bedroom slippers.

She tucked Sharlie into bed as if she had been a little girl. And almost before her head touched the pillow Sharlie was asleep.

She slept for 15 hours. The sleep of a person who is stunned—who is sapped out, mind and body and soul.

READ ABOUT ACCIDENT

It was 4 o'clock of the next afternoon when she opened her eyes again. Her room was almost dark and rain was pelting down on the windows.

Sharlie got out of bed, slipped her feet into Edna's blue mules and walked into the living room. Dodie was there, curled up in a corner of the couch like a cat. She was reading a magazine.

"Well, you're awake at last!" she said when Sharlie came into the room and sat down beside her. "I thought you were going to sleep forever!—Sharlie, how on earth was that boy killed last night? There was only a little piece in this morning's paper about it—"

"Oh, don't!" Sharlie held up her hand. "Please let's not talk about it for a while, Dodie!—It was so awful——"

Her mother raised her eyebrows. "That's just the way you always are with me, Sharlie! Never telling me a thing that happens to you—keeping everything to yourself!" she said. "And then your father and your grandmother and Edna all blame me for not knowing anything about you or what you're doing!"

Sharlie twisted the corner of a green-and-gold sofa cushion—and said nothing.

"But I'm going to know all about you from now on, believe me!" her mother went on. "I'm going to keep you right here in this place for a while! You've run wild long enough."

Sharlie looked back upon the long lonely days she had spent here in the flat during the last four or five weeks, while her mother and Maud Hanaberry were downtown together. She looked back upon them with distaste.

"What I need is a job!" she cried suddenly. "I want to go to business school, and then get a job like Edna's. I can't keep on living here like this."

Synopsis

Young and pretty Sharlie Dunn is attracted to irresponsible Eddie Wallis. One night, Eddie takes Sharlie to his apartment and makes violent love to her. She flees in fear, and, returning home, interrupts a tete-a-tete between her mother and Carl Hanaberry, a friend's husband. Next evening Jim Barnum, a neighbor, invites Sharlie to the theater. As they leave Eddie arrives and forbids Sharlie to go. Then she goes with Eddie instead. On the way home from a roadhouse Eddie's car runs out of gas. He and Sharlie spend the night in the car. Next morning Sharlie and Eddie accede to Mrs. Dunn's demands and get married. That night, returning from the movies, Eddie is struck by an automobile.

THE "IRON DUKE" WELLINGTON MEETS THE PRUSSIAN COMMANDER BLUECHER BEFORE THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO (1815)

Through the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo the long and bloody rivalry between England and France came to an end for the time. The blockade directed against English commerce by the French was thus ended. (World's History.)

THE FLEA (Science)

(a) Adult; (b) egg; (c) larva; (d) cocoon (all enlarged). From the egg the larva emerges. It forms an oval cocoon from which the flea comes forth. The flea is a carrier of bubonic plague. Extermination is by creoline on animals and by fumigation on premises. (Metcalf & Flint: Insects.)

TABLE OF ELEMENTS (Chemistry)

Each oblong represents an element. The top figure in each gives the atomic number (a); the figure under the name of the element indicates its atomic weight (b) and those at the bottom the weights of its isotopes (c) (see hydrogen). H. G. J. Moseley (1888-1915), English physicist, measured the nuclear charge of the atom, which is the excess of the positive charge (protons) over the negative charge (electrons) in the nucleus. This difference is called the atomic number. Each element has a different atomic number from 1 (hydrogen) to 92 (uranium) and all are arranged in the table accordingly. All but those with atomic numbers 85 and 87 have been discovered. (Reilley, Rae and Wheeler: Physico-Chemical Methods.)

KAOLIN MINED IN FLORIDA

FRENCH FLINT PEBBLES

FELDSPAR MINE

Pottery, one of the oldest arts, began with the birth of civilization. Babylonians and Egyptians had made tablets of clay since 3500 B. C.

The principal constituents of earthenware are clay, flint and feldspar. White clay or kaolin is a finer grade of clay. It was originally found in China and later in the U. S. (North Carolina, Florida, Georgia).

Kaolin forms the principal part of china bodies. The mined clay or kaolin is mixed with water and passed through traps that remove coarse waste material, after that through settling troughs to remove the finest sand and mica and finally through screens into settling-vats, allowed to settle and the water drawn off.

Flint, an almost pure silica, is found in the form of pebbles mainly on the coasts of the English Channel. Crystalline flint is mined in the rock state and, like clay, is quite abundant.

The principal sources of our supply in feldspar are Maryland, North Carolina, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine and Canada. The spar-rock is quarried and hand picked, as it must be quite pure. After shipping, these raw materials are stored in bins in the factory.

BED BUG (Science)

The most common pest, the bedbug, feeds on man and animal, has venomous bite causing swelling, spreads contagious diseases. Extermination by hydrocyanic acid gas. (Metcalf & Flint: Insects.)

Courtesy of McMillan Co.

THE LOUSE (Science)

It has sharp claws for grasping the skin, hair or clothing where it lives and lays its eggs, making excursions on the skin to feed. These vermin are blood-sucking, highly irritating and disease carrying. Extermination by kerosene, carbolic acid, mercury ointment and fumigation. (Herrick: Insects.)

We're Making History

Any citizen still alive and scripping is making history.

And making history is a complicated job, like the hen that laid the square egg.

Figuring that you are 33 years of age you have seen plenty in your short career. You got here after the Spanish-American War and you were too young to really enjoy the 1907 panic.

But you were just ripe for the last year of the wide world shindig and you probably slogged through the boulevards of Flanders. That was history, me lads, of the pinkest and bluest variety.

Then you saw the peace conference at Versailles and its hamburgered results. After that, you were old enough to realize that you can trust a conclave of diplomats as far as you can wave a broken finger.

It's all history and it certainly smells bad while cooking.

You saw the war debts repudiated gently but firmly. You observed our home bankers toss us to the wolves and hurl us on the spears. You were a victim of Republican prosperity that nourishes not and Wall street wealth that evaporates while you are sorting it.

That's history and you were there. You saw three straight administrations milk us white and charge us for cream. History. You were present when the nation voted for a new deal in Chicago last summer and you helped to swell the Democratic vote.

You saw our great minds shrivel to the contents of a worm-eaten walnut. History.

And, now, you are seeing the Democrats trying to whip the wreck onto the main line. It is going to be a tough battle and we know it. But that's the way with all history.

We see no reason why any young man of 33 should claim that life is dull. He has seen more happen in that time than had occurred in 20 past centuries.

We are all in the toy game. We are making history to amuse our grandchildren.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

A Threat to Health

To Deprive the City of Its Hospital for Contagious Diseases Would Be a Mistake.

If Representative W. A. Walker's bill for the creation of a county department of welfare should be passed in its present form, the department would take over and operate Pittsburgh's tuberculosis sanitarium on Leech Farm and also the municipal hospital on Bedford avenue for the treatment of contagious diseases.

To deprive the city of these institutions would be a mistake. It would seriously cripple the Department of Health in its never-ending struggle to protect Pittsburgh from pestilences and epidemics.

Mr. Walker's bill has been indorsed by local leaders in social service. It is a comprehensive measure calling for the consolidation of all municipal welfare activities under a county board, headed by a Director of Welfare to be appointed by the County Commissioners. The present Board of Poor Directors would be done away with.

The bill provides for the assumption by the County Department of Welfare of the functions now exercised by the City Department of Welfare. The county would take over the city almshouse and insane asylum at Mayview.

There is something to be said in favor of the amalgamation of city and county welfare activities and institutions. For one thing, it would facilitate the financing of this work.

But to have the County Welfare Department, managed by social workers, take over an important branch of the work of the Pittsburgh Department of Health, a department administered by physicians, is another matter.

Mr. Walker's bill says that the proposed County Welfare Department shall maintain and operate all hospitals now operated by municipalities in the county for the care and treatment of indigent persons afflicted with tuberculosis, "and any hospital for the care and treatment of persons suffering from contagious and chronic diseases."

It says also that no municipality in the county shall continue to maintain any of the services or functions vested by the act in the County Welfare Department.

That means that the prevention of contagious and chronic diseases in Pittsburgh, as now carried on by the city's municipal hospital, would be taken over by the county, which has no health department adequate for this work.

The safeguarding of Pittsburgh's health is a city function and should remain so.

It is properly the function of a health department, administered by physicians, not of a welfare department, administered by social workers.

Mr. Walker's bill is scheduled to come up before the House tonight for third reading.

The objectionable paragraphs should be deleted.

'First Things First'

The Senate Should Not Consider Treaties While Unemployment Requires Attention.

"Our greatest primary task is to put people to work," said President Roosevelt in his inaugural address.

Toward the accomplishment of this task the President and the Congress have already made a good beginning. But much remains to be done before the army of our unemployed can be substantially reduced.

Two hundred and fifty thousand men are to be given emergency work in our national forests. Other thousands are to be given employment on public works yet to be started.

And millions of our unemployed, it is hoped, will find work when the Roosevelt program for the reduction of federal expenditures, the purging and unifying of our banking system, and the rehabilitation of agriculture restore confidence, raises commodity prices and brings about a revival of commerce and industry.

But the success of this program will be seriously threatened unless the Senate unites with the House in concentrating upon the measures that make up this program.

Already the Committee on Foreign Relations has reported to the Senate the St. Lawrence waterways treaty. To dispose of this treaty at the present session without retarding urgently needed domestic legislation will take at least a month.

To report any other treaties would either retard the relief program or clutter up the Senate calendar with proposed engagements with foreign powers that cannot be acted upon at the special session.

Under these circumstances, public sentiment will support those Senators of both parties who are opposing consideration of the League Court protocols at the special session.

To report these protocols to the Senate now would precipitate a bitter controversy upon a foreign question when Congress was convened in special session to meet the challenge of a great emergency here at home.

This is not the time for the Senate to venture upon any unnecessary excursions into the field of foreign relations.

This is the time for the Senate to co-operate with the House in passing as promptly as possible emergency measures for the relief of the American people.

Plunging the United States into the League of Nations through the trapdoor of its private court will not put one jobless American to work, but it may involve all Americans in another foreign war.

Wasteful and Needless

The Plan to Saddle Philadelphia Taxpayers With a Municipal Newspaper Is Bad.

Representative Stephen Denning, of Philadelphia, has introduced in the Legislature a bill calling for the publication of an official newspaper by cities of the first-class—that is, Philadelphia.

If he should be successful in having it enacted, an attempt probably would be made to have an official newspaper published also in cities of the second-class—that is, Pittsburgh.

A municipal newspaper publishing official documents in their tiresome entirety, and nothing else but municipal news, would make dull reading, and be of slight interest.

There is no need of such a paper. The field of municipal news is already well covered by the existing newspapers.

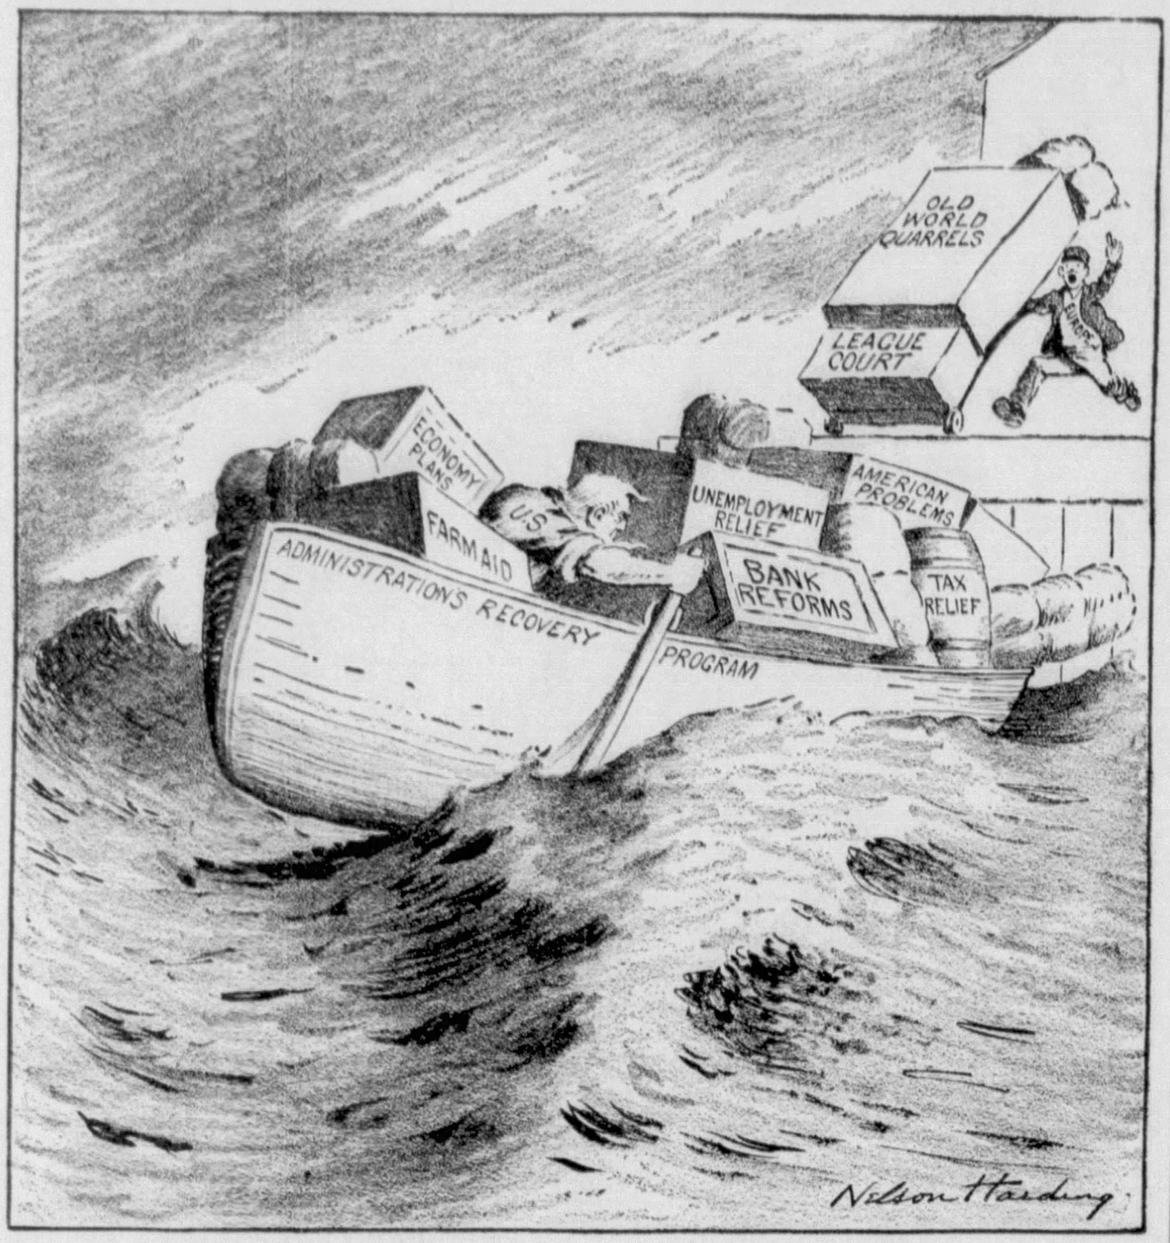
Such a journal as is proposed for Philadelphia would cost the taxpayers at least $1,000,000 a year. New York City's daily City Record costs more than $2,000,000.

The proposed journal would provide jobs for a number of political workers, and be useful to the city administration as an organ of propaganda. But it would be a sad waste of the taxpayers' money.

The bill should be killed.

No More Freight!

By Nelson Harding



The passing storm leaves waves still rough,
The cargo is a heavy weight;
The rower has no easy task,
And cannot carry extra freight.

The ferryman needs all his skill
And strength to reach the distant shore;
His boat has all that it can hold
In safety and can hold no more.

This Is Hitler, the Dictator

Power Is Here. How Much of It? For How Long?

GERMANY'S NEW "IRON CHANCELLOR" (OR IS IT LEAD OR BRASS?), ADOLF HITLER, NEWEST AMONG EUROPE'S DICTATORS

This is Adolf Hitler's fierce, frowning face. Study it and the others in profile farther down.

The world moves rapidly, giving opportunity to a man of powerful will and convincing oratory like Hitler. He and other powerful dictators of Europe—Mussolini, of Italy; Kemal Pasha, of Turkey; Stalin, of Russia—"came from nowhere."

Parents of Bavarian blood brought Hitler up to consider himself a German, although he was born in Austria, near the border of Bavaria.

In his youth, poor, knowing that if you get anything you must work for it, he worked hard. It would have been well for some of the German aristocrats, including the royal family, if they had had the same education. Hitler worked as a laborer, a painter, and later a draughtsman. He went into the war, was dangerously wounded, and won the Iron Cross which Germany gives to HUMBLE people only when they show real courage.

He never rose in rank higher than a corporal. Like Mussolini, he got all the hardships of war—none of the personal glory.

Hitler, for the time being, is master of the great German nation with its millions of intelligent, highly educated scientists, industrialists, professors and others.

The sons of the former Kaiser, Wilhelm II, follow in Hitler's train, and where he goes the former Crown Prince goes. German monarchists hope this man will restore the Hohenzollern monarchy to power as Mussolini in Italy has retained the Italian King and royal family in their positions.

HITLER BROADCASTING

HITLER, PROFILE, IN REPOSE

Without Mussolini after the war there is no doubt that the wave of extreme radicalism would have swept away the royal family.

Hitler, who, like other dictators in Europe, interests all men that work for what they get, has MADE HIS OWN WAY. He is accused of persecuting the Jews on account of their religion. And although himself a Catholic, the son of a Catholic father and mother, he is bitterly hated in Bavaria, a strong German Catholic State.

The accusation is made against him by Catholics that he would destroy the power of the Catholic "Centrist Party" in the German government.

He threatens in Bavaria to have those that oppose him rounded up in concentration camps and put at hard labor.

In addition to the powerful "frowning full face" of Hitler we print two Hitler profiles, one in repose, the other in action at the microphone.

After you have seen a man you feel that you know him. Here you see Hitler. What do you think of him? Will he last, as Mussolini, Stalin and Kemal have lasted, in spite of would-be assassins' bullets and the hostility of other nations?

Or will he pass, as Mussolini's forerunner, Rienzi, passed from the scene, first all powerful, then nothing?

A very important question, important to German welfare and to the history of the world.

In Night's Garden

When I look to the left
It is dark; to the right
There waits only the soft,
Velvet blackness of night.

At my feet, like a veil,
Dimness drapes grass and clod;
Panic grips me until
I look upward to God.

I look upward to God
And with rapture I see
Blazoned bright in the skies
Burns his promise to me!

Through the deeps of the dark
He has set for a sign
Of His infinite love,
Of His purpose benign
Shining stars which I glimpse
Like white flowers through the gloom;
He has planted His grace
In night's gardens to bloom!

NEW YORK, April 3.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes and a brave note from Vera Corbett, Jim's widow. Also, good news of Ruth and Reginald Wright Kauffman, in Geneva. And, at breakfast, arose a discussion of character actors, the season's best I think was Etienne Giradot as the religious crank in the "20th Century."

So to my chambers, putting things in order against anon. Then driving with my wife and Harry Silvey to the Frazier Hunt's in Bronxville. And Chic Sale there, and Bracher DeMarcus, and as merry an afternoon of country jake babblement as ever I had in my life.

In the evening, to lighten the larder at Alma Clayburgh's with the Claude G. Bowerses and the Theodore Dreisers. Later, Harold Ross, Will Hearst, Jr., the Morton Downeys and many bigwigs dropped in. So I maneuvered Downey into a corner to sing tenor to my alto in "Sweet Adeline," very sweet it was, too.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Nerves on edges these days?

Sure they are.

Worrying over your job; hounded by your debts; no wonder you're driven almost to distraction.

And then, on top of it all, there's the sloppy service everywhere.

Can't even go in and order a cup of coffee without having it slopped over your sleeves, or being forced to wait half an hour.

Daren't leave your car for servicing in your old garage, for fear some new man will wreck it.

Things are certainly in a mess! And wouldn't you think, with jobs so scarce, that those who have 'em would try to give snappier service?

Yes; probably that's just what you would think—if you didn't happen to know what's happening behind the scene.

That queer girl who slopped the coffee over your sleeves—this is the first job she's ever had, and she's scared stiff. She was only a little High School kid three weeks ago. Didn't know the meaning of An Economic Crisis. Lived as sheltered all her life as a downy baby chick. And then—

Something snapped in her dad's frantic brain. He'd been so sure that HIS bank couldn't fail; that HIS bet on stocks was okay. Then, in an hour—

But you know the rest. He was the poor devil who stepped off the seventeenth floor. Or maybe you don't remember, there are so many of them nowadays.

But his little girl will always remember. She'll never be able to forget—not with her mother wandering, wild-eyed and daft, down strange tenement halls. Not with the memory of Daddy's white, broken face branded on her brain.

She was seeing that face this morning when she spilled the coffee on your sleeve. Yes, I know it made a nasty spot. But—

OH, BE PATIENT! HAVE A HEART!

And that "blundering fool" who scratched the fender of the new car you left for servicing. Yes, I know he was exasperating and in a way you're fully justified in your determination to report him to the boss.

But, suppose you were in his shoes?

Suppose you'd been sitting up all night with a sick wife and a week-old baby?

Didn't know he was married—a kid like that? No, I suppose you didn't. But "kids like that" do marry nowadays, snatching at the only bit of wonder and beauty which may come their way.

How do they live?

They don't live, stranger. They live, and die; as that tiny baby was dying last night, because his frail girl mother didn't have strength enough in her famished body to give him the will to live.

A 20-year-old boy sitting alone, through a dreadful night, watching his baby die, clutching a half-starved girl—

And today he scratched the fender on your car.

OH, BE PATIENT! HAVE A HEART?

"The lucky ones with jobs."

You'll never know what desperate chances they take, what cruel hardships they face, to get that luck.

Staffs cut in half.

Workers doing double shift; half dead with weariness and worry; blundering, fumbling, fuzzy-fingered, through strange chores.

And don't forget the boss, who's taking the chances—giving them all a chance, at the risk of his own ruin.

Emergency measures.

These things are words to you. But there are human beings behind those words; desperately frightened and discouraged human beings, trying to carry on—trying to meet your demands.

They stumble sometimes.

Of course they do!

Wouldn't you?

OH, BE PATIENT! HAVE A HEART!
